

Spring Football To Start March 28

By Dave Calhoun
Nebraska's spring football practice, which is slated to begin March 28, will be known as Operation Experiment, according to head football coach Bill Jennings.

"What it largely amounts to," Coach Jennings said, "is that we are going to give the players a trial at the position they have indicated they would like to play. If these changes do not work out there will be time to realign before next fall's opener against Texas at Austin."

The practice session will be climaxed by the annual Alumni-Varsity game on May 7. The game is the feature event of All-Sports day.

As the squad moves into spring practice, there are letterman at each of the starting positions, with the exceptions

Fischer To Quarterback
Biggest experiment in the spring drill is expected to be located in the quarterback slot. Pat Fischer, a senior next fall will be switched from halfback to quarterback Coach Jennings said.

Completing the backfield switch, Dallas Dyer, Lexington junior, will move from halfback to fullback. Bill Comstock will try it at end after a freshman year at halfback.

Moving Dyer to fullback might clear the way for the return of Don Fricke, Hastings senior next year, to center. Fricke, was one of the top sophomores in the conference at that position last fall. Last fall was the first time in his football career that he had played in the backfield.

On the roster below Fricke is listed as a center and fullback. However, the first draft of the three-deep squad shows him at the number one center position.

Switching Fischer to the man-under-center position should step up the speed in this department. The coaches feel that Pat, who can throw a running pass, will make the option play a much deadlier weapon. Once in the secondary Pat has the speed and cutting ability to break for the long gainers. This ability was demonstrated several times last fall.

Meade Second
In the second slot for the quarterback position is Ron Meade, whose kicking toe provided nine out of 12 extra point conversions and three field goals last fall.

Three sophomores, figured at the moment on an equal basis, will be behind Fischer and Meade. They are John Faيمان of Omaha, Ernest Boninstall of Williamsville, N.Y., and Dennis Claridge of Robbinsdale, Minn.

The return of Pat Salerno Omaha junior next fall is slated to bolster the Husker ends. Salerno was making real progress, according to Coach Jennings, until a fractured jaw forced him out of competition last season.

The following three-deep squad will start the spring workouts:

Center; Don Fricke, Darrell Cooper and Mick Tingelhoff.

Right Guard; Dick Kostier, Don Houser and Al Fischer.

Right Halfback; Clay White, Bennie Dillard and Gene Ward.

Fullback; Noel Martin, Bill Thornton and Dallas Dyer.

All totaled there are 91 players on the roster. This total breaks down into 61 sophomores, 19 juniors and 11 seniors, the best balance the Cornhuskers have had in many seasons.

This year's squad is strengthened by the return of 20 lettermen.

Seven transfer players are listed in the three deep squad and all of them are expected to provide excellent help next fall. Latest to enroll was Bennie Dillard, who won a freshman numeral here in 1956 and was a varsity squadman in 1957. Dillard, who can sprint the 100-yard dash in :09.7, graduated from a California junior college at mid-year.

The Huskers, who had a four and six record last fall, will open against Texas at Austin in a night affair on Sept. 17.

Inside Intramurals

By Dave Wohlfarth

The current Intramural Basketball tourney is rolling right along. The only thing that seems to be hindering the tourney is the numerous forfeits.

Last week, for instance, 10 teams forfeited games. Although many of these were due to the Kingston Trio's show Wednesday night, this is still a large number of absences. Many of these teams were contenders so it's a little disappointing to see so many 2-0 scores.

These forfeits haven't halted the progress of the tourney, however. Intramurals Director Ed Higgenbotham is doing a real good job of keeping the tourney running smoothly, including posting schedules and sticking to them.

Some of the highlights spotted in last week's action occurred in the Independent games.

In the Dents opening win over the Losers, 29-23, Clayton Peterson hit 11 points and Erik Olsen added 9 to pace the Dent attack.

Lyle Comstock looked real good for the Losers, scoring 13. The Losers, a team composed of Lincoln men, were leading 22-20 going into the final quarter but were stopped in the final stanza.

The Losers rebounded better and appeared to have the stronger team before the Dents started hitting.

Law College dumped Wesley House 34-26 after holding a 20-12 intermission margin.

High scorer of the game was Wesley's Howard Nellor with 15. Law's Herb Mayer hit 10 for the winners.

Phi Epsilon Kappa downed the Clatonians 37-31 in an opening round battle. Although the Clatonians' Larry Ragin and Dean Whitehead hit 11 and nine points respectively, PEK had a well-balanced attack with Ken Ruisinger, LeRoy Zentic, Dale Siefkes and Lowell Shuman paving the victory path.

Dale Stradling sparked the Geographers over the Patogens, 34-19. Stradling, an above-par ball-handler, was hot from the field and tough defensively. He led all scorers with 16 points.

Two Intramural Tournaments are slated for early March. The Intramural Volleyball tourney will begin March 15 and badminton action starts March 21.

The double-elimination Volleyball tourney consists of competition in Fraternities, ('A' teams only), Selleck and Burr Halls and Independents for the All-University title.

The defending volleyball champs are Phi Kappa Psi in Fraternities, Gus II in the Selleck Quad division and Smith House in the Burr Hall championship.

Entries close March 8.

Six singles players and six doubles teams from each organization are due March 15 for participation in the Badminton tourney.

The Fraternity defending champs are Beta Theta Pi and Gus I copped last year's Selleck title. Individual winners last year were Andy Matison of Theta Xi in singles and Beta Theta Pi's Bob Souther and Gary Aksamit in doubles.

Spring IM Tournaments To Begin

Five Sports Open To All Interested

Spring intramurals have arrived. All over campus little pink, white, yellow, green and blue sheets of paper are sprouting up. These sheets announce different intramural events which will be contested in the coming months.

Paddle ball, golf, tennis, softball, and horseshoe contests have just been announced. These sports are open to all University men, big 1's, little 1's, fraternity men and any other person interested.

A special "Open" paddle ball tournament will begin the long list of Spring Sports. The reigning All-University Champions are Delta Upsilon. The DU's George Fisk captured the individual championship and George teamed with Doug Youngdahl to win last Spring's doubles championship.

This year's handball action will get under way March 21st. Players must enter by 5:00 p.m. March 8, in order to be able to compete.

If the snow melts the spring softball competition will get underway April 4th. Tournaments will be set up in the classifications of 1. Interfraternity, 2. Independent, and 3. Resident Halls, Burr and Selleck.

Manatt wears the All-University softball crown for 1959. Dental College (Freshmen) were winners of the Independent division, Theta Xi the Fraternity division, Van Es the Burr hall tournament.

Softball provides a little more incentive to participants. Besides getting their names in the Daily Nebraskan the winners will receive medals and trophies whereas the handball players just participate.

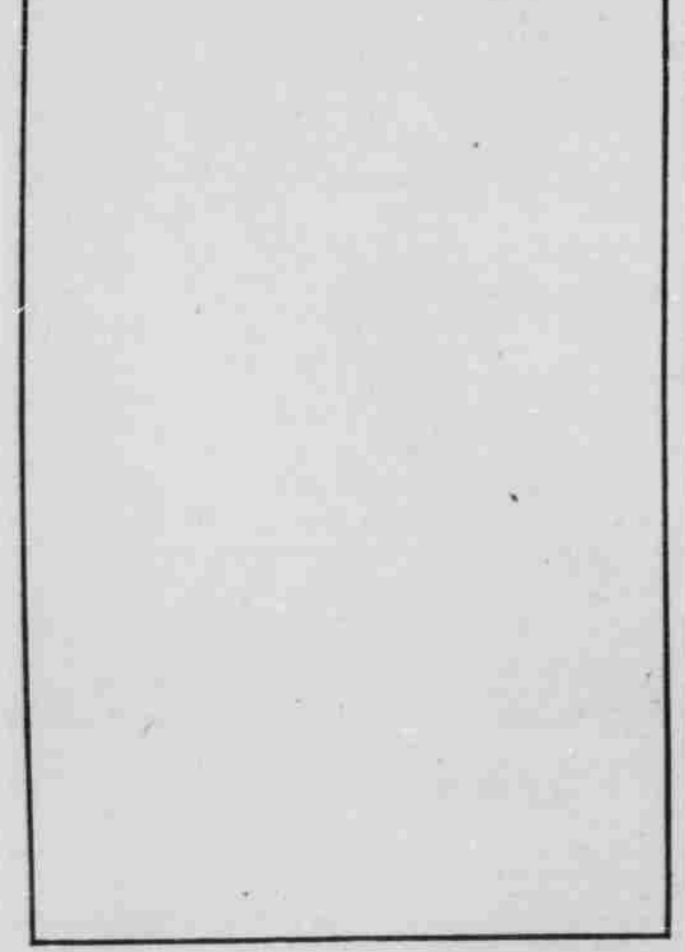

The 1960 Horseshoes competition will be only in the doubles division. The single elimination tourney will begin April 4th. "Barnyard golfers" will be competing against defending champions Theta Xi and Gus II. Last year K. Erickson rung up the individual honors.

The tennis racquets will see action again in April during the 1960 spring tennis doubles tournament. Beta Theta Pi, Gus I, and the Chemists are the defending team winners. Galen Saltzman and Stan Kraschwitz are carrying the doubles laurels.

Gene Johnson, Delta Tau Delta, copped The 1959 individual golf honors. This year's tournament will be held April 23. Pioneer Golf Course will again host the tournament. Team champions for 1959 are Phi Kappa Psi and Dental College.

The Spring sports will decide the All-University Honor Roll champions.

Iranians Capture Ping Pong Title

The Iranians topped the 1959-60 competition in the University's recent table tennis tournament.

Theta Xi took double honors capturing both the runner-up trophy and the fraternity championship.

Said Bahreyni, Iranian medalist, was awarded the All-University Individual Championship.

Benton Hall topped Selleck entries with 53 points. Ag Men were Ag College champions with a 7th place in overall competition.

The top five teams in the tournament were: the Iranians with 142 points, Theta Xi with 71, Habekal with 65, Benton with 53 and Sigma Alpha Mu with 46.
