At present those who de sire to go into the fields of game management, game biology, fish and wildlife tion, or forestry must take their wildlife major at another college or university.

"It is the general feeling of the public that fish and game animals are something that anyone can work with as a means of passing time or weekend enjoyment.

"Until we realize that this involves a lot of knowledge and hard work, Nebraska will remain on the bottom of the list as a state for attracting tourists and providing recreational sports for its own people,' said Dzingle.

A summer project of the club will be to assist the state experiment stations with roadside surveys con-cerning habitat and reporduction of game birds.

Other officers of the newly organized group are Ed Gates, president; Gary Hergenrader, vice-president; Larry O'Brien, treasurer and Norbert Brockmann, ag executive officer.
