Double Parking Costs $5, Not $1

Arrests by Lincoln police for double parking cost $5, according to assistant police chief Orren Graves of the Lincoln Police Department.

Some students seem to think that this is a $1 offense, the same as overparking, Graves said.

The technical term for the offense which costs more is "interfering with the use of the street."

Ag Education Pioneer Gould Retiring After 37 Years Service

"I have spent 37 years working in a pleasant atmosphere with persons who greatly appreciate their opportunities."

This statement was made by retiring Prof. Harry Gould, one of Nebraska's first agriculture extension pioneers and presently the coordinator of the University's Turkish Program. Prof. Gould is retiring Nov. 1 after 37 years in the Nebraska Agriculture Extension Service.

Began on Farm
His interest in agricultural development began many years ago when he was a farm boy living in Harlan County. His father was a farmer and through his interest in agriculture Prof. Gould became convinced that education was the basis for agricultural improvement.

He attended the agriculture school until 1910 and then returned to Harlan County and operated his own farm. He came back to the University, however, in 1917, to earn his degree.

In 1918, he became a pioneer county agent in Cheyenne County and in 1921 was appointed state extension supervisor in charge of agents of southwestern Nebraska.

Assistant Director
By 1935 he had risen to the post of assistant director of the Agriculture Extension Service and became acting director in 1948.

Prof. Gould was granted a leave of absence in 1950 and traveled to Turkey as agriculture extension representative of the U.S. government. He remained in Turkey four years. Prof. Gould said he found the people cooperative, friendly and eager to learn their agricultural situation. He traveled extensively throughout the country and reported being the first American many of the people had ever seen. It was his opinion that the Turkish people make good use of their American aid.

Turkish Program
Upon his return to Nebraska in 1955, he was appointed University coordinator of Nebraska's Turkish program. This involves technical assistance and development of the new Ataturk University. This is the second year for the school, a land grant college similar to Nebraska.

In his many years of service, Prof. Gould cites two particular jobs which he consid-

First Civil Service Exam Next Month

This exam, first appearing in 1955, is the one through which young people of college caliber may begin a career in the Federal Civil Service in one of sixty different occupational fields. These jobs in various Federal agencies are located in Washington, D.C. and throughout the United States.

Persons eligible are college juniors, seniors and graduates regardless of major study and others who have had equivalent experience. Starting salaries will depend upon the qualifications of the candidate.

Other test dates are Nov. 14, Jan. 9, Feb. 13, April 9 and May 14. Applications should be filed with the office having jurisdiction over the location where the applicant wishes to take the test. The office for this district is located at the New Federal Building, St. Louis 1, Missouri.

Interested persons may obtain further information about the test and how to apply from the Civil Service Announcement No. 206 which may be obtained from college placement offices, many post offices throughout the country or from the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D.C.

ers bright points in his work. One was his work with 4-H Clubs and Women's Project Clubs. These organizations began between 1917 and 1919 and have now gained importance in agricultural education.

The second point was his extensive travel around the state during the drought and depression years. It was the job of the Agricultural Extension Service to explain the government aid program to them. He said it seemed to give them new hope for the future.

Book Planned
Prof. Gould said that he was looking forward to retirement but didn't intend to be idle. He is planning a book to be entitled "Pioneering in Agricultural Education". Since he has been a pioneer in many fields of agriculture he will be writing of many of his own experiences.

Besides writing, Prof. Gould is planning on doing some traveling and hopes to be able to return to Turkey for a visit some day.

Young Democrats Hear Conrad Wednesday Night

Although he wouldn't assure Young Democrats just who would be candidates in the next gubernatorial race, Robert Conrad promised them "wonderful opportunities" at their organizational meeting Wednesday.

The administrative assistant to Governor Ralph Brooks, praised Brooks' past eight and a half months in office, also cracked at the opposing party.

"Republicans who had office for the past 20 years are looking around the state and what this administration has done asking, 'Where were we, why didn't we do all this?'"

He said, "They're wondering why Democrats have been able to increase the budget and still reduce he mill levy. They wish they'd thought of the traffic safety program."

The governor's assistant also urged 26 students who attended the meeting to work in conjunction with the Lancaster County party.

"Your organization will certainly be a contribution to political thinking on this campus," he told the students. Young Democrats will meet next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Union 322.

Appointed to a constitution committee Wednesday were Bob Schrepp, senior, Arts and Sciences; Don Ferguson, sophomore, Business Administration; Jean Morrison, freshman, Teachers; Shirley Keszler, freshman, Teachers; Dick Youngsop, senior, Architecture; Dick Hemmer, sophomore, Arts and Sciences; Barb Langhauser, senior, Teachers.

Fix Wins Goodyear Scholarship

Sidney R. Fix of Lincoln, University student in mechanical engineering, has received a $1,375 Goodyear Scholarship Award from the Goodyear Foundation, Inc., for 1959-60.

Fix, a Korean War veteran, works part time as a refrigeration serviceman. In presenting the award, Daniel Remigio, manager of Goodyear's Lincoln plant, stated that Fix had been chosen largely because of his unusual enterprise.

Remigio also indicated that the University had been chosen as one of the participating schools in the scholarship program because of its fine record of producing well-trained employes for the Lincoln plant and other Goodyear operations.

Goodyear recently announced additions to its program of financial assistance for full-time employes seeking undergraduate and post graduate degrees. Previous assistance had been available to technical employes only.
