An Invitation to a Stroll Through Nebraskan's Past

A center of hospitality and social life in Lincoln during the early 1900's — the dining room of the John B. Wright home — is one of the most recent displays at the Nebraska State Historical Society, according to Marvin E. Kivett, museum director.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY—Exhibits displayed in the Nebraska State Historical Society's building at the corner of 15th and R streets tell the story of Nebraska's past with actual relics from her history.

objects from the same period contributed by other families. "The historical society's museum is of everlasting interest," says Kivett, who pointed out "If you have seen it before, don't hesitate to come again, we continually change exhibits."

What exactly is the Historical Society? "It is an attempt to tell the story of people in Nebraska and the central plains," says Kivett. The society does this with illustrations, maps, diagrams, paintings, pictures, and actual relics of the periods.

Three kinds of displays are available — Indian life, early Nebraskan, and a collector's lane.

Dating back 10 thousand years, the Indian room tells its own story. Every facet of Indian life has been recreated. Brief stories or explanations supplement the displays, which range from burial ceremonies, religion, dress, tools, jewelry, toys and games to peace and war weapons.

The Pioneer room showcases are filled with various

All-State Artists Open Exhibit

The 10th annual All-State Art Exhibit will start Saturday and run until Saturday, June 25, at the Nebraska Union.

From 35 to 40 flat pieces in drawing and painting by Nebraska high school students and from Denison, Iowa, will be exhibited at the Union gallery off the Pan American Room.

The exhibit, sponsored by the University of Nebraska art department, will be a part of the three-week program of All-State. It will end with a banquet Saturday, June 25, for which the art students take part in the exhibit will make the metal sculpture table decorations.

Heart Assoc. Gives

An unrestricted grant of $10,000 was given to the University of Nebraska College of Medicine by the Nebraska Heart Association. It is to be used as directed by Dean James P. Tollman.

To Present Folk Music

Folk songs by students of the classics, woven into dialogues and settings from everyday life.

That's the program planned by the Musical Portraits, sec-decided to do something about it.

The result was the Musical Portraits. Established musical comedy dialogue gave way to scenes in which familiar and loved folk songs and classics are woven into familiar settings in an attempt to bring full entertainment to the audience.

A special feature of this tour is South American music brought back by the trio from their tour of the South American coast.

Wednesday, June 22, at 8 p.m., Leon Lishner, associate professor of music at the University of Nebraska, will be guest soloist for the All-State Chorus.

Lishner and the chorus will be third performance in the Union Artists series.

KU Health Service Cut

Next year at Kansas University "the student health examination will cost the average entering freshman $3 to $30 next fall.

The increase in cost is because entrance health examinations will be performed by hometown doctors. The examination fee previously has been included as a part of the Student Health Fee—a normal division of enrollment costs.

For Summer Reading

The staff of Love Library suggests the following books for summer reading:

which traces this always controversial subject from colonial days to the present.

Dean, Vera Micheles. New Patterns of Democracy in India. A study of the changing political, economic and social life in India and its struggle between the ancient and the modern, communism and democracy. Hanna, Geneva R. Books, Young People, and Reading Guidance. This book is designed for use by teachers, librarians, parents and others concerned with guiding the reading of young people of junior and senior high school age.

Kogan, Herman. Great EB; story of the Encyclopedia Britannica. A comprehensive, accurate and entertaining history of one of the world's greatest reference books. It gives insight into publishing methods in general and includes interesting and amusing anecdotes. Saroyan, William. Cave Dwellers. This is considered the best full-length play by Saroyan in many years. It was successfully produced on Broadway. A tragicomic fantasy concerning a group of people who live in an abandoned building in Manhattan.

Hyman, Harold. To Try Men's Souls. An historical appraisal of the loyalty oath
