

Christian Council Explains Position

Editor's Note: This is the second article in a two-part series explaining the special Freedom Fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The article below provides a look at present conditions of the Negro in the South and explains the campus Student Christian Council's outlook on the Freedom Fund.

By John Elise

Since early March, Negro and white students in the South have been participating in "sit-in" demonstrations of many types. One of these demonstrations started in Nashville, Tenn., where young Negroes walked into the Woolworth Store and sat down at the lunch counter. They were refused service.

In this case, as in numerous others, the Negroes did not retaliate when a group of whites began name calling, spitting, cuffing and then boldly punched, banged heads against the counters, stuffed cigarette butts down the Negroes' collars and finally pulled three Negroes from their seats and beat them.

As the Negroes ran from the store, the whites screamed for them to stay and fight. Even though there were law officials around the store, no one was arrested for starting the violence.

In Marshall, Tex., 70 students from Bishop College and Wiley College were arrested for sit-in demonstrations. Bail for release of each student was $700, which was paid by Negro property owners, but each student is to be tried individually, which means large court costs for their trials and fines.

These two examples only serve to show what is happening in the South. There have been numerous arrests and money is urgently needed to pay bail for release, court costs for trials, and the fines levied.

reconciling all men to himself and to each other.

We view the demonstrations in the South as evidence that the living Christ is now at work reconciling negroes and whites unto each other and to God. Our faith calls us to share with the campus our conviction that we in the North must participate in this reconciliation.

We think one valid way is to raise money to provide lawyers' fees and court costs for the Negroes defense so that the separation of colors is no longer an estrangement of man's relationship to his fellow man.

Thus we have turned to the All University Fund to ask their support for an all campus solicitation. Any money raised will be given to the Freedom Fund arranged by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for the specific purpose of helping Negroes pay their court costs and attorney fees.

There are at present several different funds to which money can be given, but we believe this particular one to be the best. By designating our money in this way, we do not feel that this implies complete support of the N. A. A. C. P.

It is only recognition that their fund is the one which will be the most effective in distributing funds where they are needed.

However, no action will come from the S. C. C. until the A. U. F. has announced its decision. Further plans will be made pending their decision.

Are these gold bars worth two more years of study?*

As a college sophomore, you're nearing the mid-point. Halfway through college—halfway through Army ROTC. Now you face a major decision: Are the gold bars of a Second Lieutenant worth two additional years of study in advanced ROTC?

That question is yours to answer now—before you register for your junior year. As you explore the facts, carefully weigh the traditional responsibilities and rewards of serving as an Army officer . . .

- Traditional responsibilities. To meet the command responsibilities of an Army officer, you apply the leadership principles absorbed during advanced ROTC training. And your executive potential grows as you gather leadership experience. That's why employers often prefer men who served as commissioned officers. These men already have proven their capacity to shoulder executive responsibility.
- Traditional rewards. In every organization, greater responsibilities mean greater rewards. Thus the traditional responsibilities and prestige of an Army officer are matched by material advantages. For example, if you plan to marry soon after graduation—an officer's salary can be a distinct advantage. A married 2nd Lieutenant earns a minimum of $355.68 per month—plus substantial fringe benefits.

Need more information? Check with the Professor of Military Science and Tactics at your college or university. He'll be glad to discuss your decision with you.

*Last year, 14,436 sophomores answered "yes" to this question—and emerged advanced Army ROTC.
