

Baseballers To Meet Buffs in Twinbill Today

By Hal Brown
Nebraska's baseballers will face Colorado in a three-game series today and tomorrow on the University diamond with hopes of breaking an eight game losing streak and moving up a notch in the Big Eight standings.

The Huskers are now in sixth place with a 3-6 conference mark while Colorado is in fifth with a 5-4 record. A sweep of the three-game series by Nebraska would move them into fifth place ahead of the Buffs.

Wall Named
Husker coach Tony Sharpe will send sophomore Jan Wall to the hill in today's opening game with Harry Tolly on the mound for the nightcap. Today's twinbill begins at 1:30 with a single game tomorrow at the same time.

Wall is the Huskers' winningest pitcher with three wins against three losses. He also leads the Nebraska hurlers in strikeouts with 34.

The Nebraska batting order will have Doug Sieler (.231) at second base; Jerry Harris, cf (.231); Ken Ruisinger, 1b (.414); Ely Churchich, c (.285); Don Purcell, rf (.314); Dick Becher, 3b (.257); LeRoy Zentic, lf (.297); Phil Barth, ss (.227); and Jan Wall, p.

Tolly, the mound choice for the second game of the doubleheader, has two wins against two losses.

While the Huskers will be trying to move up a notch on the Big Eight ladder, the Buffs will be attempting to move into the first division.

Buff Southpaw
Colorado mentor Frank Prentup will probably send southpaw Jim Westervelt and righthander Phil Word against Nebraska today.

Westervelt won his third consecutive Big Eight game last weekend with an 11-7 win over Kansas State.

The Buffs have five regulars hitting over .300 while Nebraska has four. Catcher Gordon Wiss is leading the Colorado hitters with a .372 average. He has reached base 40 times in 67 appearances at the plate.

Gene Lenderman is the Buffalo fence-buster with seven home runs and three doubles. He is hitting .321.

The probably Colorado batting order will be: Jim Brunkhardt, ss (.245); Nick Counter, lf (.283); Gordon Wiss, c (.372); Gene Lenderman, cf (.321); Ben Brauch, 3b (.348); Don Gunsauls, 1b (.308); Gale Weidner, rf (.311); Ray Corbetta, 2b (.214) and Westervelt.

Huskers To Run In Drake Relays

By Chip Wood
Ten members of the Nebraska track squad will journey to Des Moines, this weekend to participate in the Drake Relays.

Coach Frank Sevigne left Thursday afternoon with Jerry Marples, Richard Kier, Joe American Horse, and Joe Mullins, all members of the four mile relay team which competes today. The rest of the squad will leave today.

The Huskers will participate in two other relays, the 480 yard shuttle hurdles, and the distance medley. Leroy Keane Steve Smith, Milton Haedt, and Bill Fasano will be on the hurdles team and Keane, Ken Ash, Mullins, and American Horse will comprise the distance medley.

The only Husker thinned to enter in an individual event is Jim Kraft. Kraft has gone 14-4 in the pole vault this year and according to Ike Hanscom, assistant coach, he could "be in the money."

Nebraska is one of five schools to be given an award for having won the largest number of relays and individual events since the inauguration of the Drake Relays. The other four schools are Iowa, Texas, Kansas, and Illinois.

Student's Night

Tonight will be student's night at Sherman Field as the Lincoln Chiefs finish their three-game home stand against the Sioux City Soos. Game time is 8 p.m.

Students will be admitted to the grandstand for 50c upon presentation of their University identification card.

One, Two, Three—Push!

AWAY WE GO—Two unidentified Nebraska gridgers give assistant coach Don Scarborough a ride on the blocking dummy during a Husker workout. The Huskers are in their second week of drills and will meet the Alumni on an All-Sports Day game May 7.

Gridders Schedule Scrimmage Saturday

The Nebraska football team will hold its second full-game scrimmage of the spring Saturday at 3 p.m. The Huskers will be in full uniform for the intrasquad battle.

Coach Bill Jennings sent his squad through a 45-minute scrimmage session Wednesday, giving special praise to the linemen.

Jennings singled out center Mick Tinglehoff, Lexington junior, for his defensive performance. Tinglehoff alternated at center with Don Fricke and Darrell Cooper.

Tackles Al Fischer and Dick Krause also looked good in the Wednesday practice.

Top back of the day was halfback Gene Ward.

The Husker line corps suffered a serious blow this week when Don Olson, All-Big Eight selection as a guard last year, announced he will not return to school next year.

DIANA MAXWELL LOOKS AT LIFE

CAMPUS CHESS GAME

Phones in the girls' dorm on the Berkeley campus go off at 11 p.m., but for the coed who knows Morse's system, coffee dates can still be arranged after the incommunicado hour. It's all because of the nice planners who placed the eight-story men's dorm directly across from the eight story girl's dorm.

Communication got underway formally when both sides discovered that the 64 windows of the buildings made perfect chessboards. LIFE followed the game, which consisted of one move a day. (The men won in the 37th play.)

BIG BOUNCE

Speaking of sports, the May 2 issue produced an idea for an addition to Spring Day festivities in future years. Along with pig chases and tug-a-wars, all we need is a descent sided pit (like the one that keeps promising to turn into an art gallery) and a bit of trampoline equipment.

Seems like the newest craze is flipping around at 40 cents for a half hour in "jump centers". Los Angeles, which last fall had three jump centers, now has 175.

Youngest bouncer pictured is a 17 month-old athlete who has been jumping three months. Cherylee now gets up to a foot high. Apparently anyone can jump—including cowboys, overweight matrons and 78 year-old movie extras.

HIGHSCHOOL DROPOUTS

In the first of a two-part series, LIFE looks at the ignored problem of our high schools—the one-third of our school population who will not finish high school. This week the story is of the personal tragedy of the non-grad. Next week attention is turned to Detroit, where a major program is underway to save the drop-outs from unsuccessful, frustrated lives.

Many of these "students" have "dropped out in spirit" long before they quit school physically. Individually the problem kids range from "fatherless and floundering" through "Lost in Large family," to the "bright but bored."

GENERAL'S GRANDEUR

As Gen. Charles De Gaulle visits this country in a pre-summer conference, LIFE takes time out to try to explain in part what France means to this strong Frenchman. A short, but immensely moving picture story of the grandeur that is France. In De Gaulle's own words:
"Old France, weighed down with history, prostrated by wars and revolutions, but revived, century after century, by the genius of renewal. Man... feeling the approach of eternal cold, but always watching the shadows for the glim of hope."
