Scholarship and Rushing Discussed by Fraternities

Fraternity men discussed scholarship Tuesday afternoon and rushing Wednesday in the second and third of the Greek Week conference series.

The scholarship group which met at the Kappa Sigma house came up with a suggested plan for raising the all fraternity average. Under this program each fraternity man would be assessed $1 and this money would go into an award fund.

At the end of the semester, the fund would be divided appropriately between the first, second and third houses in the order of percentage of scholastic improvement.

In the percentage system, raising the average from a 4 to 5 would not be counted as highly as raising from a 5 to a 6, etc.

The scholarship conference was conducted by the IFC scholarship committee headed by Brent Chambers.

The Phi Kappa Psi house was the scene of the rushing panel headed by Chuck Stacey, Bill McQuistan, Jerry Roser and Dick Kelley. They discussed the importance of rushing the University first, the Greek system second, and lastly the individual fraternities.

It was the opinion of the discussion group that week end rushing was effective and should be opened for all weekends for out of town high school seniors.

The rush chairmen stressed the importance of adequately informing parents of fraternity activities. They discussed a possible IFC weekend to which all high school senior men would be invited.

Impartial Assignment They would be impartially assigned to stay at a certain house. The weekend would be set up with open houses and dinners so that a senior could get a good idea of the fraternity system at Nebraska.

The panel said they felt that informing rushees about some house's hotboxing and spiking practices before they went through rush week would help to eliminate these activities.

Prokop Is 3rd Nominee For 'Outstanding' Award

Latest student nomination for the Outstanding Nebraskan award is Robert Prokop. Prokop is a graduate student in chemistry. He is working on his doctorate.

Lab Assistant He has been a laboratory assistant and a tutor, according to his letter of nomination.

Prokop has been active in intramural sports, having been named to the All-University basketball team four times. He has written a column for the Daily Nebraskan, is active in Masons, Scottish Rite, Shrine, Sportsman's Club and "many organizations also in the downtown area."

Prokop's interest in school "is unquestionably high", said the letter.

Good Personality "As an individual, 'porky' is well-known as a tremendous personality on campus and is highly thought of by his many friends and colleagues. His advice is sought after with a great deal of regularity of problems which confront many people on campus. Moreover, his outlook on education has aided many people in their quest for higher knowledge," the letter said.

It continued: "He is academically proficient in several languages, a scholar and a sportsman. In short, he is a very unusual person of high caliber."

Dick Shugrue, Dwaine Rogge, John Kinnier and Prof. Robert Knoll also have been nominated for the award.

Deadline for letters of nomination is May 20 at 5 p.m. Letters should be sent to the Daily Nebraskan office, Room 20 in the Union.

Ag Union Float Wins

The Ag Union float took first place in the Western Day parade last week.

More than six hundred horses and numerous floats participated in the parade.

"Fishing For a New Union" was the title of the winning float which was built by all of the Ag Union committees. Replicas of the old Ag Union and proposed new Union were highlights of the float as two couples, one dressed in an old fashioned swim suit and one in modern swim wear, tended a fish pond.

New Cornhusker Ready Monday

No more Cornhuskers will be issued until 12:30 on Monday and Wednesday. The yearbooks are being given out in the basement of the Union.

A student must have a receipt or a student i.d. to pick up his Cornhusker.
