

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Bridge Fable Has a Moral

Once upon a time there was a Hog who played bridge. If you have never heard of such a thing, just take my word for it; some very strange beings play bridge. At any rate, the Hog was always having trouble with hands of this sort:

South dealer North-South vulnerable NORTH K J 5 7 6 3 A 10 9 8 2 A 7 WEST EAST 10 7 6 2 9 4 3 A 10 8 4 2 J 5 4 K 5 3 Q 8 3 SOUTH A Q 8 K Q 9 J 7 6 K 9 4 South West North East 1 NT Pass 3 NT All Pass Opening lead - ♠ 4

West would open a low heart, East would put up the jack, and the Hog would land on the trick with his queen. "I'll just salt that trick away," he would gloat. "They'll never be able to say they put a trick under my nose and just teased me with it," he would explain.

The hog's opponents always listened to him attentively. They were very polite and made it a point not to drool in public.

Finesses Diamond After taking the first trick, the Hog would take the diamond finesse. This would lose to the king of diamonds, and back would come a heart. Now West would take four heart tricks, defeating the contract.

No matter how often this happened, the Hog never learned to refuse the first trick. His friends would explain that he couldn't win more than one heart trick even if he stood on his head. Then they would point out that the only danger was a five-card heart suit in the West hand. If West had only four hearts, South could well afford to give up three hearts and one diamond.

The Hog's friends would show that he would make the game contract if he just refused the first trick. East would lead his other heart, but then would be unable to lead a heart when he got the king of diamonds.

Nothing helped. The Hog wanted to win a trick at the first possible chance. This may account for the old Wall Street proverb, which will serve as the moral of our little tale: Sometimes the Bulls win, and sometimes the Bears win, but the Hogs never win.

Daily Question

Partner bids 1 NT (showing 16 to 18 points), and you hold:

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two clubs. This is the Stayman Convention, asking partner to bid a four-card (or longer) major suit if he has one. You will raise either major to three; and if partner shows no major suit by bidding two diamonds, you will bid two hearts.

Sinfonia Concert Tonight

Student Works To Be Featured

Compositions by four of its own members will be featured by the Nebraska chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, men's national music fraternity, in its final free concert of the season.

The concert will be held tonight at 7:30 in the Student Union Ballroom.

The four selections are: "Masque of the Red Death," a ballet by Frank Tirro, which will be performed by orchestra. Tirro received the new Vreeland music award for this composition.

"A Sort of Rondo and Gughetto," by Edward Carstens, a graduate student.

"Brass Sextet," by Walter Ross, to be performed by Sinfonia's brass ensemble.

"Man is for The Woman Made," by William Hatcher. The Sinfonia chorus of 40 voices will also present works of three professional American contemporary composers, William Schuman, Paul Creston and Philip James. In one, James' "General William Booth Enters into Heaven," the chorus will be assisted by a brass and percussion ensemble.

Art Dept. Exhibit Now On Display

The University department of art started its annual exhibition of student art on Sunday. The exhibition will continue through June 15.

Norman Geske, director of the art galleries, said the exhibition this year includes works on oil, watercolor, drawing, prints, sculpture, ceramics, commercial illustration, interior decoration and art education.

Geske said the show this year is "a sizable one," with well over 200 individual works of art.

He also said several of the better works would be retained by the University for their permanent student collection.

J-School Earns Reaccreditation

Renewed accreditation has been given to the University School of Journalism by the American Council on Education for Journalism.

The University is one of nine schools given the renewed accreditation. The renewals came after the first series of visits in the third round of inspection of schools and departments of journalism.

'Grandpa's Ashes' Is Last Lab Show

Laboratory Theater will end the 1959-60 theatrical season on a gay note with the presentation of a farce-comedy entitled "Grandpa's Ashes."

It will be presented Thursday at 8 p.m. in Room 201 of the Temple building.

After the presentation of the play, the audience will be invited to remain for a discussion and criticism of the play with the author, Mrs. Opal Palmer, a student in Speech 231, Play Construction and Composition class.

Preceding the play, a short program of readings from drama and literature will be given by members of Speech 206, Advanced Oral Interpretation.

"Grandpa's Ashes" is being directed by David Meisenholder, graduate student.

The cast includes Gary Cramer, Jerry Mayer, Beth Debo and Carolyn Kizzier. Phil Boroff is Production Manager.

The author is a special student of Dr. Baldwin, associate professor of speech. She is the wife of Dr. Edgar Palmer, Director of the University Bureau of Business Research.

Mrs. Palmer is a free-lance writer and this is the first of her plays to be presented in the University's Laboratory Theater.

Two other scripts of hers, written while a student in the writing course taught by Dr.

Joseph Baldwin, associate professor of Speech, have been earmarked for production later. Three of her original stories have been produced by KUON-TV, under the title "The Curiosity Box."

Lambert Banquet Date Is Changed To June Second

A banquet in honor of Dean and Mrs. W. V. Lambert will be held June 2 instead of June 3 as previously announced. The affair is being sponsored by Ag College faculty and employees.

Dale Flowerday, superintendent of the College's Northeast Experiment Station at Concord, will be master of ceremonies at the event. The banquet will begin at 6 p.m. June 2 in the Student Union.

College staff members and friends of Dean and Mrs. Lambert are welcome to attend. Reservations should be made by Wednesday by writing Dr. Foster Owen, dairy building at the College of Agriculture. Tickets are $2 per person and may be purchased at the door.

Contributions are also being accepted for a gift which will be presented to the Lamberts.
