Anybody Got Large Feet?

Shrieks of laughter and disappointment last week at the Zeta Tau Alpha house when pledges opened the boxes they thought contained sweatshirts.

The huge boxes were brought up from the freight depot, brought into the living room and opened. But inside were many more little boxes, each containing a dozen pairs of men's white sweatsocks sizes 11, 12 and 13.

All in all, the Zetas have 360 pairs of new white sweatsocks but none the right size to fit any foot at the house.

Moot Court Region Test Upcoming

Members of the University's three-man moot court team will participate in regional competition at St. Louis Nov. 11-13, according to coach Allen Axelrod, professor of law.

This year's team is composed of three seniors. They are John Haessler, Donald E. Leonard and Richard A. Huebner.

Teams from South Dakota, Creighton, Kansas, Kansas City, Missouri, Washington of St. Louis, Kentucky, St. Louis, Washburn and Louisville also will compete for honors.

The winner of the regional competition will then compete in the national contest at New York City in December. Since entering the competition in 1953, the University team has won the regional twice and the national once.

Industrial Editors Plan Workshop

Headline speakers at the third annual Cornhusker Editors Workshop this year will include a district officer and a past president of the International Council of Industrial Editors.

The workshop will open Nov. 21 at the Student Union. Mrs. Georgia McGillivray, editor of the Cargill News, Minneapolis, Miss., and John Solomon, who supervises two nationally circulated company publications for Western Auto Supply Co., Kansas City, Mo., will be the speakers.

Mrs. McGillivray is Area 7 director for ICIE; Solomon is the immediate past president.

The Cornhusker Editors Association, the University School of Journalism and the University Extension Service are sponsoring the workshop.

Workshop planning committee members are Miss Nelle Gingles, the Nebraska Christian chairman; Miss Mary DeMars, Red Cross Review; Conrad Good, editor of Banker's Life publications; Joe Hartley, Lincoln Telephone Service; Dr. William Hall, director of the School of Journalism and C. W. Bowmaster, University Extension Service.

Ed Scholarships To Be Presented

Second semester tuition scholarships are being offered to students in elementary or secondary education by the Nebraska Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The recipients of these scholarships will be selected on the basis of scholarship, financial need, character and aptitude for teaching.

For additional information and application forms, majors in elementary education should see Dr. Russell McCright, 211 Teachers College. Majors in secondary education should see Dr. Rex Reckaway, 310C Teachers College. All applications must be in by next Tuesday.

Junior IFC Will Choose A Queen

The Junior IFC will hold its annual fraternity pledge class dance at the Turnpike on Nov. 13.

The dance will feature the music of Jim Ray and his Orchestra.

Members of the dance committee are John Nolon, Steve Hansen, Tom Cooper and Jack Lausterer. Tickets can be obtained from any house representative for $2 a couple.

The crowning of a Jr. IFC Pledge Class Queen will be down this year for the first time. Each fraternity will nominate its own candidate.

The queen candidates will be announced next week. Voting will take place at the dance.

Med Fraternity Sets Up Fund As 'Perpetuation'

Alumni of the national medical fraternity, Alpha Kappa Kappa, Beta Gamma Chapter, have set up a scholarship fund to perpetuate the memory of the local organization.

This year, senior medical student Phillip W. Weingart received the award. Dr. J. P. Tollman, dean of the College of Medicine, also announced that freshman student Jerold R. Heelan received the Nebraska College of Medicine Alumni Association Tuition scholarship; and sophomore John O'Rourke was awarded a grant from the Multiple Sclerosis Association.
