

Senator Johnson to Plug Demo Cause Here

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, Democratic vice-presidential nominee will kick off his third week of campaigning at the Student Union next Thursday afternoon according to his advance man, Frank Dooley. Johnson will arrive in Lincoln at 2:15 p.m. and is scheduled to arrive at the Student Union at 2:30 for a 30 minute program with the students. The first 15 minutes will be devoted to a brief talk by Sen. Johnson with the remaining 15 minutes reserved for any questions the students attending the convocation may have. Dooley expressed his desire to have only students ask questions at the convocation. "We want the students to ask the questions. We don't want any adults asking anything. This is the student's show. His convocation is directed toward the young voters." Demo-Union Don Ferguson, president of the Nebraska Young Democrats announced that the convocation will be held in the Student Union ballroom under the sponsorship of the Young Democrats with the help from the Student Union Talks and Topics committee. He added that the first tickets for the convocation will go out to students at the first meeting of the Young Democrats, next Tuesday evening. Remaining tickets may be picked up Wednesday in a special booth in the Student Union between the hours of 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. as long as they last. Johnson, two term congressman from Texas and house majority leader will leave the Nebraska campus at 3:15 p.m. for the Hotel Cornhusker for a reception with the state Democratic leaders and officials. He and his personal staff plus his traveling press staff of 15 will leave Lincoln at 4:15 p.m. for Topeka, Kan. Ferguson said he hoped the students would form in front of the Student Union to welcome Sen. Johnson as they did when Sen. John Kennedy was here last year. He added that there will be some students going to the airport to greet the senator as he steps off the plane.

Frosh Flood Makes Havoc

By Nancy Brown
An unanticipated 20 to 25 per cent increase in freshmen class enrollment has created havoc in the halls and increased the number of bewildered faces on campus this week. Approximately 2,200 students are participating in the three-day New Student Orientation Week. This is about 400 more than expected.

New Student Week opened officially on Wednesday with the Chancellor's reception and Frosh Hop at the Union. Confusion rose as Arts and Sciences freshmen jammed the lobby waiting to receive their assignments to advisors. According to Lee W. Chatfield, director of New Student Week, the confusion was due to the great number of students and to the new operation of the reception. After a half hour, he said, the confusion subsided.

either the Regents or the National Merit Exams. According to James S. Pittenger, assistant to the Chancellor, these tests do as satisfactory as University entrance in placing students.

Too Early
Helen Snyder, Dean of Women, stated that she felt it was too early to evaluate the merits of the shortened student week. However, she said that the new system did seem to close the gap between activities. "You can do more things faster," she explained.

"There is a continuing need for New Student Week activities," Pittenger stated. "Each year we try to improve them."

"If the enrollment keeps increasing, changes will be projected in many ways: for instance, utilization of the Elgin building, now called Nebraska Hall. We knew trends were moving toward greater enrollment, but hadn't contemplated such a great leap this year," Mr. Pittenger continued.

Housing Facilities
In connection with the housing facilities for the incoming men, Selleck Quadrangle Manager Alfred B. Calvert reported that the dorm is filled to capacity.

"Enough dorm applications to fill the dorm were filed by August 1. Any one coming now will live in the bunk section, an overflow area in the basement," Calvert said.

Selleck will accommodate 930 men, including dorm counselors, in the rooms and 40 in the overflow.

Calvert estimated that about 15 men had broken their dorm contracts to move into fraternity houses. This is permitted by a clause in the contract stating it can be broken by paying $40.

Theater To Cast Different Plays

Joint tryouts for two different plays will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 3-5 p.m. and 7-10 p.m. at Howell Theatre.

"Streetcar Named Desire" by Tennessee Williams will be directed by Dr. Dallas Williams, associate professor of speech and dramatic art. It will be presented Dec. 14-17.

"Six Characters in Search of an Author" by Luigi Pirandello will be directed by Dr. William Morgan, also an associate professor of speech and dramatic art. It will be given Nov. 2-5.

Selleck Parking Lot Nears Completion

Men are working around the clock in an attempt to complete the resurfacing of the Selleck parking lot before classes resume Monday, according to Carl Donaldson, University business manager.

The project, which got off to a late start in August, has been delayed by rain throughout construction, explained Donaldson.

When completed at a cost of nearly $20,000, the lot will have an eight inch rock-based, asphalt hardtop surface with a center area landscaped with shrubbery and trees. It will be lighted by several ornamental street lights, according to Donaldson.

"The initial plans were formed so late that no attempt was made to raise the parking permit fees from the present one dollar to five," explained the business manager.

"However, it is hoped that the cleanliness and new convenience of the lot will bring rise to enough student enthusiasm that the increased fee will be able to go into effect next year," he said. A reduction in space available for cars in the lot had to be made in order to pave the area.

The areas will be 60 feet wide with a half-foot more space between cars than standards require.

Selleck lot was not the only improvement in parking facilities made during the summer. On other lots particularly the 16th street lots, 600-700 tons of crushed rock were used in filling in drainage and smoothing and grading the areas.

Suspension For Prof

Thomas Bruce Waters, a 54-year-old professor of philosophy, has been relieved of his class duties and placed on indefinite suspension awaiting the outcome of his trial, according to Walter E. Miltzer, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Waters was charged with sodomy in County Court Monday where he changed his plea from nolo contendere (no contest) to innocent. Judge Herbert A. Ronin bound him over to District Court under $3,500 bond.

Waters and a Dunkirk, N.Y., man, who has pleaded guilty, are charged with having unnatural sexual relations with each other Saturday.

They were arrested at a local bar Saturday night after both were found to be in a drunken condition, according to police.

Both Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin and Adam D. Breckenridge, dean of faculty, were not available for comment.

Strings Needed

Players of string instruments are needed for the University Orchestra, Emmanuel Wishnow, director of the department of music, announced.

Especially needed are violin, viola, cello, and bass viola players, said Wishnow.

Students interested should register for University Orchestra or see Prof. Wishnow in 101, Music Building this week.

Regular rehearsal days are Tuesday, 4-6 p.m. and Thursday, 3-5 p.m. One credit hour may be earned.

Religious Groups to Feed, Entertain New Students on Sunday Evening

Religious organizations will make special efforts this weekend to introduce students to the opportunities for worship and church participation on campus.

All student organizations are planning special meetings at 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Stop or I'll Shoot

Burr Hall counselor Don Bruegman calls Larry Heins to a halt as the young student approaches coed territory before saying goodnight to Frances Rasmussen, who now lives in Burr East.

University To Try Coed Dorm In Burr Hall on Ag Campus

Only a lobby separates the female and male students at Burr Hall on Ag campus this year.

However, the lobby is the only common ground between the two sets as large oak doors mark the west wing as "men's" and the east wing as "women's". Also seven counselors, one for each floor in both wings, are on full duty to see that the lobby is the only common ground between them.

Prompting the shift of 96 coeds to Burr Hall was the terrific overflow of girls in Fedde Hall. The University felt that Burr Hall was never filled to capacity with Ag students so they shifted the girls to the east wing of Burr.

The male section will now accommodate only 112 students and many others will have to live in apartments.

Apartments
According to Russ Brown, resident advisor, University officials thought that it would be easier for the men to find apartments than it would for the women.

Brown stated that he thought the new program, only an experimental one at present, has many possibilities. He said that many campuses have adopted the idea and have had good results.

Brown added that since Burr Hall and Fedde Hall residents have always eaten together in the cafeteria why can't they live in the same dorm under strict supervision.

Both the male and female students have been orientated on the situation and have been warned that any student found in the wrong area will forfeit his or her contract and right to live in the residence halls at the University. The violator may also jeopardize his right to stay in the University.

Extra Precautions
As extra precautions Brown said that the staff has tried to anticipate what might happen and have taken necessary steps now so that temptation might not prevail later.

Some of these extra precautions are an increased number of doors and locks in the women's area, signs definitely distinguishing the two areas, pig glass in some of the windows instead of the regular window panes and the counselors on each of the floors.

The social factor will be stepped up said Brown as the nearness of the coeds will prompt the men to improve their appearance and to brush up on their manners.

Both the male and the female students say that coeducational living in the dorm will present a real challenge and that the social barrier sometimes existing between the two dorms will practically diminish.

A coed said that although Burr Hall was missing some of the facilities, such as laundry service, she was certain that it presented a good atmosphere for the student. The Burr Hall East girls will use the laundry facilities in Fedde Hall.
