The 1960 Interfraternity Council's Community Service Day will begin tomorrow at 9 a.m. according to Ben Priebe, chairman of the IFC social committee.

Continuing through the morning and ending at around 2 p.m., the Service Day will involve the participation of over a hundred fraternity men at four places here in Lincoln.

At least 25 of the men will do general clean-up work at the LARC school. They will also complete building and yard work.

More than 30 men will be working in the recreation department and nursing areas at the State Mental Hospital.

Work at the Veterans Hospital will consist of cleaning up and readying the recreational areas during the morning and then playing baseball and other recreation with the more able patients. More than 12 fraternity men will be at the Vet's Hospital.

The fourth place will be the Malone Community Center where over 25 men will do general housecleaning chores windows, walls, woodwork and also yard work.

Ag Campus Will Host 700 Visitors

Approximately 700 high school senior girls are expected to attend Hospitality Days on the Ag Campus next Monday and Tuesday.

Hospitality Days is an annual event sponsored by the Home Economics Department to acquaint high school girls with the opportunities in home economics. The theme this year is "Dial NU for Home Economics."

A different group of girls will attend each day. In the mornings the girls will be welcomed with speeches by Dr. W. V. Lambert, dean of the College of Agriculture and Margaret Cannell, assistant to the chairman of home economics.

The girls will then tour the Home Economics department. Afternoon entertainment will include a style show, the Love Hall quartet, the Fette Hall Coed Follies skit and the Delta Gammas in "Steam Heat."

Student chairman for this year's Hospitality Days is Alma Heuermann.

AAUW Will Honor Senior Women

A tea honoring senior University women will be given Saturday by the Lincoln chapter of the American Association of University Women.

The annual event will be held at the Governor's Mansion between 10 a.m. and 12 noon.

Council Hears Explanation Of NU Schedule Conflicts

Scheduling conflicts among various University organizations again caused a controversy at the Wednesday Student Council meeting.

Leroy Laase, chairman of the speech department and Joseph Baldwin, director of University Theater, appeared before the Council to explain the University Theater's difficulty in avoiding conflicts in scheduling with other University activities.

later date would bring the show too close to the second production, which is scheduled Dec. 14-17.

All other proposed production dates have been checked with the Dean of Student Affairs and have been approved.

Specific Problem

The specific problem they presented to the Council was that of scheduling the first University Theater production of the 1960-61 school term during Homecoming week and Teacher's Convention.

Laase told the Council that the University Theater was an "academic lab in the field of the theater" and it had an obligation to serve students and would like to have the support of students in its program plans.

Baldwin explained that the University Theater required approximately five weeks to produce a show. The particular date the University Theater is requesting, Oct. 26-29, is the most convenient for them since an earlier date would conflict with the Komet Klub Fall Show and a heavy rehearsal.

Baldwin said that the heavy rehearsal will be during the week before Homecoming, which would not tax the organized houses and their efforts to build displays.

Laase told the Council that there "should be a theatre production for those alums who come to Homecoming and do not wish to go to other activities during the weekend."

He also said it had been the policy of the University Theater to hold a production during the weekend of Teacher's Convention and called this production for the teachers a "positive cultural influence."

He further told the Council that the University Theater wished to avoid conflicts and adverse publicity similar to that it received last year from the "Rag" and the Student Council for producing a show during Homecoming.

Referred to Council

He told the Council that Dean Colbert had referred the to the Student Council to receive a sample of student opinion on the conflict.

John Hoerner, IFC representative, pointed out that the fraternities also staged a production during this period and asked which production was more important to the campus.

Ken Tempero, chairman of the social committee, reminded the Council that his committee had recently made a recommendation to Student Affairs that no two University productions which charged admissions be allowed to schedule the same date.

Tempero told the Council that this recommendation had been referred to a central committee of the Faculty Senate and would not be dealt with until this fall.

A "straw vote" was taken of Council members' opinion concerning the permissibility of scheduling conflicting activities on this date. Council members voted 13 in favor of the scheduling and 13 against.

'Not One-Sided'

Laase pointed out to the Council that the "problem is not entirely one-sided" and invited any suggestions for a better way of scheduling to be directed to him.

The Council then moved into interviews for the selection of two Junior members to fill positions on the Student Tribunal.

The Council Nominating Committee, which had earlier interviewed 40 applicants in two afternoons of interviews, submitted four persons to the Council for final selection: Linda Sawtell, Richard Schmelting, Tom Henley and Curt Plaster.

The Council asked each applicant to enumerate the five possible decisions the Tribunal can recommend and to explain the student and faculty composition of the Tribunal. Applicants were also questioned on ideas for improvement and reason for the justification of the existence of a Student Tribunal.

Tom Henley, Beta Theta Pi sophomore in Business Administration and Richard Schmelting, Arts and Sciences sophomore were elected to the positions.

The All-University Open House committee reported that there will be a meeting Friday with the deans of colleges and faculty advisers of the present open house programs. A conference will then be held concerning the approval of the Open House program. Tentative dates for the Open House are April 23-29, 1961.

Student Council Filings Hit Forty-Eight Mark
