Temple Council Officers May Receive Salaries

Student Council officers at Temple University may be getting paid in the future, the Temple student newspaper reports.

The pay scale would run from $50-150 a semester. A vote by the student body will provide final judgment.

"The first down-to-earth course in practical politics ever offered by an American college" begins this semester at Bethany College.

The new subject is "designed to bridge the gap between the theory of government and politics, and the practice."

All Bethany students are required to take the course, which is being taught by C. William O'Neill, former Republican governor of Ohio and one-time political science instructor at Marietta College.

Latest fad at the University of Denver is to be a member of the CCC-Campus Crutch Club.

To be a member all you have to do is go skiing and break a leg or sprain an ankle. Membership usually increases two or three every Monday morning.

Oklahoma University students are preparing for the first collegiate Model United Nations assembly to be held at OU.

Delegates representing 40 countries will debate and pass resolutions concerning international problems.

The assembly, backed locally by the student senate, is sponsored by the U.S. collegiate council and has been established on more than 300 college and university campuses.

Designed to promote better understanding of international problems, the assembly will also give students an insight into the mechanical workings of the UN.

Tabulation of a recent questionnaire designed to find out student opinion on possible Cardinal Guild legislation showed that 50 Iowa State residences voted in favor of an unlimited class-cut system, 10 were indifferent to it and 5 opposed.

Other results of the questionnaire on proposed legislation were as follows:

1. List instructors' names with course and section. Sixty-one for, 3 indifferent, 1 against.

2. Established a student lobby in the Iowa legislature. 49, 14 and 2.

3. Change grading system to one decimal accuracy (i.e., students will receive a 2.5 if they have a "C plus" instead of either a 2.00 or a 3.00 as in the present system). 46, 18, and 2.

Young Democrats Slate Meet Tonight

The Young Democrats will have their first meeting of the new semester tonight in room 332 of the Student Union at 8:00 p.m.

Don Ferguson, publicity chairman, said that several important items of business will be discussed at the meeting.

Play Becomes Business For Agriculture Students

By Joyce Stevens
"Play is the business of children."

This concept helps determine the program of the Child Development Laboratory at the College of Agriculture where children come for guided play.

There are two sessions daily with 20 children in each session. The children are three and four years of age and may attend this nursery school for two years if they start when they are three.

These children are chosen in order of application according to age and sex. The parents pay $35 a semester to send the children to this school.

Besides offering nursery school experience for the children, the laboratory provides practical experience for University students.

All undergraduate students in home economics are required to take at least one course involving the laboratory.

and any University student who has the necessary prerequisites may elect to take one of these courses.

Graduate students and faculty members also use the laboratory for research in the areas of child development and family relations, psychology, nutrition and sociology.

The building which houses the child development laboratory is the second oldest building in the United States created expressly for a nursery school.

Everything in the building is scaled to a child's size. The stair steps are about one-half the size of average steps.

The sinks, tables, chairs and shelves are designed to fit small children. Instead of names the lockers have pictures of animals, and each child learns which animal belongs to him.

Each toy and piece of phase of the child's growth phase of a child's growth phase of the child's growth and development.

Dr. Harold Abel has served as director of the laboratory since 1956. The two sessions are taught by Mrs. Helen Sulek and Mrs. Jean Coil.

Orphan Party Planned Feb. 15 By Fraternities

The Interfraternity Council will hold an Orphan's Valentine party Feb. 15 from 2 to 4 p.m.

In previous years the IFC has given orphans from around the state a Christmas party, but due to the number of parties given for the orphans during the holidays, a change of dates was decided upon.

Orphans, about 50 of them, will be brought in from Cedars, Tabetha and St. Thomas' Orphanage.

Assisting in the care of the children during the party will be a representative from each fraternity and eight coeds.

This year's party will include refreshments, fits, a magician and assorted games.

ELVIS IN THE ARMY

"Just another G.I." they said. But two dozen photographers recorded his first Army meal. Seventy reporters covered his first Army haircut. 400 females mobbed the bus that took him to camp. 500 screaming teen-age girls met him at the dock in Germany. The Army's attempts to pass off Elvis Presley as "just an average private" is one of the most outrageously funny, true stories of our generation. Read all about "Elvis Presley in The Army."
