

ART BUILDING—The old Administration building will soon be torn down to make room for a new art building.

Old Ad. To Be Removed

The Board of Regents Wednesday authorized Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin to solicit $250,000 in private funds to compensate for the removal of the old Administration Building and for use towards the construction of a new art department building. The new art department building would be located adjacent to the proposed $2.5 million Sheldon Art Gallery, which is being designed by Architect Phillip Johnson of New York City.

U.S. Research Grant Starts Blood Study

A University research study to assist in determining the effect of protein on the cholesterol content of a person's blood will be financed by the U.S. Agricultural Research Service. The University's Board of Regents accepted the $23,014 grant Wednesday in a meeting at Scottsbluff. Fat in Diets The research will be under the direction of Dr. Hellen Linksviler, professor home economics. She said that the amount and type of fat in American diets are thought by some to be responsible for certain metabolic disorders, such as high blood pressure, harden-

Prof. Cole Quits After 44 Years

Will Devote Time to Firm The Board of Regents Wednesday accepted the retirement of Dana Cole, professor of accounting who has served on the faculty for 44 years. An authority in taxation and accounting, Prof. Cole received his Bachelor's degree from the University in 1915 and his Master's Degree in 1919 from Columbia University. A native of Neligh, he began teaching at the University in 1915 and rose through the ranks to full professor, a promotion he received in 1937. After World War II, Prof. Cole taught a part-time schedule. In 1958, he resumed full-time teaching. He is author of the textbook, "Beginning Accounting," which was used by several universities and colleges. Prof. Cole plans to devote full time to his accounting firm in Lincoln.

Downs Are Out; No Figures Yet

All down slips have been mailed, according to Lewis Fowles, assistant dean of student affairs. Fowles said Thursday some late downs turned in by instructors will not be mailed to students. Students expecting them, but not receiving the downs, should check with their instructors. Exact figures are not available on how many downs went out, but Fowles said he would be able to make an estimate early next week.

Parade Titles Announced

17 Floats To Vie for Homecoming Honors Seventeen organizations will be competing for honors in this year's annual Homecoming Parade. The parade, which will be held Saturday morning, Oct. 31, will feature 17 floats. It also will include a color guard provided by ROTC drill units, the University marching band, the Corn Cob man, cheerleaders, a Tassels publicity car, ROTC drill units and the University High marching band. The 1959 Homecoming Queen, her attendants and last year's queen will ride on the Tassels float. Floats entered in competition include: "Devotion to Democracy," "N" Club; "It's in the Bag," Varsity Dairy Club; "You Beat 'em, We'll Fix 'em," Red Cross; "Hit 'em Hard in the End Zone," Block and Bridle Club; "He's Sooner Born, He's Sooner Bred and Now That Sooner Is Really Dead," University Builders; "Wreck the Sooners," Rodeo Club. "De-Feet the Sooners," Student Union; "Knock 'em Dead," Young Republicans; "Fedde Hall's Recipe for Okie Stew," Fedde Hall; "Make Those Sooners Crawl," Terrace Hall; "Topping the Sooner," Delta Sigma Pi; "Happy Hunting Grounds," Seaton I; "What Is a Sooner?," Benton House; "Oklahoma Falls," Alpha Gamma Sigma; and "Put the Sooners Into Orbit," Farm-House. Judges for the parade will be Ken Campbell from J. C. Penny's, Niles Barnard, professor of mechanical engineering, and Mrs. Mary Flansberg, instructor of home economics. The floats will be judged on appeal, originality, resourcefulness, effort and effect. A plaque will be presented to the top ROTC drill team in the parade. Plaques will also be presented to float winners in the men's, women's and organization's divisions. A traveling plaque will be presented to the honorable mention winner. Itemized expense accounts must be submitted by all entrants by 6 p.m. Thursday. They should be sent to Julie Kay, Tassels parade chairman, 415 N. 16th St. Organizations not submitting the expense accounts will be disqualified, according to Miss Kay. The parade is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. at the mall. It will proceed east on V to 16th, south on 16th to O, west on O to 11th, north on 11th to R, east on R to 12th where it will disband.

Late '60-'61 Class Opening Date Draws Strong Council Criticism

By Mike Milroy Selection of the beginning and terminating dates for the 1960-61 academic year by the Faculty Senate Calendar Committee drew fiery comments from the Student Council Wednesday. The Faculty Calendar Committee approved the 1960-61 school year as beginning

Sept. 19 and terminating June 8. Dennis Nelson, chairman of the Council Calendar Committee, told the Council his committee had lost its chance to voice an opinion in the decision because it was not notified of the Faculty Committee meeting in time. Council members opposed the late closing date because of the consequent conflict which would result in many students' summer employment. It was pointed out that one of the major reasons for the Faculty Committee favoring the late closing date was for the benefit of those out-state teachers who wished to attend summer school. Some of these instructors do not finish their duties in high schools until the early part of June. Other Reasons Conflicting professional meetings at other schools which begin about the same time as the opening of the fall term at the University were another reason for the Faculty's favoring the late closing date. Personal preferences similar to those of individual students also were listed.

After long debate over the "late date" or the "early date," which would necessitate school opening one week earlier, the Council passed a motion that "the Student Council go on record as strongly opposing the present Sept. 19 to June 8 schedule for 1960-61 as proposed by the Faculty Calendar Committee and that the Council Calendar Committee see that student wishes as expressed by the Student Council be presented to the Faculty Senate."

Three Are Candidates For Rhodes Awards

Selections Set for December Three University students have been named candidates for Rhodes Scholarships. Dr. Walter Wright, assistant dean of the Colleges of Arts and Sciences, announced. On Dec. 16 the Nebraska selection committee will select two nominees from all Nebraska candidates. The two nominees will then appear in Des Moines Dec. 19 before a district committee, which will award four scholarships among 12 candidates from six states. The University representatives are: Fred Bliss, enrolled in the College of Agriculture, who has held the Forney Foundation, Regents', Ak-Sar-Ben, Corn Cobs, Delta Tau Delta and F. D. Keim Memorial scholarships. He is secretary of Innocents; vice president of Corn Cobs and All University Fund; and a member of Alpha Zeta and Agronomy Club. He has worked in the department of agronomy and the department of horticulture and forestry. Jack K. Nyquist, enrolled in the College of Engineering and Architecture, was the recipient of the Dow Chemical scholarship in chemical engineering for the highest ranking senior. He is the holder of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers' annual scholarship award, and winner of the Pi Mu Epsilon math prize examination. He is a member of Sigma Tau, AICE, University Band, Symphony Orchestra and Phi Mu Siphonia. He also has served as president of Gamma Lambda, band fraternity. Russel L. Rasmussen, enrolled in the College of Arts and Science, has held the National Merit, Meadow Gold,

University Will Host Debaters

The University will play host to about 300 Nebraska and Iowa students from 25 high schools on Saturday for a debate and social studies institute. This institute, annually sponsored by the University speech department in conjunction with the Nebraska High School Activities Association, is planned to provide background information on some problem of national importance. This year's topic is labor-management relations. The morning session will include a discussion of this problem by Dr. Richard M. Bourne and Dr. William D. Torrence, University instructors of business organization. The afternoon session will be taken up with a roundtable talk by students on what policy in labor-management relations will best serve the American people. Following this discussion, the University and the University of Minnesota will present a model debate. The question is "Resolved: That the federal government should substantially increase its regulation of labor unions."

'Rush Day' Committee Is Planned

Council Seeks NU Open House A "Rush Day" to benefit the entire University will be embodied in the All-University Open House which has as its first step the selection of an All-University Open House Committee. The committee will be selected by the Student Council, with the Council nominating committee acting as the interviewing board for all interested candidates. Interviews will be held Oct. 31 from 8-11 a.m. All applicants who are interested may obtain application blanks at Room 338 in the Union. Application blanks should be placed in the ballot box outside 338. The applicant should also sign the sheet on the door for an interview appointment. Information Those applicants who cannot possibly make the scheduled interviews and are definitely interested should call Chuck Wilson, chairman of the nominating committee, at 5-2957. Information will also be supplied by Wilson upon request. He also stated that an applicant must be eligible according to University standards and should have sufficient time and interest. The committee which will consist of a minimum of six members, will study the possibility of organizing and presenting an All-University Open House. Three Alternatives They will then act upon one of three alternatives. They may, a) devise a plan for presenting the Open House this spring, upon approval of the Student Council; b) draw a plan to present the Open House one year from this spring, also subject to Council approval; or c) recommend that the All-University Open House is not feasible after sufficient investigation into the possibilities. The All-University Open House plan is intended to show high school students the whole University when they visit instead of just a segment. It would also enable visiting students to view the many attributes of the University that are unknown to many, Wilson said.

Home Economics Day Features 2 Speakers

Two speakers in the field of home economics were guests at the annual Home Economics Day held this week on the University College of Agriculture campus. The featured speakers were Mrs. Kay Clancy Metz, a representative of the public relations department of Quaker Oats Co., and Dr. Henrietta Fleck, home economics educator from New York University's School of Education. At an early meeting Mrs. Metz said that the American woman holds the balance of power in her hand. "The role played by women today will determine what the future will hold," she said. "Women of America could balance the federal budget if they would," she observed and added, "there are many other roles. Your job is to find a suitable one and play it well." Later in the afternoon Dr. Fleck discussed the importance of families. "When families disintegrate, nations crumble," she said. "Although the school and the church have important influences, the home is no doubt the strongest force in determining our sense of integrity, responsibility and the respect which we give to others. "One of the most critical problems of today is that these roles of men and women are quite confused—we are beginning to wonder if women are wearing the pants," she told her home economics student audience.

City Officers' Money Meet Ends Today

The third annual Municipal Finance Officers Institute which began yesterday at the Student Union will conclude today. The Institute is designed especially for mayors, council finance chairmen, city and village clerks and treasurers. Discussion topics on Friday will be "How Money Is Spent," "Physical Planning" and "Municipal Contracting." Program Coordinator for the Institute is John M. Cronland, department of conferences and institutes, University Extension Division. Certificates will be awarded to those attending the entire Institute.

Tribunal Has Short Meet

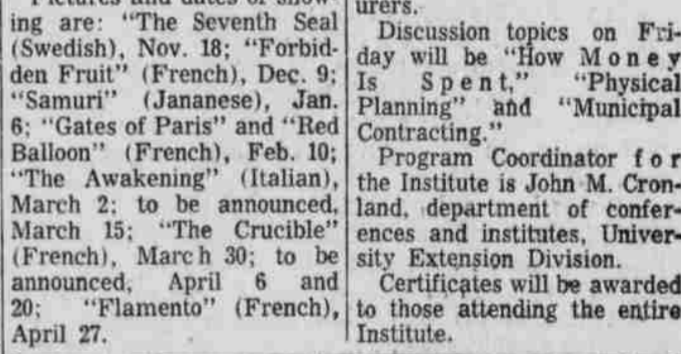

The Student Tribunal Wednesday had a hearing for the first girl student to come before it this year. The session was short, with only two cases. Both of them were closed hearings. Tribunal chairman Dick Kelley said the group recommended one "dismissal of charges" and one "conduct warning."

Activity Queen Interviews Set

All University Fund will hold interviews at the Student Union Nov. 3 to pick candidates for the 1959-1960 University Activities Queen. Scholarship, leadership, service to the University, poise, general appearance and personality will be factors considered in the selection. The Queen will be revealed at the Nov. 13 Pep Rally.
