

Pep Clubs Boost Point Club Drive

Tassel, Cob Signups Grow, Organized Houses Lagging

Tassels President Georganna Humphrey and Corn Cob president Larry Schrag have expressed optimism that their organizations will reach 100 per cent membership in the Extra Point Club.

Recognition Granted to Physics Dep't

The University's physics department was recognized for its contributions to the field of nuclear science last week.

Dr. Theodore Jorgensen, professor of physics, was one of 25 speakers at a conference on the problems of energy loss suffered by heavy and light particles passing through matter.

Sponsored by the National Research Council, the conference at Gatlinburg, Tenn., was attended by some 50 invited authorities in the field, who had contributed the most to the area in study.

Dr. Jorgensen presented two papers. One was "Measurements Concerning the Negative Helium Ion," by Jorgensen and Chris Kuyatt of Grand Island, a doctorate candidate; the other, "The Stopping Power of Some Solid Hydrocarbons and Helium Ions," by Donald C. Lorents, a former NU student, and Dr. Edward J. Zimmerman, associate professor of physics.

Besides the U.S., other nations represented at the meeting were Canada, Denmark, England, France, Switzerland, Poland, Japan and India.

"and I feel that all of them will belong before the drive is over."

Half Paid
She estimated that half of the Tassel organization belonged now to the Extra Point Club.

"Of course, many of the girls were already members before Monday's meeting," she added.

Schrag said that an estimate of the number of memberships sold by Corn Cob workers was impossible because workers were still selling the memberships.

"I think we'll get 100 per cent membership," he added. Al Krizelman, cheerleader, reported that the drive was still not getting very good support from the student body.

No Sales

"Excepting for Tassels and Cobs, we're not selling too many student memberships," he said. "If fraternities, sororities and organized houses would get 100 per cent behind the drive too, I think the whole University would back it."

Out-state and Lancaster county sales were reported "going very good", by Bob Wagner, president of the Extra Point Club.

"Last year we gave $4,500 to the University athletic department," he said, "and we're trying to make it at least $15,000 this year."

At least half of this amount will come from Lancaster county, he said.

No Close

No closing date for the drive has been set, and a final tally of money collected will probably not be available until the end of the football season, according to Wagner.

Extra point memberships may be obtained from members of Corn Cobs or the yell squad.

Mortar Board—Scholastic Minimum Upped Again

The Black Masque Chapter of Mortar Board has voted to raise the minimum scholastic average for membership to 6.5.

This is in keeping with their selection criteria, scholarship as well as leadership and service.

It was pointed out by Dean Snyder at the meeting Wednesday that this is still below the average required by many of the groups in the national honorary.

Several years ago the chapter began raising the average from the original 6. Last year's Mortar Boards were required to have at least a 5.4 average to be considered for membership.

"Our requirements before were just barely above the minimum requirements of National Mortar Board," Nancy Copeland, Mortar Board president said, "and now they are more in keeping with other chapters in the nation."

Mortar Board, senior women's honorary, selects its members from junior girls who are campus leaders and scholars.

Campus Parking Faces Thorough Investigation

Student Council Requests Copies of All Constitutions

By John Hoerner

A thorough investigation of campus parking is in the offing.

Jack Nielson, chairman of the Student Council parking committee placed a motion before the Council Wednesday calling for complete investigation of the parking problem.

The motion passed unanimously by the Council.

read: "I move that the parking committee conduct a thorough investigation of parking on the campus as it stands today. Such an investigation would include:

Nielson

Would Include

- 1 A study of the two hour parking rule on the campus, and methods of eliminating it;
- 2 The possibility of closing 14th St. to through traffic;
- 3 Some type of a survey of the present facilities to determine if they are being used to their fullest extent;
- 4 Some type of rule which would force more cars into the 17th St. lot in order to give the University a fair basis for better protection for cars stored in this lot;

der to give the University a fair basis for better protection for cars stored in this lot;

5. And any other pertinent matters relating to parking on the campus."

Council Requests Constitutions

The Council is also requesting two copies of the constitutions of every organization on campus, according to Gary Frenzel.

"We want to up date the older constitutions which predate the Student Council rules set up in 1951", Frenzel explained.

He stressed that by doing this now the organizations would be saving time in the future.

"This means that we will need copies of the constitutions of all activities, honoraries, professional organizations, and the like", he added.

At the present, many of these constitutions are illegal. The Student Council Judiciary committee and the faculty sub-committee will simply bring the constitutions up to date, making them legal.

In accordance with a recommendation from its judiciary committee, the Council ruled Wednesday that Gary Rodgers was officially eligible to sit on the Student Tribunal.

Committee chairman Gary Frenzel pointed out that under the present charter the Student Council was the only organization having the power to rule on the eligibility of Tribunal members.

Earlier Announcement

Joe Baldwin, chairman of the Tribunal, had earlier announced to the Daily Nebraskan that Rodgers would remain as a judge.

The tribunal charter specifies that there shall be two junior members. Even though Rodgers is in Law College he is a junior in the eyes of the University because of his number of credit hours.

Seating at Games

A resolution that each organized house take the responsibility of keeping their section at home football games free of uninvited guests and to see that their own members do not encroach upon the sections of other houses was called for by Kathy Roach of the Council social committee.

After a discussion in which it was pointed out that most of the trouble was caused by fraternity-sorority functions in which everyone tried to sit in the section belonging to the house with the best seats, the resolution was tabled for rewriting.

Air ROTC Sets Officers' Tests

Air Force Officer qualification tests will be given Oct. 5 and Oct. 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the drill hall in the Military and Naval Science Building.

A passing score in the tests is one of the mandatory requirements for application for the advanced Air Force ROTC program.

The tests are given only twice annually.

The spring test is open to a limited number of applicants. The fall test is open to any male student who intends to enroll in advanced AFROTC for the 1959-60 school year.

Delian Union

Delian Union Literary Society will hold its first meeting Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the Gustins, 2233 D St., according to Leendert Kersten, faculty sponsor.

All members and interested persons are invited to attend, Kersten said.

IFC May Adopt Rushing Changes

A change in the fraternity rushing program may result from Wednesday's Interfraternity Council rush meeting.

John Glynn, vice president of the Interfraternity Council and chairman of the IFC rush committee, said that the committee hopes to "revamp rush week altogether." In addition to the complete change in rush week, mention was made of having a second semester rush week and of carrying on the most extensive out-state rushing program ever conducted by IFC.

The new rush week would include more than the present eight compulsory open house periods and would double the number of rush dates. Glynn said that this new schedule would be carried out in approximately the same three-day period that the present setup now uses.

Primary reason for making such a change in rush week would be to "cut down intensive rushing" and "give rushees a better chance to look around," Glynn said. Mention was also made of a new method of pledging. The rushee, instead of walking over to the house of his choice to accept a pledge pin, would put down his first three preferences on paper and turn it over to the IFC.

The rush chairmen of the various houses could then look over the list and choose their pledge classes from it. A house would have priority on any man that listed that house as his first preference.

The second innovation that was discussed at the meeting was the possibility of having another rush week during the second semester. A committee will be set up next Wednesday to investigate such a possibility and determine whether it would be practicable.

The final problem brought up before the committee was the lack of interest in fraternities shown by matriculating freshmen. An inadequate out-state rushing program was blamed by a majority of the men present at the meeting.

Another investigating committee will be established to consider the problems of expanding the present out-state rushing program.

Interviews

Spring Day committee interviews will begin Saturday at 9:30 a.m.

Students may sign up on the door of the Student Council at any time for an interview.

Howell Strategy Planned For 2-Barrel Campaign

The University Theatre will be opening a double-barreled campaign next week to kick off a gala theatre season for patrons of the Howell Theatre.

Dallas S. Williams, director of the University Theatre, has mapped out a master plan to get new patrons for the theatre and keep the old stand-bys. And his approach, from all indications, will get the job done.

Honorary Producers

Highlighting the campaign will be the Honorary Producers contest which begins Tuesday. Williams noted that every campus organization, all the Greeks and the independent houses have been asked to take part in the frontal assault on "cultural apathy" on the campus.

And the major "secret weapons" theatre people will be baiting the public with are getting results. "I received nine replies the first day," Williams pointed out, "and each of the organizations indicated it wanted to help in the Honorary Producers contest."

Nebraska Masquers, honorary theatre group, is handling the bulk of the ticket sales. Much of the selling, however, will be left to the house "producers."

Added Attractions

Added incentives aimed at selling more tickets are:

- 1) A special price of $5 for the 5-show season.
- 2) A completely transferable ticket, which can be used for each of the five performances or for a party of five persons at any one show.
- 3) A saving for organized houses, which can sell the tickets for $4 and "keep the change" or give the extra buck to the producer in that house.

can sell the tickets for $4 and "keep the change" or give the extra buck to the producer in that house.

4) A dinner Oct. 22 at the Cornhusker Hotel for all the house producers.

5) A "formal" opening night, complete with tuxes and the announcement of the Honorary Producers.

"The theatre wants to express its appreciation for what the organized houses are doing to make our season a success," Williams explained.

These added incentives should give more students an opportunity to attend the theatre's season of comedy and, at the same time, make the theatre ticket-sales program more of a campus activity, he indicated.

Merchant of Venice

The opening show of the season will be The Merchant of Venice, starring Charles Weatherford as Shylock and Jo Couch as Portia. It will run Oct. 22-25.

Aristophanes' Lysistrata will be the second show on the bill and opens Dec. 10, closing the 13th.

The Cloak, by Puccini, is scheduled Feb. 4 to 6, and is being produced in cooperation with the Department of Music.

March 11-14 The Matchmaker, written by Thornton Wilder, will be on the Howell Theatre boards, and the season will close with Eugene O'Neill's Ah! Wilderness, running May 6 to 9.

Williams is directing The Merchant of Venice and The Matchmaker. A newcomer to the University Theatre, Joseph Baldwin, will direct Ah! Wilderness. Don Russell will handle the director's chores for Lysistrata.

Planetarium—

'Autumn Skies' Attendance Low; Fall Term Gives Little Help—Howe

"Attendance at 'Autumn Skies,' featured at Ralph Mueller Planetarium, has been low since the beginning of school," said John Howe, coordinator of the planetarium program.

Howe added that tourists and townspeople constituted a fairly large audience for the shows during the summer, but very few University students have attended this fall. Several outstate public schools are scheduled to attend programs during the year.

Music

Hi-fidelity music introduces the evening program and serves as a background throughout the show. The buildings of Lincoln's skyline are silhouetted against the theatre dome and Standard Model Spitz Planetarium projection equipment recreates the night skies visible over Lincoln during this season without the distraction of haze, smog and clouds that frequently hinder "star-gazing." Explorers and the spunkys cross the sky accompanied by their respective sound effects.

Mythical tales of the skies will be narrated by George

An attendance of 80 is expected at the meeting, sponsored by the Extension Division and the Nebraska Chapter of the International Assn. of Personnel in Employment Security.
