HAT'S OFF as fresh beanies fall by the wayside. According to Husker tradition, all must wear beanies until the first snowfall or the first football victory. Saturday's game made this one of the shortest beanie seasons in University history.

Kellogg Near Reality As $450,000 Pledged

Ataturk, Grants Come Before Regents

Pledges for $450,000 toward the University's share of the proposed Kellogg Center for Continuing Education have been signed and are in the hands of the committee headed by Gov. Victor Anderson to raise money for the Center.

George Cook, president of the University Alumni Association reported on the progress of the fund raising campaign at a meeting of the Board of Regents, Saturday.

Most of the $450,000 came from Lincoln. Cook said Sunday. Fund-raising goal in Lincoln is $650,000, thus leaving $200,000 to be raised here.

Should the drive fall short, about $250,000 could be borrowed to complete the $1,142,000 the University must add to the $1,856,000 offered by the Kellogg Foundation.

No money will change hands until the entire amount has been raised, Cook said, but the $450,000 figure is a guaranteed pledge now.

Other topics discussed at the Board of Regents meeting ranged from Ataturk University to a piece of sculpture that a Regent said he would hate to back into.

The Board decided to invite Dr. Marvel Baker, former chief of the University's Turkish program, to its next meeting, to discuss progress on Ataturk, the Turkish national University and the University's sister school.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin reported to the Regents that classes will open at Ataturk for the first time Nov. 17.

Sponsored in part by the University of Nebraska, the Turkish University will hold classes in temporary buildings until the two or three buildings under construction are finished.

Larger Enrollment The Chancellor also predicted a larger total enrollment at the University this year than last. Calculations made Friday night approximately equalled last year's enrollment of 8,134 students. Late registrations were not counted in that total.

In other business, the Regents approved purchases of several art objects for the Frank M. Hall collection. The purchases included eight pieces of pottery, one sculpture (the one not to be backed into) and one painting. Cost

British Offer Graduate Grants Applications for the 1959 Marshall Scholarship Awards are due by Oct. 31, according to British Information Services.

Twelve scholarships are awarded each year to American students, married or single, who have earned a first degree at a recognized university by Oct. 1, 1959. The scheme was begun in 1953. It is intended to express Britain's gratitude for Marshall Aid, the Information Services said.

Each award is worth about $1,400 a year for two or three years, tuition at a United Kingdom university, and transportation to and from the United Kingdom. An extra allowance is made for married men.

Application should be made to the British Consul-General, Chicago, Ill.

for the art objects totalled $2,400.

Grants totalling more than a quarter of a million dollars in research and training were accepted by the Regents.

Research grants totaled $233,738 and the training grants $57,537.

Resignations Accepted Resignations of 32 staff members were accepted by the Board. Appointments approved included Dr. J. O. Young as professor and chairman of department of horticulture; Edward Pershe as assistant professor of civil engineering; Frederick Nebe, assistant professor of pharmacology and Robert Stake, assistant professor of educational psychology and measurements.

Dr. Winfield Ray, who has just completed his two-year assignment with the Nebraska Mission in Turkey was reinstated as chairman and professor of botany.

The razing of 71-year-old Nebraska Hall was authorized by the Board of Regents, Saturday.

Although the building is destined to disappear, its name will remain a part of the University campus. The board voted to name the former Elgin building Nebraska Hall.

The state fire marshal had recommended removal of the building in 1953. A letter from Charles Fowler, director of buildings and grounds quoted the marshal as describing the building "in poor condition, dilapidated, the floor sagging in all directions."

Home of the Conservation and Survey Division, the old hall is located on 12th St. north of the Geography Building.

The date for removal is indefinite. It will depend on the relocation of the Conservation and Survey Division which will presumably be moved to the Elgin building sometime next spring.

Single admission tickets for adults are 75 cents for the 4 p.m. matinee and 10 cents for the 8 p.m. evening performance.

Tickets at special rate of $5.00 are available for the season at the Bureau of Audio-Visual Instruction, 19 Architectural Hall, or at Morrill Hall.

Delta Phi Delta Will Show Slides Delta Phi Delta, honorary art fraternity, will sponsor a series of slide exhibitions this year.

The exhibitions, to be held in Morrill Hall, will represent the work of Delta Phi Delta members from each of the eight sections of the country.

Provided for by the 1958 national convention, they will be open to the public. The program schedule will be announced at a later date.

Extra Point Club—

Nebraskan Staffers Join; Organizations Challenged

Baldwin Chosen Judicial Chairman

Truell, Rogers Elected, By-Laws Passed in Organizational Meeting

Joe Baldwin, Law College senior, has been chosen chairman of the 1958-59 Student Tribunal.

Other officers elected in a Tribunal organizational meeting were Gary Rogers, vice-chairman, and Judith Truell, secretary. Both are juniors.

By Laws Passed The Tribunal also passed a 9-section list of by-laws for the year which include secret sessions as the order of business, unless the judges considers it "advisable" to meet in open session.

The Tribunal, eventually a reality after approval by the student body during 1958 spring semester registration, and later approved with minor changes by the Board of Regents and the Faculty Senate, has been meeting informally to get "an idea of what we'll be doing," according to a Tribunal judge.

J. P. Colbert, dean of student affairs, has told the judges what past policy governing student discipline has been.

Other Judges Other student judges are John Kinnier, Lyle Hansen, Donald Iburg and Frank Wells, all seniors.

They were selected by the Student Council after a council committee had earlier nominated and cleared them.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin picked Edmond Belsheim, dean of the College of Law, and Theodore Aakhus, professor of engineering drawing, as the faculty judges after nominees were presented to him by the Faculty Senate Committee on Committees.

Meetings at least every two weeks and May election of officers are other sections covered in the Tribunal by-laws. Special meetings of the judges can be called by any three, the chairman, or at the request of the Dean of Student Affairs, the by-laws read.

Audubon Film Tours Scheduled

The Audubon Screen Tours, natural history color motion pictures, will be offered this year by the University Extension Division, the Museum and the National Audubon Society.

The program includes: North to the Polar Seas, presented by Arthur Towmey, Oct. 6; Kangaroo Continent, Patricia Bailey Witherspoon, Nov. 7; Earthquake Lake, Karl Maslowski, January 16; The New World Rediscovered, Laurel Reynolds, Feb. 27; and Adventure in Africa, Muriel Deusing, May 1.

Presented by leading naturalists, the lectures will be held in Love Library Auditorium.

Blue Print Meeting

A meeting for freshmen, sophomore or junior engineering students interested in the Nebraska Blue Print will be held in Stout Hall, Rm. 105 at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Midwest Males Sing Closing Hour Blues

Those males who are continually complaining about the University's closing hours for women should be appeased a little by the following survey taken by the Iowa State Daily.

The survey shows that the University's closing hours are about the same as those of the other Midwest colleges. Minnesota and Northwestern universities boast weekend deadlines of 2 a.m. Midnight is the deadline on week nights for all coeds, freshmen included.

Closing hours at Iowa State are the earliest among the colleges in the poll—midnight on Friday and 12:30 on Saturday night.

Saturday the University football squad gave students a reason to be proud to be Husker football fans.

The Daily Nebraskan now challenges these same students to increase spiritual and financial support to its athletic teams.

Efforts to encourage membership in the Extra Point Club among students showed poor results last week. Funds donated to this drive would be used to provide grant-in-aid to University athletes.

$15,000 Goal

Another drive has been started in Lancaster County and Lincoln by a group of local businessmen. They are striving toward a goal of more than $15,000.

The Daily Nebraskan staff has a 100% membership in the Extra Point Club, including adviser Dr. Robert Cranford.

The Nebraskan therefore challenges every other campus organization to equal this accomplishment.

Core Groups

This challenge is especially directed toward Corn Cobs, Tassels, and sororities and fraternities, who are supposedly the core organizations in providing backing for Husker teams.

The Nebraskan will publicize the names of any organizations which attain 100% membership. Bill McQuistan, yell king, is in charge of the campus campaign.

The Extra Point Club was originated last year to help in the recruiting of freshman athletes for the University. Its $5,000 collection during last season aided the athletic department in providing athletic scholarships for 60 frosh.

'Parlez-Vous?'

Kids Solve Language Barrier

Should you be greeted by a six-year-old with a gay, "Bonjour," as you pass near Burnett on the way home from classes, take it in stride. It is just the University's answer to the increasingly great need for linguistic ability.

If you joined the six-year-old, you might discover that all the French and Spanish classes held in Burnett are not on a college level. This year Mrs. Maria Moreno, a graduate student from Costa Rica and former registrar in a Cuban college, and Genevieve Rebsomen, a French student from Alsace who assisted last year in conversational laboratories, will be teaching Spanish and French to children ranging in age from six to nine.

The children will be taught to speak simple phrases by use of pictures, games, songs and a teacher who speaks as little English as possible in class.

If you are a typical American, you probably first learned a foreign language in high school or took it initially in college.

Yet many educators feel languages can be more easily learned as a child when speech patterns are not entirely formed.

Science seems to agree with the educators. Wilfred P. Infield, neurologist, maintains that children imitate sounds more accurately than adults. The brain, which controls the ability to imitate, has not yet formed a language pattern.

The program of teaching languages at the elementary level began in Lincoln in 1951. Interest in the University's experimental classes proved to be much greater than anticipated. Language classes were initiated in four of Lincoln's elementary schools.

In addition, textbooks designed especially for this level teaching were prepared by members of the romance languages department.

NU Coed Reigns At Korn Karnival

The University added a new beauty queen to its list of royalty when Susan Stone was crowned Korn Karnival queen in Plattsmouth Friday.

Miss Stone, a member of Alpha Xi Delta and a senior in elementary education, also holds the titles of Miss Cass County and Miss Weeping Water.

Approximately 4,000 persons attended her coronation, a part of the three-day festival which takes note of the coming corn harvest in the Plattsmouth area.

Yearbook Selling 'Fair'—Schrag

Cornhusker sales are going "pretty fair," according to Larry Schrag, Cornhusker business manager.

He added that an actual count of the books sold was not available because workers had not turned in their books yet.

The 1959 Cornhusker will feature 16 color pages this year, Schrag said. Only four color pages were in the book last year.

Dr. Guthrie Wins Psych Gold Medal

Dr. Edwin Guthrie, a 1907 University graduate, has been presented with the Gold Medal Award of the American Psychological Foundation at Washington, D. C.

Dr. Guthrie is the third scientist to be so honored by the Foundation. The award was made at a meeting of the American Psychological Assn. for his "distinguished contribution to psychology."

A member of the Washington University faculty since 1914, Dr. Guthrie is professor emeritus of psychology and dean emeritus of the Graduate School at the University of Washington.

He received an honorary doctor's degree from the University of Nebraska in 1945.

Dr. Guthrie's sister, Mary Guthrie, is a member of the home economics staff at the University.

Hardin To Speak At Faculty Dinner

New faculty members will be guests at the annual faculty dinner in the Union ballroom Tuesday.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin will address the group. The dinner will be held at 6:30 p. m. for all full-time academic-administrative staff members.

Tickets are $1.50 and new faculty members are admitted free, according to A.C. Breckenridge, dean of faculties.

Larry Lusk of the music department will play the piano and William Allington of the plant pathology department will be master of ceremonies.

Crawford Nibler of agricultural extension and Edward Schmidt of the economics department will be recognized for 29 years of service. Names of faculty members who have retired this year will be read.

University Demo Plans Crystallize

Democratic University students, 75 strong, have made the first plans for reorganizing a University Young Democrats Club.

Temporary officers elected at the first meeting Thursday were: Biff Morrison, chairman; Pete Riddleburger, vice-chairman; and Ingrid Leder, secretary-treasurer.

Morrison is a senior in Business Administration and a member of Sigma Chi. Riddleburger is a member of Delta Upsilon and a junior in Arts and Sciences. Miss Leder is an Alpha Xi Delta and a sophomore in Arts and Sciences.

A constitution committee was also selected. The committee must submit a constitution to the Student Council before the club can become an actuality.

Members of the committee are Marcia Ray, Don Ferguson, Terry Behringer, Riddleburger and Leder.

Mert Bernstein, professor of law and former administrative assistant to Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, addressed the group.

He stressed the importance of two active parties in the process of making the two-party system work.

Lommason To Attend Convention

Dr. Robert Lommason, assistant professor of botany and vice president of the Assn. of Midwest College Biology Teachers, will attend the second annual conference of the association Oct. 10-11 on the Western Illinois University campus at Macomb, Ill.

The theme of the conference will focus on the training of biology teachers for secondary schools and requirements for teachers as listed in state offices of education.

The conference also will include a number of discussion groups relating to current problems in the teaching of subjects in the field of the biological sciences.

Physics Colloquium Dr. Theodore Jorgensen, professor of physics, will be the featured speaker at the Physics Colloquium at 4:15 p.m. Thursday in 211 Brace Laboratory.

Dr. Jorgensen will speak on "The Penetration of Charged Particles in Matter," a report on the international conference at Gatlinburg, Tenn.
