Reading Aid Courses To Start

The University Counseling Service again is sponsoring courses in reading improvement and speed reading.

The two courses are designed to aid students who find their biggest problem the length of time it takes to read text books.

Open To Freshmen
 The reading improvement course is open to any freshman who has taken the study skills course, also offered by the Counseling Service. The class lasts six weeks and aims to remove the pain and drudgery from reading. It also increases the student's speed and improves his vocabulary and comprehension. Sophomores or above with an accumulative average of 6.00 or better, any graduate and any faculty member is eligible for enrollment in the speed reading course.

Double Speed
 The course is designed to double a student's reading speed by cutting his reading time in half. Along with the skim-reading techniques, the student learns to comprehend more of what he reads.

The courses are free to any University student, but it is necessary to register for them in 108 Administration Hall before next Thursday.

Both classes will meet twice a week from Oct. 12 through Nov. 20.

Ten Are Taking Retailing Co-op

A new cooperative inter-college program has been initiated to better utilize courses in home economics and business administration.

The Colleges of Business Administration and Agriculture have set the program in motion to serve women students interested in preparing for careers in retailing.

National Demand

"The new program answers a demand in the nation for more trained women in this area," said Dean Charles S. Miller of the College of Business Administration and Dr. Frank Eldridge of the College of Agriculture.

This new inter-college effort will enable a student to take home economics courses such as textiles, dress designing and clothing and business administration subjects such as salesmanship, marketing and advertising.

No New Courses

Drs. Miller and Eldridge said that no new courses are being added, but that the cooperation between the two colleges will yield better utilization of those already existing.

At least 10 students are participating in the new program.

They include: Verna Boulton, Connie Cole, Jeanne Denker, Judy Griffin, Martha Hansen, Mrs. Mary C. Maynard, Carol McDermard, Rita Mullet, Judy Sieler and Mary Anne Weber.

Square Dancers To Meet Today

All persons interested in square dancing have been invited to attend the All University Square Dance Club meeting to be held today at 8 p.m. in the Ag College Activities Building.

Memberships may be purchased at the meeting by those desiring to join the club.

Nebraska Goes After Second Win Against Twice-Beaten Oregon State

Nebraska will be looking for their second win of the season when they take on the Beavers from Oregon State at Memorial Stadium, Saturday. Kickoff time is 2 p.m.

The Huskers will be minus the services of quarterback Tom Kramer and left guard Don Olson. Kramer is hobbling around on crutches with a heel injury and Olson is suffering from bruised ribs.

Fullback Don Fricke is also a doubtful performer. Faced with the possible loss of Fricke for the Oregon State game, Head Coach Bill Jennings has moved Bo Kitchen to the number three fullback spot.

Nebraska's first two games have been played on wet fields and the forecast for Saturday calls for more rain.

With Olson out of the lineup, John Ponsiego and Dale Siemer will share the duties at left guard. Ron Meade will be calling plays for the alternate unit in the absence of Kramer.

Meade is a sophomore from Canby, Minnesota, and was the starting quarterback on last year's undefeated freshman team. He kicked both of Nebraska's extra points in last week's win over Minnesota.

Seniors Duane Mongerson and Jim Moore will co-captain the Huskers in Saturday's fray. Both Mongerson and Moore are from Omaha.

Nebraska holds a lifetime edge over the Beavers of six wins against two losses.
