Nebraska Loses To Missouri Runner; Mullins Wins Again

Nebraska's cross country team fell for the first time this fall as they were outpointed 27-28 by the Missouri Tigers.

However, Joe Mullins, the Husker's fine distance runner, finished six yards ahead of Jim Sanders of Missouri to cop the individual title.

Mullins ran the hilly Pioneer Golf Course layout in 15:01.6 for his fourth straight triumph.

Scarlet Travel To Kansas; Meet Improving Jayhawks

By Charles Coffin Four weeks ago, after Nebraska edged Iowa State 7-6 in the Huskers' Big Eight opener, Coach Bill Jennings said of the team's five remaining conference games, "They're all gonna be tough."

Three Conference Losses Now, after three of those games have been played and lost, only the more optimistic of NU fans foresee even one more Big Eight victory for the Huskers.

After the I-State contest came Kansas State, which took full advantage of a few Husker errors to win 23-6, in a game that resulted in injuries to key NU personnel.

Then—after a 30-0 bludgeoning by Syracuse—Nebraska traveled to Colorado and held off the highly-favored Buffs for three quarters before falling 27-16.

Needed Breather By this time, the Scarlet definitely needed a breather. The schedule provided none. It called instead for a Homecoming battle with Missouri, the darkhorse contender for the conference crown.

Mizzou trampled the battered Nebraskans 31-0 last Saturday, winning by the largest score of the 52-game series since its 46-7 runaway in 1947.

The last four games had been close, Nebraska winning three of them.

The Huskers, who close their season against mighty Pittsburgh and Oklahoma, face only one other team within their class—Kansas, in next week's game at Lawrence.

But KU, victorious in three of its last four tilts, will undoubtedly be favored against the Big Red.

Haas Surprises Missouri's romp was accomplished without the services of injured first-string quarterback Phil Snowden.

He was ably replaced by Bob Haas, who directed an offense even more versatile and productive than Husker fans had feared.

The heavier Tiger line was able to clear the way for Mizzou ball carriers, and on defense, MU was rugged—and at times unnecessarily rough.

Halfback Max Martz, who suffered bruised hips and ribs, was the victim of at least one Mizzou "piling." (The other Husker casualty was tackle Leroy Zentic, who was sent to Student Health with a "slight concussion.")

A few cheering notes pierced the gloomy Homecoming afternoon: the gummy play of Martz and quarterback Harry Tolly, who gained 51 and 52 yards, respectively, of NU's rushing total of 177; the hard running of backs Clay White and John Minnick in the closing minutes; the dozen first downs and 185 net yards which gave some respectability to the Husker offense.

Worn Out "We just got beat," Jennings said after the game. He thought Missouri was as good as Colorado and offered no excuses for Huskers' defeat other than that they were "worn to a frazzle... tired and beat-up."

"You just can't bounce back after a game like Colorado," one Husker said in the locker room. This seemed to be the unexpressed feeling of others on the squad.

"We'll have to play better against Kansas or they'll beat us too," warned veteran guard Dennis Emanuel. "We will just have to be 'up' and beat 'em."

Schmakel Juggles Freshman Lineup For K-State Contest

There will be three, and possibly five, new faces in the starting lineup for Coach Warren Schmakel's Cornhusker frosh footballers Friday when the young Huskers entertain a pass-minded Kansas State crew.

Warren Schmakel

charge, "chiefly because of his ability as a linebacker."

Tackles Al Harants, Grosse Point, Mich. has continued to improve at tackle. "He and Monte Kiffin of Lexington, give us fairly good strength at right tackle," Schmakel said.

"Don Purcell's knee has responded to treatments and he may see action Friday," the freshman head man noted.

Roger Cole, Granite Falls, Minn. will start in his place as he did at Iowa State.

Purcell, the number one right end before he suffered a leg injury, has been on the disabled list since early in the week of the Husker-Cyclone yearling battle.

Conger Improves Jack Conger, speedy Aurora fullback candidate, has continued to impress in workouts.

Conger, two-time state hurdle champion was shifted to halfback early in the fall, but has since been returned to his familiar fullback position and is running well again.

He was an All-State fullback last fall.

For the past two weeks the coaching staff has been concentrating on correcting mistakes the Husker yearlings made in the Iowa State game.

"Offside and backfield-in-motion penalties cost us two touchdowns against Iowa State," Schmakel said.

K-St Passes The squad is preparing for K-State's passing attack. The young Wildcats connected on 8 of 15 passes in a 36-21 loss to Kansas last week.

"K-State is supposed to be big and strong and they have a good passing quarterback (Gary Kershner)," Schmakel noted.

Kershner completed 5 of 9 passes attempted for 142 yards in the KU game. One was an 86-yard touchdown play. He also passed for a PAT.

The young Huskers will be out to avenge a 31-6 shellacking at Manhattan last year.

Huge

Huge, Holdrege All-Stater will start for McDaniel, Port Arthur, Texas flash, who suffered a broken collar bone on the opening play of the Iowa State contest.

"The loss of McDaniel will really hurt us, because of his previous football experience (he played service ball), but Huge, who has stepped into Mac's spot, is looking good and we feel he is a fine pass receiver," Schmakel said.

Martin, the Clay Center, Kas., prep All-American has been only a step behind Dyer all season at the left halfback slot and earned a starting berth with his work the past week.

Tinglehoff "Tinglehoff, one of the top three centers during the fall, moved in as the number one pivot this week. The former Lexington High School All-Stater is tops defensively.

There is quite a battle going for the starting tackle and guard positions on the left side of the yearling forward wall.

At present Ken Dostal, a big (6-5, 220), fast (51.0 in the 440) lad from Scribner is running at the number one
