Seventy-four veterinarians from 16 states and Canada have registered for a Conference on Swine Repopulation with disease-free pigs Feb. 3-5 at the College of Agriculture.

"We have already turned away 16 to 12 veterinarians due to lack of facilities," said Dr. George Young, head of the Department of Veterinary Science at the College.

"The conference is designed to familiarize veterinarians with all aspects of swine repopulation so that they may better advise and assist clients whose interest has been excited by recent farm press articles. The production of disease-free pigs is a job for persons with high skills," he said.

Plan To Prorate IFC Ball Costs

The plans for this year's $2600 Interfraternity Council Ball are nearing completion, according to IFC social chairman, Ben Priebe.

This year the Ball will star

Woody Herman's band and will be at the Pershing Auditorium.

Extend Hours

The planned date is March 18 with the Ball lasting from 9 p.m. to 1 p.m., which means an extension on coed hours will have to be made.

"This year the IFC has revised plans for financing the Ball," said Priebe after being questioned about last year's $300 loss.

He went on to say that the IFC plans to charge each fraternity a certain amount before the night of the Ball, tentatively estimated at $2 per member, with the IFC using this money as a budget to hold a big event to which all fraternity members would be invited.

More Interest

"By making every fraternity member buy a ticket before the Ball, it is assumed that more interest will be shown in attending," said Priebe. "It will also keep the IFC from suffering the losses it has in the previous years."

After paying this prorated fee, each fraternity member will receive two tickets, which will be shown along with the student I. D. card at the entrance to Pershing that evening. Priebe said that this will insure that only fraternity members will get in.

The IFC hopes to submit the plans for the Ball to Dean Hallgren's office sometime this week for final approval.

Homemaking Majors Will Help Teach

Twenty-eight senior girls majoring in vocational homemaking at the University will become student teachers in 14 Nebraska high schools for half the second semester, beginning this week.

Home economics teaching centers have nearly doubled in number over 1955, reflecting an increase in enrollment of vocational homemaking education students at the college level, reported Dr. Rhea Keeler of the University's department of vocational education.

The students will receive college credit for their stint at teaching homemaking in the high school centers. Under an agreement with the University, the regular high school vocational home economics teacher will act as supervisor during the students' teaching period.

Schools were selected as teaching centers because of outstanding quality of the teacher and program offered, Dr. Keeler explained.

Communities Aid Crop Research

Nebraska communities have pledged $30,000 to support canning crops research at the University according to Dr. J. O. Young, chairman of the Department of Horticulture and Forestry.

"Agricultural leaders in the state believe that research on vegetable crops might help Nebraska attract a substantial share of the nation's billion dollar vegetable canning industry," Dr. Young noted.

Money pledged for research will make it possible to establish at least two crop testing districts in central Nebraska.

Communities contributing are: Grand Island, Kearney, Cozad, Overton, Lexington and Gothenburg.

Nebraskan Coffee To Be Held Friday

Sororities May Initiate Over 200

A tentative poll of sorority pledges who succeeded in rating an "almighty five" grade average this semester revealed more than 200 girls reached this goal required for sorority initiation.

This figure is approximately two thirds of the number of girls pledged in the fall. Sigma Kappa and Delta Delta Delta estimated 100 per cent initiation. All sororities indicated well above 50 per cent of their pledge classes made their grades.

The number of pledges making a 7.5 average or above was estimated at more than 18. Freshmen women with an average of 7.5 or above are possible candidates for Alpha Lambda Delta, freshmen women's scholastic honorary.

The estimates were:

KUON Plans To Televis Grad Course

An experimental television-correspondence course in audio-visual education will be carried over KUON-TV at 9 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays and at 6:30 p.m. on Thursdays beginning Feb. 9.

It will be the nation's first TV-correspondence course carrying graduate school credit. It will be given by seven leading audio-visual educators in the country, including Wesley Meierhenry, University professor of history and principles of education.

The University will be the first of five universities to present the course.

Dr. John Weaver, dean of the Graduate College, said the 200-level course will be further evaluated after completion, but that graduate college credit will be accepted for successful completion of the course.

Miller To Head University AAUP

Dr. James E. Miller Jr. has been elected president of the University chapter of American Association of University Professors succeeding Niles H. Barnard.

Dr. Miller is a professor and chairman of the English Department.

Other officers elected are: vice president, Dr. Albin T. Anderson; secretary, Dr. Michael G. Boosalis, and treasurer, Dr. Mary L. Mielenz.

Dr. David Dow was elected to the executive committee.

Corn Crib the rest of this week, according to Don Epp, publicity chairman.

Dramatics director of the show will be Mrs. Bonna Tebo Hayes, who directed the KK Fall Revue in December.

Parts available in the show include three male leads, two female leads, 15 minor singing parts, a 12-member chorus, 12 dancers and two speaking parts with no singing required.

Epp said that those trying out for leads in the show should be prepared to sing a solo from any musical comedy of their choice.

Students trying out for chorus parts should have had some group singing experience, he added.

Some type of appropriate clothing should be worn by those competing for the dancing parts.

"The Pajama Game" ran for 1,063 consecutive performances in New York, with a second company touring for two years.

Columbia Records presented the original cast in a best-selling recording of the show and the original book went into a paperback reprint called "Pajama."

Major hits included in the show include "Hey, There," "Small Talk," "Steam Heat" and "Bernardo's Hideaway."

Kosmet Klub President Vern Feye said, "We're looking forward to a really fine show. We feel very fortunate in obtaining such an outstanding director," he added.

"The Pajama Game should have lots of student appeal," he noted. Feye urged students to support the show by their attendance.

Late Fees Collected At Adminky

The big rush is on at Administration Hall as University students hurry to complete their registration.

Graduate students may register till Saturday noon without paying the late registration fee of $3. Undergraduates who failed to register last semester may do so now but must pay the late fee. This includes new and transfer students.

All students must be registered by Saturday, Feb. 13.

According to Mrs. Irma Laase, assistant registrar, this is also a busy time for drop and adds. She estimated 750 drop and adds are processed during the first three days of a new semester.

In order to drop or add a student must first contact his advisor.

Both the advisor and the dean of the college must sign the slip. The drop and add slip is then turned in at the main desk in the Administration building a new class card issued to the student.

Newcomer Total Will Push 5000

Approximately 400-500 new students are expected to register at the University by the Feb. 13 registration deadline.

This figure includes new, returning, and transfer students.

According to Dean Lee Chatfield, director of junior division, approximately 100 new freshmen are expected.

One hundred transfer students are expected and the balance of 300 will consist of returning students.

Dean Chatfield said the males outnumber the females by five to one among the new students compared to the ratio of two to one at the beginning of the 1959-60 school term.

The expected number of new University students is somewhat smaller than last year's second semester figure, the Dean added.

'Call Is Out' For Musicians

The Music department is searching the campus for prospective members for the university symphonic and collegiate bands.

Jack Snider, associate professor of music, said all students are welcome to try out for either band. They meet every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5:00 p.m. Participation is worth one credit hour on the students record, Snider said.

Even though all interested students are invited, a special call is out for any student who plays either bass horn or baritone since mid-semester graduation left many vacancies in this section, Snider said.

Chief Red Cloud's Political Role Is Subject of Book by Dr. Olson

By Karen Long

A famous American Indian chief's role in politics is the subject of a book being authored by Dr. James C. Olson, chairman of the department of history, who recently returned from a six-month fellowship in Rome.

The book, a general historical monograph, is a study of Indian military and interior relations. The title is tentatively "Red Cloud: A Problem in Politics."

Warpath Years

Problems dealt with in the book concern the Sioux Indians during the time span of the Sioux chief Red Cloud's life. It was during that time the Indians were on the warpath and were moved to the reservations.

His life was a good vehicle with which to connect the military problems of subduing the Indians and that of establishing administration of the reservation, Olson believes.

Olson refers to the chief as a forceful leader and a difficult type with whom to deal.

A study of relationships helps to throw light on the dealings with other minority groups of the 19th century as well as those with the Indians, Olson said.

Wide Research

Material for the study was obtained mainly through research in Nebraska, Washington D.C., Montana, Wyoming and Colorado.

The interest in the subject came to Dr. Olson when he was director of the State Historical Society, before he came to the University in 1956.

Other books he has written include "The Life of J. Sterling Morton," and "History of Nebraska," as well as contributions to a book concerning World War II published by the University of Chicago, and numerous chapters for others.

Good References

The Woods Faculty Fellowship which was granted to him last year is not connected with a university. This enabled Dr. Olson to spend the summer and first semester in Rome which he chose because of access to a good reference library. This he needed to compile the information and writing of the first draft.

Dr. Olson noted that his casual research as a tourist made him aware of what needs to be done in this country with foreign languages and histories of other peoples.

He said he feels that those training for positions of leadership are really training for position of world leadership.

"The more American leaders know about the world the more adequate his leadership will be," he emphasized.
