by Mike Milroy
The University has accepted a bid to the "College Bowl."
University officials announced today that the institution received an invitation to participate in the "General Electric College Bowl" May 8.

Dean Wright, assistant dean of the College of Arts & Sciences; Ed Hirsch, assistant director of University Public Relations; James Pittenger, assistant to the Chancellor and Adam Breckenridge, dean of faculties met briefly with the Student Council Thursday for student opinion on the proposal.
The Council moved to heartily endorse and support the program and unanimously approved the proposal.
The GE College Bowl, which originates live from New York each Sunday at 4:30 p.m., will host two college teams in a battle of knowledge. Each college team consists of four undergraduate students.

Campus-Wide Search
At the present time the University is launching a campus-wide search for student talent to compose the four-member team. This search will attempt to find four top undergraduate scholars with competitive spirit who are well versed in literature, history, science, philosophy, current affairs, music, mythology and the Bible.
Dr. Walter Wright, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and Dr. Donald Olson, debate coach, have been named coaches of the Nebraska team. They will also be responsible for selecting the four members plus four alternates.

Positions on the team are open to the entire undergraduate student body, according to the coaches. All expenses will be paid to and from New York City.
Opponents
The Nebraska team will compete as challengers against the winner of the previous week. The opposing team would be either Oklahoma, University of Washington, Randolph-Macon Women's College or the University of Texas.
If the University wins on May 8, the Cornhusker team will be invited back for successive programs until they are defeated or have won five weeks.
The winning team will receive a $1,500 scholarship for its school and the runner-up receives $500 for its school's scholarship fund.

Dean Wright said that all students who have either a 7.5 grade average or have special knowledge in any one of the fields covered by "College Bowl" categories are urged to apply for a position on the team.
Student applicants must send their names, addresses and telephone numbers to Dean Wright, Burnett Hall 204, prior to March 23.
All applicants will be asked to meet at 4 p.m. March 23 in Love Library Auditorium, where a written examination, requiring one- or two-word answers will be administered. This examination, Dean Wright said, will then allow the committee to reduce the field of applicants to approximately 20 students.
He said students will not necessarily be selected on all-around knowledge, but more on specialized knowledge. He urged all students interested in participating to apply.
Dr. Wright explained that the half-hour television question and answer game is fast paced and questions are subjects, most of which are covered in a Liberal Arts undergraduate curriculum.
Special Tryouts
After the University has reduced the number of applicants to 20, actual tryouts will be held on the University's television station, KUON-TV, with the tryouts resembling the actual "College Bowl" game.
According to the "College Bowl" rules, all team members must be undergraduates at the time of the broadcast.
"As in collegiate sports, all candidates must have amateur status. Any student who has received financial reward and/or participated on previous radio and television programs for remuneration is ineligible."

Planetarium Circus Features Dipper, Zodiac, Ursa Major

By Nancy Whitford
The Celestial Circus has opened this month for a first-run play at the University of Nebraska.
Shades of Barnum and Bailey? Not quite. This "circus" is the March offering for star gazers who visit Mueller Planetarium at Morrill Hall.
'Daylight' Fades
Under the direction of John Howe, assistant planetarium coordinator, the "daylight" fades and night stars make their appearance on the Planetarium dome.

Jupiter and Saturn are much alike, but are credited with different effects and (3) the stars and planets are so far away that their radiation and gravity can have little effect.
"Nevertheless," he continued, "it is useful to study the Zodiac because once we know the constellations, we can find the planets." These constellations include Gemini, Cancer, Leo, Virgo, Libra, Scorpius, Antares, Sagittarius, Capricornus, Aquarius, Pisces and Aries.

coordinator, and amateur astronomers, Doug Keat and Wray Rominger. Both are University students.
During the school year programs are scheduled for Wednesday night at 8, Saturday afternoon at 2:45 and Sunday afternoon at 2:15 and 3:30.

A device similar to a box camera produces all of the fixed, regular stars by shining a short filament light through tiny holes. Celestial objects which change position are focused through individual projectors. These objects include the planets and our sun and moon. In addition, a disk on the moon projector depicts cycle changes such as quarter moon and half-moon.
According to Howe, the planetarium is the most accurate device available for reproducing the night sky. "Long ago," he pointed out, "the ancients drew pictures of the stars on papyrus in Egypt, carved on stones in Babylon and on buffalo skins in America."
"However, they used vivid imagination," he added, "because few of the constellations actually look like the objects for which they are named. The Big Dipper, for example, is part of Ursa Major, the Big Bear."

Moon Eclipse
The moon will put on a show Sunday, Howe said. At 12:38 that morning it will pass through the shadow of the earth in an eclipse which will be complete at 1:41 and will end at 4:18.
Some of the narrator's toughest questions are asked by his smallest customers. For example, what do you tell a child who asks "Why don't the stars fall?"
In addition some people confuse a planetarium with an observatory and call up to ask us if there will be a show because the sky is cloudy. However the largest number of queries are quite intelligent, he said.
Others who assist with the sky show program are Vale Kane, assistant planetarium

24,000 People
Last year 24,000 people attended 548 different shows. These shows normally change every two months, but March and December shows last only one month.
The next program, "Mars-the Mystery Planet," April 4-May 29, will depict conditions on the surface of the planet and the possibility of life there. Following this, the program, "Expanding Universe will portray man's changing concepts about the heavens.
Ideas for the sky shows are obtained from other planetariums and from current events such as the coming eclipse. Once an idea has been developed, an outline script is written and tryouts are held for the purpose of criticizing the production.
The planetarium, which will be two years old this month is the largest and most modern structure of its kind between Chicago and the West Coast.

Signs of Zodiac
The paths have been divided into 12 equal parts called the Signs of the Zodiac. According to Howe, ancient people held the superstitious belief that the position of celestial bodies in this path influenced the life and fate of man.
"During the past 300 years though," he said, "not one recognized scientist anywhere in the world has professed belief in the concept that destiny is influenced by the stars."
Reasons for this are threefold he pointed out: (1) fraternal twins are born at the same time, but are not alike, (2) planets such as

Principals, Freshmen To Meet

Hoover To Direct Sixth Event
Seventy four high school principals will be represented at the sixth annual Principals-Freshman conference at the University next Thursday at 9 a.m.
The conference will be held under the direction of Dr. Floyd Hoover, registrar, and its purpose will be to aid principals and their high school students who are preparing for college.
Each high school principal who has three or more students attending the University is eligible to attend the conference.
If the principal chooses to come, then the freshman students formerly of his high school are invited to attend also.
During the morning the principals will talk to their former pupils in an attempt to discover past and present problems of the student and thereby implement their programs in their own schools in the state.
Dr. A. C. Breckenridge, dean of faculties, will preside and Chancellor Clifford Hardin will give the welcoming address in the afternoon. A round-table discussion will be held.

Tribunal Expels One Third Cases

Eighty-four cases were heard by the Student Tribunal last semester, resulting in 28 students being dismissed from the University.
These statistics came from the report given to the Council by Student Tribunal member Larry Frazier at the Council's regular Wednesday meeting.
Liquor Violations
Frazier reported that the bulk of the cases to come before the Tribunal were cases of student liquor violations. In the case of simple possession, the student is usually given conduct warning, Frazier said.
A case involving the use of false identification or second offenses usually receives conduct probation, although each case receives individual consideration, he pointed out.
During the first semester of the 1959-60 school term, 84 University students appeared before the Student Tribunal. Thirty-seven of these students were released with conduct warnings, 19 were placed on conduct probation and 28 were dismissed from the University.
Demeanor Noted
Frazier told the Council that the "demeanor of the student while before the Tribunal was also taken into consideration."
He said that the Tribunal members concurred in their convictions that "a false statement by a student should be made equal to a breach of cheating in an exam."

"The fact that punitive action could be brought against these students might be a deterrent to these false statements," Frazier said. He also said that the Student Tribunal may submit a list of needed changes to the Council for action in the near future.

'Hurricane' Hazel Heard By NU YR

She told the YR's that she had been the first woman on many committee and the first woman chairman of several. "I can and like to work with men. I am not a novice."
The former United States Senator, dubbed "Hurricane Hazel" during her 1954 senate race, recalled that she had always been interested in education "because for a long time it was all I knew. I worked my way through the University on $40 a month and then taught for ten years."
On women in politics, Mrs. Abel said that she "was amazed at the number of women in county governments in Nebraska." "I have received widespread encouragement from voters in all parts of the state," she added.

ROUND AND ROUND—A time exposure catches the swirling movement of the Orchestris dance "Circles." The annual Orchestris spring show "Omnia Momentia" will be presented tonight at 8 p.m. in Howell Theatre.

Moods Make 'Omnia Momentia'

Practice and plans which began last September will bring what is expected to be the most outstanding performance done by the Orchestris groups onto the Howell Theatre stage tonight at 8 p.m.
Under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Hughes, associate professor of physical education "Omnia Momentia" will be presented in a profusion of brilliant colors and abstract movement.
From the clever light number of "Me and My Shadow," in which the performer is not quite sure if the shadow is a shadow or if its someone playing tricks, to the mysticism of the blue veiled oriental dancers the show gives much variety.
Nearly every mood that a person desires is portrayed in the two hour show.
"It gives the audience an opportunity to use the imagination in many numbers," said Gail Simon president of Orchestris.
Tickets will be available at the door.
