

New Union Cafeteria Slated For Opening During Vacation

Crib May Appear by May 1, Lake Says

By Sandra Whalen
Students will return from Easter vacation to find a new cafeteria opened in the Union. "Our whole theme of the cafeteria is that institutional food service doesn't have to be institutional," Duane Lake, managing director of the Union, said. "We're going to be as uptown as anyone."

192 Seats
The cafeteria, which will seat 192, will have turquoise walls, brown formica table tops and turquoise and gold upholstery.

The tray rail of the cafeteria line will be of formica with raised stainless steel bands.

"The cafeteria line will be entirely hidden from view of the dining area by a wood screen," Lake said. "We'll also have one dining area which will be able to be closed off by draperies."

He explained that groups would be able to reserve this area for meetings.

"By using this area they avoid the expense of having their food served because they can simply go through the line, pick out what they want, and then sit in the reserved area," he said.

Innovations
Lake listed several innovations of the cafeteria, among them a rotating glass lazy susan, three banks high, to be used for salad display. The salad display will be located at the beginning of the line, with the sandwich counter. Students can watch their steaks or shrimp prepared at a built-in broiler behind glass. The broiler station will probably offer four items at noon and night, according to Lake.

The line will also include a hot foods section and a soda fountain with premixed serve-yourself drinks obtained from a dispenser.

"Because of the convenience of the kitchen-area, we'll be able to do many things with food that we can't do now," Lake said.

No booths will be located in the cafeteria. Seating will be banquet style and tables, Lake explained that the seating in the back of the present Round Up Room is banquet style.

Modern captains chairs will be used, with upholstered backs and seats.

"For lighting, we're using big dome fixtures with candle chandeliers," he said.

The new Crib is expected to be opened "sometime around the first part of May." The present Crib will not be closed until the new one is actually opened. Workmen started to put in the Crib walls yesterday, Lake said.

The Pan American Ballroom will be opened shortly after the Crib.

"We'd like to give the graduating seniors a shot at some of these areas before they get out of here," Lake concluded.

ARTISTS CONCEPTION of the completed Union addition nears a reality as the building approaches completion. With the opening of the new cafeteria after Easter vacation, the addition will begin taking its place in Union activities.

'Taming of Shrew' Planned by Theatre

"Taming of the Shrew" will be the University Theatre's contribution to the Lincoln Centennial cultural week program in May.

be repeated as the first play of the summer session, both in Howell Theatre and at Pine-wood Bowl.

Tryouts for "Ah, Wilderness," will be held jointly with the tryouts for "Taming of the Shrew."

"Ah, Wilderness," is the fourth production of the University Theatre regular season, to be seen in Howell Theatre in May.

Tryouts will be held in Rm. 201, Temple, at the following times:

Tuesday, 7-10 p.m.; Wednesday, 3-5 p.m. and 7-10 p.m.; Thursday, 4-6 p.m.; and Friday 3-5 p.m.

Special interest clinics, convocations and conferences and regular academic classes make up the program for the University summer sessions.

The summer program of studies and activities has been expanded this year.

Forty-five of the 250 instructors on the summer sessions faculty will be guest lecturers in the academic and professional fields.

In addition, about 30 specialists will assist with conferences, institutes and clinics.

Eight, six, four and three-week sessions are offered. The student may earn up to nine hours of credit.

Features of the program are a Student Union Fine Arts Series, a Public Affairs Preview, All-State programs, University Art Gallery Displays, Ralph Mueller Planetarium, Presentations and State Historical Society Exhibits.

Hike One, Two, Three Shift!

The Union lounge has been transferred from its past site to the halls.

Lack of space was named as the reason for the couches, overstuffed chairs and lamps now adorning the corridors.

"We just don't have any place to put them and the contractors are working in the lounge now," Duane Lake, managing director of the Union, said. "However, we will be using the Round Up Room as a lounge when the cafeteria opens and then we will put them in there."

Apiece—Cornhusker Skeleton Exposed With 'Spicy' Section of Yore

By Gretchen Sides

With the final Cornhusker deadline drawing nearer each day, stories are emerging that show that even the University yearbook has a skeleton in its closet.

William Harper, director of University services, a man with an inexhaustible supply of anecdotes about campus life, told the following story:

Student Life

The Cornhusker, a number of years ago, had a special Student Life section. The section contained snaps, take-offs and jokes on prominent campus groups and individuals.

But in 1921 the section, which was termed "spicy," went too far for even the roaring twenties.

The book was printed and several copies had been delivered when the Student Life section came to the attention of the authorities.

Oops

Distribution was promptly stopped and the book went back to the printers where the offending section was lifted and the book was rebound.

Pictures on one page compared the legs of an active campus coed to the pillars on a wharf in San Francisco. On another page the copy with a picture was considered risqué.

'Parties Off-Limits If Not Registered'

Colbert, Snyder Clarify Procedure For Holding Functions, List Violations

"Any unregistered party is off-limits—even if it is in Plymouth Congregational Church basement," J. Philip Colbert, dean of the Division of Student Affairs, said.

He and Helen Snyder, associate dean for women, cited and interpreted some University regulations regarding registration of social functions.

Social Guide

A booklet, "A Guide for Social Events," prepared by the Faculty Senate subcommittee on student social affairs and activities lays the basic rules governing social events.

This booklet is distributed to the president or social chairman of campus organizations.

University parties must be registered and chaperoned. When groups want to have functions at what Dean Snyder called the "usual places," permission is granted by the Student Affairs office.

Off-Limits

Examples of the "usual places" were cited as the Cornhusker Hotel, Cotner Terrace, Lincoln Hotel and similar places.

Places not listed in the office of the Division of Student Affairs are off-limits for University parties, Dean Colbert said.

Permission for holding parties at other than the "usual" places must be obtained from the Faculty Senate subcommittee on social affairs, according to the booklet issued by that committee.

Registration Question
Whenever the office of Student Affairs feels there is any a party, it is referred to the subcommittee.

"Most (groups) ask for places we approve," Dean Snyder said.

Some places, such as the Italian Village, have been approved by talking to the management. If they are willing to cooperate with the University and accept the responsibility of having a function there, they are approved, Dean Snyder said.

In the case of the Italian Village, parties are allowed if the group is small enough to use the private room.

Judging whether or not a business establishment may be the scene of a registered University function is largely a matter of discretion, according to Dean Snyder.

'Good Taste'

"It can't be pinpointed," she said. "It is a matter of good taste, good judgement, good citizenship and good education."

Unregistered parties may lead to social and activity probation of an organized group, Dean Colbert said.

A group on such probation may have no social events or extra-curricular activities.

Organized houses may be put on probation for "conduct unacceptable to the University," Dean Colbert said.

Conduct Violations

Such conduct could be unregistered parties, parties without a chaperone, parties with alcoholic beverages, parties held after closing hours for women, pledge sneaks that interfere with the authorized instructional program at the University, excessive hazing, vandalism or similar conduct, according to the dean.

Currently three groups are on social and activity probation.

One group was put on probation for a pledge sneak which interfered with the University's instructional program. The group's pledges interrupted classes in session and kidnapped an upperclassman, preventing him from taking an "important" examination the following day.

"They'd been warned the year before," Dean Colbert commented.

An unregistered party at an unauthorized location after closing hours for women students caused a second group to be put on probation.

'Detrimental Procedures'

The third group's pledge training caused their probation. "Hell-week" procedures that were detrimental to the scholastic progress, the health and the dignity of the pledges" caused this group's probation, the dean said.

Dean Colbert is responsible for the decision of placing a group on probation, he said. Investigation of complaints precedes such a decision, he added.

Ag Men's Club won the booth award with "The Hanging Tree." Honorable mention went to Fedde Hall with "Hoop It Up in Nebraska," and Love Hall's "Lovely Weather."

Don't Slush; Use Dry Cars

Three University coeds have discovered one way to beat the melting slush which makes small, but dangerous rivers near all sidewalks and curbs.

One of the coeds was unable to reach the curb in front of the Union. She started walking up and down R Street trying to find a dry spot.

Two ingenious coeds, sitting in a parked car, jumped out to let her slide through and reach the sidewalk safe, sound and dry.

With one more snowstorm accompanied by a rapid thaw, such a trick may mean the difference between dry feet and drowning.

Farm Station Money Asked

The Northeast Nebraska Experimental Farm Association has asked the University to participate in a program to raise money for facilities at an experiment station.

The Association has launched a program to raise $25,000 towards construction of an administration building and other facilities at the Northeast Nebraska Experiment Station at Concord.

The Association plans to sell memberships to raise the $25,000. C. D. Haskell, Laurel, has offered to match this amount.

Members of the Association have asked the University to match the $50,000.
