The 17-16 loss was the only mingled a brilliant offense one for the Independents in with a sometimes stout defense. The blocking was good, the tackling above par, and probably most important to the fans, the Husker quarterbacking on the whole was very good.

The Red quarterbacks, Tom Karamer, Ron Gilbreath, and Jerry Levy, and the White quarterbacks, Dean Cozine, Ron Meade, and Fred Henning, all shined with excellence either via the passing lanes or running or both.

In the line it was Darrell Cooper, who was a mountain on defense, Mick Tingelhoff, who held his own at the pi-vot spot, Jed Rood, who was a demon on defense, ends Don Purucell, Pat Salerno, Dick McDaniel and others to numerous to mention.

The Nebraska backs had to take a back seat to none as they ramrodded a mixture of passing and running down the defense's throat. On the Red team it was halfbacks Jim Day and eve, classes at the MIDWEST Huge, recently changed from Hairdressing ACADEMY, accredited an and Pat Class and Los an end. # From The Outside

by randall lambert

I noticed Saturday that Fonner Park, Grand Island's horse racing plant, set a new betting record. The handle for their nine race card was $230,045. What does this prove? Nothing, except that horse racing seems to grow at a pace that is making it the fastest growing sport in the state, if you can call it a sport. The Sport of Kings, as it is called, and I'll never know why because I've never seen any kings at the races besides the King of Hoboes, the Duke of the Dumps, and other such royal persons, has always held a grip on people that keeps them coming back time after time. Many claim it's the sight of beautiful horse flesh, them more than a head-to-head dual between two horses while others say there is nothing in the world that excites pounding down the stretch. Myself, I enjoy the sight of a good horse and I like to watch a good race. However, the thing that gives me my biggest kicks is the possession of a win ticket on a 10-1 shot.

Every year the tracks on the Nebraska circuit, which includes Grand Island, Omaha, Madison, Columbus, Lincoln, Mitchell, Alliance, and South Sioux City, come forth with advertisments of new improvements and of course new horses. Generally these new improvements and of course new horses. Generally these new improvements aren't much while the new horses are either two year olds or horses claimed in Chicago and are on their way down after many years of service on the bigger tracks. The new improvements generally are a few added betting windows and an enlarged grandstand (this is usually a new stairway or perhaps two new stairways). However, during the past five years several tracks in the state have been enlarged to 5/8 a mile and Ak-Sar-Ben in Cmaha and the Grand Island plant have added new concourses.

This year will see more improvements on the Nebraska tracks than any one year previous. The reason is simple, Last year a syndicate bought the old tri-State Park in Sioux City and completely tore down the grandstand, which resembled a big hay barn in the middle of western Nebraska. In place of it they erected a new low clubhouse grandstand. It was designed by the same man that built Turf Paradise a luxurious winter layout in Phoenix, Arizona. It is the most beautiful grandstand for a half-mile track I have ever seen. Half of it is tiled, while the walls are covered with murals, and most of the seating space is filled with tables where you may sop beer or figure the nags. I'll admit it is more on the country club side than the race track side to which everyone had become accustomed to in this

Last year they only ran on Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays. The Sundays were to catch the Omaha crowd which does a good share of the betting on the outstate tracks. Incidentally, the record in Grand Island was set on Ak-Sar-Ben Day. This is one of the reasons for all the improvements on the outstate tracks this year. You have to face it. Sioux City has a real nice plant. But they don't pull the Omaha crowd and they don't get the quality horses. The Sioux City management has been striving to do both and in view of this there is only one thing for tracks in Columbus, Madison, etc. to do and that is make their tracks more appealing to both the bettor and the horseman.

Here are some of the improvements being made: Grand Island This year they asphalted the parking area which did away with some of the dust and congestion it causes when parking. They also did some minor improving in the jockey's quarters and in the stable area. Omaha Ak-Sar-Ben has one of the finest plants in the Middle West. It has continually grown from year to year. It isn't in the spot that the other tracks in Nebraska are in. It has surfaced parking area, it has built a new concourse that enlarged the betting area and the eating area. It has ample seating room, is always adding betting area, and has an air conditioned dining room and cafeteria that can handle over a thousand people. Most of the horses at Ak-Sar-Ben are higher class and don't race on the other tracks in this-

Madison This year they have surfaced their parking area and built some new barns, they have lacked space for years and caused many owners to house their steeds at Columbus and daily transport them to Madison to race. Madison has also improved the track itself by adding ingredients to the soil so it will dry faster after a rain. Last year the track become so gummy after several rains that many owners wouldn't race their horses for fear of injury.

Columbus Last year they improved the barn area by making the driveways and the other areas around the barns concrete. They also made concrete driveways in the parking area. This year they are building a new steel grandstand with petting areas on two levels and a glass enclosed grandstand. They also expect to air condition the grandstand in the future.

Lincoln The Lincoln oval is hoomy and has not had to be worked on much because it is also used for the fair and is kept in good condition. During the past few years they have improved jockey quarters, enlarged betting space, and enlarged the track.

Mitchell, Alliance, and South Sioux These tracks all start their meets in the fall and by this time some of the better horses have quit running and there is not much danger of losing the others because once they have started on the Nebraska circuit and gone this far they don't change. Also most of these meets are hampered by bad weather and in general don't stack up to the afore mentioned meet-

In conclusion the Nebraska tracks must keep the Omaha crowd to keep up the standards they have thus far achieved. To do this they must keep up with the times and keep improving their separate plants and keep horse owners, jockeys, and bettors alike happy.

IT'S WHAT'S UP FRONT THAT COUNTS

The mystery is solved! Napoleon's famous gesture was just to reassure himself that he had plenty of cigarettes. His army may have traveled on its stomach, but the old boy himself wouldn't have been caught at Waterloo if he hadn't been checking the Belgian
