NASA Questions NU Prep Rushing Program

Administrators Adopt Proposal For Chancellor's, Regents' Study

University sorority and fraternity rushing practices have drawn fire from the Nebraska Association of School Administrators.

The resolutions committee of the association Friday night adopted a proposal to be presented to Chancellor Hardin and the Board of Regents regarding the rushing program which was said to have caused local, social, community and school problems.

The committee said they want the Chancellor and the Regents to study their proposal which read:

Whereas, fraternity and sorority rushing at the University of Nebraska has caused many local, social, community and school problems;

Whereas, the present system of rushing does not present to the rushers the proper collegiate picture of fraternity and sorority life and membership;

Whereas, the social demands of fraternities and sororities are contributing cause of first year students neglecting studies;

Whereas, it is the opinion of many school administrators that rushing activities prior to actual university enrollment and first year pledging have many undesirable features;

Therefore be it resolved that, Nebraska Association of School Administrators request the Chancellor and the Board of Regents to study this problem and take such action as may be needed to correct this situation.

The proposal was drawn up because several administrators had asked the resolutions committee to do so, according to Dr. Mel Everingham, assistant superintendent of schools at Sidney and chairman of the committee.

Comments by various fraternity and sorority officials: William Bogar, committee member who has appeared before the Interfraternity Council regarding the rushing program said "I think that it's a situation which no doubt needs attention or the NASA would not have passed the resolution."

Dr. C. B. Schultz, one of the three IFC advisers, said the IFC had been working to improve the rushing program since last spring but had not yet reached a solution. He said all groups might be bearing the burden of a minority as far as implied improper rushing practices were concerned.

Gary Cadwallader, IFC president, said the IFC was "anxious to work with the school administrators to remedy any problems" but wanted to know specifically what the administrators considered problems.

Lynne Meyers, Panhellenic president, said Panhel rules eliminate a summer rushing program and there had been no summer rushing as far as she knew.

NU Regents Defer Methodists' Request for Campus Property

Student House Location Desired on 16th Street

Action on the request of the Wesley Foundation for permission to purchase property on North 16th Street was postponed by the Board of Regents Saturday.

Board OKs Uni Hospital Additions

The University Board of Regents authorized the taking of bids on the construction of two additions to the University Hospital, Saturday.

Bids, to be returned by Dec. 18, will involve two phases of construction.

Large Addition
The larger addition will cover 70,817 square feet and will cost approximately $1,800,000. It will include areas for outpatient clinics, radiology, pathology, clinical laboratories, pharmacy, administration, medical records, social service and classrooms.

In the year ending June, 1958, 33,989 patient visits were made to the outpatient service, an average of 118 daily.

The building will be financed by the 1/4 mill levy passed by the Legislature in 1953, which will run for 10 years or until it accumulates $6 million.

Other Unit
The other unit, to cover 15,236 square feet, will cost approximately $400,000 and will be used for research. It will be constructed from research and construction grants from outside granting agencies.

This year there are research projects amounting to more than $350,000, an increase of $290,000 over the amount 10 years ago.

Farm Queen Crowned At Formal

A Fedde Hall senior whose name had been unintentionally left off an earlier ballot was crowned Farmers' Formal Queen Friday night.

Jan Montgomery was crowned Queen by Ag Union Dance chairman Bob Paine. She was elected over six other finalists by those attending the Farmers' Formal.

Miss Montgomery is president of Fedde Hall. She is treasurer of Home Ec Club and is a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron and the Vocational Homemaking Education Association.

Other finalists were Merca Dee Bonde, Patsy Kaufman, Marilyn Jensen, and Ethel Oeltjen, all of Love Hall; Joyce Evans, Alpha Xi Delta; and Lois LaRue, Alpha Chi Omega.

Finalists had been selected in an all-campus election of senior women in Ag college with an average of 5.5 or above. Miss Montgomery and Miss Kaufman's names were among those missing on the first ballot. When the error was discovered, another election was held.

Approximately 150 persons attended the dance in the Agricultural Activities building. The formal followed a theme of "Western Paradise." The Farmhouse Quartet furnished intermission entertainment.

Psych Clinic Held at Curtis

A two-day psychological clinic was conducted this week at Curtis by members of the department of psychology.

They were Dr. Marshall Jones, professor of psychology, who also spoke at a gathering of Curtis school administrators and personnel on "How Society Approaches the Mental Health Problem;" Dr. David Levine, associate professor of psychology; and graduate students Fred Strider of Nebraska City and R. A. Ruiz and Tom Patterson, both of Lincoln.

The clinic, which was sponsored by the Frontier County Welfare Office, included 22 cases from Frontier, Lincoln and Red Willow counties.

Board OKs Uni Hospital Additions

The property which the Methodist group was considering for a new building is located on the east side of 16th Street between U and Vine Streets. It is presently owned by the Delta Gamma sorority and is now used as a parking lot.

Inadequate Facilities
Appearing for the Foundation, Jack Stewart explained that present facilities are not adequate to serve the 2,000 Methodist students enrolled at the University.

Stewart said that plans for the construction of a $125,000 religious center were approved last spring at the state Methodist conference.

He added that the present Methodist Student House at 1417 R could probably be sold to Phi Gamma Delta fraternity which is located next door.

Don Bloom, appearing for the fraternity, agreed that his group was interested since there was no other way for them to expand or alter present conditions.

'Accommodation' Policy
"It has been the policy of the board to accommodate religious groups insofar as possible," Chancellor Clifford Hardin said.

He continued that the property that was being considered is part of the area the University has designated for additional residence houses. The University now has title to nearly half the area planned for dormitory development.

It was decided that before action was taken the Methodist group would look at other desirable locations which would not interfere with the long-term planning of the University.

Russian Visit Wins Approval

The entertaining of 5 rectors of Russian universities on the University campus was approved by the University Board of Regents.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin said that funds will be provided by the State Department for their entertainment the first week of December.

He added that only a general tour would be offered which would involve no "specifics" that would be of danger to the security of the United States.

Caracas Geologist To Speak

One of eight distinguished earth scientists sponsored this season by the distinguished Lecture Committee of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, Dallmus is appearing here at the invitation of the department of geology and the University Research Council.

Dallmus, until his retirement in September, 1957, was chief of the research and special studies section of the Creole Petroleum Corporation, a Standard of New Jersey affiliate in Venezuela.

Free Diabetes Tests Set by Health Center

Early Detection Needed To Avoid Use of Insulin, Premature Old Age

Free diabetes tests are being given to University students, faculty members, employees and their dependents today through Friday at Student Health.

The testing is being done in connection with the Diabetes Detection Drive which is a part of National Diabetes Week. The drive is being conducted in cooperation with the Nebraska State Medical Association.

Million Cases Unknown
"There are about 1,000,000 unknown diabetics in the United States today," Dr. Samuel Fuenning, medical director of the Student Health Center, said. "This testing is just one way to discover these cases."

He explained that the symptoms of diabetes do not appear until the disease is in its late stages.

"If it is caught early, diabetes can be controlled by diet," he added. "In its late stages, insulin must be used."

Diabetes might be briefly defined as an oversupply of sugar in the blood that the body can't handle. Symptoms of the disease include unquenchable thirst, loss of weight despite ravenous eating, general itching, dimming vision, pains in chest, arms or legs and nagging fatigue.

Senility Quickened
Even mild diabetes is accused of speeding up a silent deterioration of vital tissues and bringing on premature old age.

Inheritance plays a significant part in the development of diabetes. Two precautions may forestall the disease for a potential diabetic. First of all, he should avoid excessive amounts of sweets and foods high in carbohydrate content. Secondly, he must avoid overweight.

Student Health will be open for diabetes checks from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday of this week.
