

Theatre awards will support a new name—Dallases. New name for the Masquers award was supplied by Andy Wolvin. The trophy name honors Dallas Williams, University Theatre director.

Top Theatre Performers
 Receiving the new awards at the Friday night Masquers Banquet were the outstanding actors, directors and production directors for the 1958-59 University Theatre season.

Bonna Tebo Hayes collected her fifth award when she was named best actress for her role as Mrs. Levi in "The Matchmaker." A grad student, Bonna also received the best actress award in 1956 and in 1958.

C. T. Weatherford and Gary Parker each received an award for best actor. Weatherford was honored for his role as Shylock in "Merchant of Venice." Parker received his award for his acting as Richard in "Ah! Wilderness," his first play at the University.

Second Dallas
 Weatherford also received a Dallas for his work as director of the experimental theatre production, "Didn't He Ramble."

Class Offered To Teachers

Approximately 20 Nebraska teachers will attend a University summer class concerning instruction of exceptionally bright youngsters.

Jeanne Delp, coordinator of the Gifted Child Program at Modesto, Cal. will direct the class. Miss Delp and the class members will work with a group of 25 selected fifth grade students.

Teacher enrollment will be limited, according to Dr. Warren Baller, professor of educational psychology and measurements.

A graduate of Stanford University, Miss Delp has taken graduate work at San Francisco and Sacramento State Colleges in which special attention was given to the teaching of gifted students.

She is now responsible for the administration of the experimental program in the northern district of California and serves as curriculum consultant on the staff of the California State Study of Gifted Children.

Union Loan Library Pictures Due Friday

All pictures checked out from the Union picture lending library must be checked in at the Union Activities Office by Friday.

A $2 fine will be levied on anyone who turns in pictures after that day.

Ten coed have been selected as new members of the fraternity.

They are Kathleen Alma, Barbara Barr, Miss Copas, Janice Dean, Miss Greenland, Hilda Kamman, Karen Perrett, Miss Rafert, Frances Spoeneman and Barbara Taylor.

'Trash' Beutel Charges Student's Letter Is 'Tommyrot'

By Marilyn Coffey
 "This is just trash," Frederick Beutel, professor of law, said of statements Sen. Jack Romans of Ord said a law student had made about Beutel's classes.

"It purports to be what some law student remembered from a discussion that involved some 40 people over a period of nine months," Beutel said.

"Even if it were true, so what?" he said.

Asked about his alleged defense of Harry Bridges, Beutel said, "I did no such thing."

Some of the statements are "fairly accurate if a person understands the law involved," the professor said. Others, he continued, are "out-and-out lies" and "tommyrot."

Two Awards

Ann Prentice was also a double winner. She was named outstanding laboratory and experimental theatre actress and outstanding freshman.

The Purple Masque, highest distinction in the University Theatre, was presented to Dick Marrs, Dr. Charles Lown, Jerry Carlson, Phyllis Blanke and Weatherford.

Nebraska Masquers Service Awards went to Sally Wengert and Steve Schultz.

Masquers Honorary Service Awards were presented to Dorothy Maxwell for choreography and to Kaz Tada for photography.

New Masquers
 New members of Masquers are Elizabeth Debo, Alice Baumgartner, Eleanor Kessler, Stan Rice, Ted Rethmeier, Bill Larson and John Hall.

New members of Masquers workers are Zeff Bernstein, Myrna Ems, Andy Wolvin, Judy Ress, Julie Williams, Judy Higbee, Gary Parker, Lynda Jessen and Ann Prentice.

Attack on Law Professors Up for Formal Disapproval

Romans Says 'Liars Not Fit for Teachers'

By George Moyer
 "Anyone who lies is not fit to be teacher," state senator Jack Romans told the Daily Nebraskan Friday.

"I'm not paying any attention to his membership in any organization," the senator said, "But if the record shows he lied, then he shouldn't be teaching our young folks."

Membership Denied
 Sen. Romans referred to Law College professor Merton Bernstein, who told the Legislature's Labor Committee that he had never been a member of the Americans for Democratic Action.

"I never implied that membership in the ADA was a bad thing," Romans said. "Professor Bernstein wrote us a letter saying he had been a member of the ADA for a while some time ago, (1950) but that was wrong too."

"If anyone wants to see the evidence on this, they can come down to the statehouse and I'll show them. It's right there in the record," Romans said.

Name Mentioned
 He then produced a copy of the "ADA News" for April, 1958 in which Bernstein was a member of an ADA committee.

"I'm sure," he said, "that these men all have brilliant minds, and are tops in their fields, but

Sen. J. W. Burbach, co-introducer of a legislative resolution asking formal senatorial disapproval of recent charges against University faculty members, expressed confidence that the resolution would be adopted.

Senatorial support of the resolution, expected to be brought up on the floor today, appears to be strong, the Crofton senator said.

Two Points
 The resolution states that in view of the amount of work the legislature has to do before adjournment, the majority of the unicameral should go on record:

1. Against "unfounded insinuations and charges of disloyalty expressed in the legislative chamber against University faculty members whose employment is the responsibility of the Board of Regents."

2. Reaffirming its "faith and confidence in the abilities and qualifications of the Chancellor and the Board of Regents to operate the University of Nebraska and to determine the qualifications of its faculty."

The measure was introduced in the legislature Friday by Sens. Burbach, Norman Otto of Kearney and Joe Vosoba of Wilber.

The action followed another statement by Sen. Jack Romans of Ord expressing his objections to the employment of Prof. Frederick Beutel and the former employment of Caleb Foote by the Law College.

Brooks' Comment
 Romans, who operates a truck line, also commented on Gov. Ralph Brooks' earlier statement that Prof. Merton Bernstein "would make a very poor truck driver and by the same token, Romans would make a very poor professor of law."

"The governor's comments... are an insult to all truck drivers in this state," Romans told the legislature.

"I think that a Nebraska truck driver knows more about the best interests of the state than a law professor imported a few months ago from Washington, D.C.," he continued.

No Denial
 "I have never denied I belong to the Nebraska Truck Association for lack of memory or any other reason," he commented.

Bernstein, professor of law and former assistant to Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, was a labor law specialist in Washington before coming to the University. He testified last month before the Labor and Public Welfare Committee that he had never been a member of the Americans for Democratic Action. In a later letter to the legislature, he said that "contrary to my recollection," he had belonged to ADA.

Caleb Foote's "two convictions cannot be shrugged off by the Chancellor as having been for refusal to violate his religious beliefs," Romans contended.

"Objection No Crime"
 "Conscientious objection during World War II was not a crime," the senator said. "Many conscientious objectors showed their loyalty and complied with the law by reporting for duty as conscientious objectors."

"This is not the case with Prof. Foote. He was sentenced to six months and again for two years imprisonment for deliberate refusal to report as a conscientious objector. Such a man certainly should not be put on the government payroll or in a position to influence our students," Romans continued.

Foote, currently at the University of Pennsylvania, was a professor of law here from 1954 to 1956.

"Nor," Romans told the senators, "can the chancellor justify Mr. Foote's presence at the Nebraska University by saying that Mr. Foote 'was cleared by a full presidential pardon.' Pardons are often given as a matter of almost routine after a man has served his sentence."

"Rubber Stamped"
 "They are sometimes almost 'rubber stamp' affairs and merely restore civil rights. A pardon does not forgive or excuse or clear Mr. Foote of his crimes nor change his views on the duties of the loyal citizen," Romans said.

Romans next spoke of Prof. Beutel, once dean of Law College, now a member of the law faculty.

"A student in his class this year quotes him as having told his class, among other things, that he had never met a dangerous Communist and that he could not see that they posed a threat to our security," Romans said.

"The student says Beutel has on at least three occasions defended the notorious Harry Bridges and has expressed sympathy for the hardships caused Bridges by cases brought against him by the government," the senator continued.

These statements and others, he concluded, "cannot be excused by Mr. Beutel merely saying 'trash.'"

Sen. Vosoba, co-introducer of Friday's resolution, told the Legislature that Romans' "whole campaign against the law professors is an insult to all the professors, an insult to the legislature and an insult to the State of Nebraska."

Hiring of Profs Mostly Responsibility of Deans

How does a professor get hired at the University?
 Chancellor Clifford Hardin defined the procedure for the Daily Nebraskan in a Friday interview.

"The dean of the college involved conducts a preliminary investigation of the professor he wishes to hire," the Chancellor said.

"He asks the following general questions about the individual:
 'Is he a good citizen?
 'Is he a good teacher?
 'Will he be able to operate effectively in the University environment?
 'We never ask a man about his politics—that's his affair. As long as he is a good citizen, we will support his rights to act as one," the chancellor said.

After this preliminary investigation, the dean of the college for which the professor is going to teach gets together with the professor for a talk on terms. If the dean is satisfied and they reach an agreement on terms, a recommendation is made to the chancellor's office.

"We examine the recommendation and submit it to the Board of Regents for approval," Hardin said. "It's about as simple as that."

that's not the issue here.

"We checked up on these men (Professors Bernstein, Beutel and Foote) and on their records," the 44-year-old Romans said.

When asked who he meant by "we," he replied that it was himself and a group of Lincoln attorneys.

"Seen Before"
 "They aren't all young," he said. "They range in age from about 55 down to 30. 'They've seen things like this before.'"

Turning to other subjects, Sen. Romans discussed his background.

"You think the University is a fine place. Well, my daughter does too. She's coming up here next year when she graduates from high school," he said.

Romans has four children. There are two boys and two girls in the family. The oldest boy helps in Romans' trucking business.

Politics Not New
 "We have about 25 trucks when a couple aren't laid up for repairs," he said. "I've been in the trucking business since 1939 when I started with my dad and brothers."

The senator is alone in the business now.

"Politics isn't a brand new thing with me either," he commented. "I've been in it on the local level for years. I ran for the legislature four years ago, but got beat."
