

-KUON-TV- Three New Series Start This Month

The month of October will feature three new series and two special programs on KUON-TV.

The first series will begin tonight at 8 p.m. It will feature Max Lerner of Brandeis University and several of his students. They will join in an oral give-and take during the program, "Seminar on American Civilization."

Women
Topics for discussion range from the "Ordeal of the American Woman," to "Growing Up in America." Each program will take up a separate topic and present the many views existing for the subject.

The new National Educational Television series "Heritage," will begin Wednesday at 8 p.m., and will be seen weekly. Dr. Henry Wriston, former president of Brown University, will be interviewed on education and foreign policy.

The four program series will cover the development of the State Department, America's foreign service, diplomacy in democracy and education for management and administration.

Third Series
The third new series, presented by the National Educational Television series, will begin Thursday at 7:30 p.m. The programs investigate the "thin skin of the apple," and the crust of the earth of which the mountains, valleys and seas are made.

Featured in the series is Dr. John Harbaugh, assistant professor of geology at Stanford University.

A special "University Press Program" will be featured Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The program will present Hazel Barnes, author of The Literature of Possibility, to be published by the University Press Nov. 19.

Also Appearing
Appearing on the program with the author will be Prof. Robert Dewey of the University department of philosophy and Prof. James Miller and Bernice Srote of the English department.

The second special program of "Contemporary Trends in Architecture" will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday.

Student Poet Opportunity Is Offered

Student poets have a chance to have their work published in a national college anthology.

The American College Poetry Society is compiling its second annual book of outstanding college poetry for publication this winter.

The contributions must be the original work of the student and should be submitted to executive secretary Alan C. Fox, care of the Society.

On each page should be the entrant's name, address and school. Poems, which may deal with any subject, may not exceed 48 lines. There is a limit of five poems per person.

Entries which are not accepted will be returned if accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The student will retain literary rights to the material, but the Society cannot compensate students for poetry which is published.

All entries must be post-marked not later than midnight, Dec. 1.

WAF Officer Is Here Today

Capt. Virginia Rathburn, Women's Air Force selection officer, will interview college senior women and recent graduates interested in Air Force commissions today.

Captain Rathburn is responsible for selecting 400 outstanding young women with baccalaureate degrees from 13 midwestern states to fill executive positions in the Air Force.

Charts, brochures and other information are available at the local Air Force recruiting office which is located in the Veterans Building, 12 and O Sts., Lincoln.

Concert Sales Drive To Begin

Tickets for Community Concerts go on sale Wednesday after a kickoff dinner tonight.

Representatives will attend the 6 p.m. free banquet in the Pan American Suite of the Student Union. They will be competing for an RCA Victor hi-fi set which will be awarded to the top student salesmen.

Each person who sells 10 memberships will receive one free membership.

The membership includes four concerts throughout the year. Tickets for the four are $4 for students and airbase personnel and $7.50 for adults including faculty members.

Last year more than 2,000 student memberships were sold.

The concerts for the year are: Oct. 27, Gay '90's Nite; Nov. 16, Verdi's Rigoletto; Jan. 11, "Voyage to the Moon" by the Boston Opera Company; and March 28, the National Ballet of Canada.

Miss February:

Playmate Is Found Charming

By Doug McCartney
The total impression was of great charm, sophistication and glamor.

This was Playboy magazine's Miss February, Eleanor Bradley.

She was visiting Ben Simon's in downtown Lincoln, and was the guest of Simon's University representatives.

"I was discovered while I was visiting my sister, a beautiful redhead, in California," she explained. "A freelance photographer took my picture along with hers and when February came, there I was."

Before this Miss February had been a guide in a large laboratory in Chicago. She was born and raised in Illinois, with two brothers and three sisters. All of the girls are now models.

Surprisingly Miss Bradley is 5'8" tall, and when on heels towers close to the six-foot mark. But she finds it doesn't "give me many problems", which should be a consolation to tall girls.

For any girls who might have ambitions of being a Playmate, Miss adds some of the qualifications.

"The most important things are personality and good looks. But the editors prefer the girl to look 'human,' not like some sultry siren a man would feel uncomfortable with. She should look like someone you would like to be with."

Promotional Staff
"To be a Playmate is one of the most sought after steps to a modeling career," she said.

Miss February is now working on Playboy's secretarial and promotional staff. She is one of two Playmates that live in the Midwest. Most of them, she said, come from the coasts.

She has met most of the personnel of the magazine.

"Shel Silverstein is the nation's only foreign correspondent cartoonist," she laughed. "He walked in to the editor's office one day, threw some of his drawings on the desk, and asked how he liked them."

The staff went crazy over them and he has been one of our most popular contributors ever since."

Ambitions
Miss February's ambitions include the theater and singing. She is taking drama and voice lessons. Her job now, she said, is a far cry from the one she had in high school, where she was a checker in a grocery store.

"The magazine has a TV show coming up," she stated. "It's going to be called the Playboy Penthouse, and have an informal, cocktail party atmosphere."

Featured will be many of the jazz players from the magazine's annual jazz poll, prominent guests and stars and many other attractions. The first show is Oct. 24, Miss Bradley said.

"Something New"
Since most of the work in Playboy magazine comes from contributors, top prices are paid. The Playmate scout, for instance, receives about $200 for the spread picture and the girl, $500.

Stories receive as high as $2,000. The editors are looking for "something new," especially in fiction.

Above all, quality is stressed, finished Miss February.

"Very Bashful"
After stepping aside hurriedly several times during the interview to avoid being trampled by groups of eager males, and watching Miss February talk with them, the representative of the Daily Nebraskan squeezed in one last question, "How do the college boys react when they talk with you?"

"Actually, they're all very bashful," she laughed. "When they're in a group they do a lot of loud blustering, but by themselves they prove that it's mostly blow, and really are rather shy."

Deutschland Choir Visit Set Sunday

A 48-voice West German choir will present a concert Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Student Union.

Known as the Student-Madrigal Choir of Munster University, the group is composed of both men and women. The organization was started by Mrs. Herman Kramm, also their director, to strengthen friendships between German families and students and those of other nations.

There is no admission charge for the concert.

Supported by the government of the Federal Republic of Germany, the Choir has given concerts in Holland, Switzerland, Italy, Austria and France.
