'Real' Library Found in Upstairs Rooms

By Nancy Brown
"Come in and get acquainted!"

"We have around three-quarters of a million volumes here to be read, and we hope somebody will use them." This is the greeting to new students from Professor Frank A. Lundy, Director of the University Libraries.

Love Library seems a monstrous building to many new students. Timidly entering it for the first time, the student notices signs which state the hours at which the library is open: 7:50 a.m. to 10:50 p.m. on Monday through Thursdays, 7:50 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 1:30 to 10:50 p.m. on Sunday.

This year for the first time, the library will be open all

Saturday afternoons, including football days.

Continuing his journey of exploration and hopefully looking for a quiet place to study, the student may wander around on the first floor. This, according to Professor Lundy, is little more than a "covered sidewalk"—a place to eat lunch and to get away from the cruel outdoor elements.

"You must realize," he continues, "that the 'real' library is upstairs." So, upstairs the student must go, especially if he is looking for peace and quiet.

Study Atmosphere

On second floor are the humanities and sciences reading rooms and the checkout desk. In the humanities room is information on languages, literature and fine arts. On the third floor are the social sciences reading rooms, which include education, history and others.

Reference works pertaining to each particular field will be found in the reading rooms. Probably the best place for a new student to study would be in one of these rooms, for there he will be surrounded by books selected to suit his interests.

Finally, the big day will come when the student must check out a book for reference work or pleasure. Now, he must approach the checkout desk with his student identification card. The librarian will give him a little card containing a metal stub imprinted with his own library number.

This card is valid for all four or five years of the student's stay at the University and must be re-punched each year.

Library Aids

There are several ways for the student to locate his book or periodical. In each reading room is a visible magazine file with metal leaves. This tells about the 3500 most used periodicals, gives their call numbers, and tells where current and back issues are located.

All books in each reading room are listed in the author files, also located in the reading rooms. If a student is searching for a book by its subject, he should go to the proper reading room and look at the diagram.

Next to the checkout desk is a room filled with card catalogs. This is the master file of every book owned by the University, located in all the library's branches. There are specialized branches located in other buildings for law, medicine, agriculture, chemistry, biology, architecture, physics and dentistry.

In this master file each book is listed by its title, subject and author. The location of the book will be given by listing of the room and classification number.

On the open shelves in the reading rooms are between 75 and 100,000 books, each selected by the faculty and librarians to give the undergraduate a fairly complete working library.

Located back behind the long desk is the entrance into the "stacks," where research books are stored.

Books on reserve may usually be checked out from the reserve desk on third floor for the time limit listed in the book. Rare books are locked up but may be used with special permission.

The library can be a great asset to all students and their grades. It's better to use it now and appreciate it than to hold back shyly until after downs come out!

YR Club Receives Outstanding Rating

The University Young Republicans Club has been selected as one of the six most outstanding college YR groups in the nation.

This was announced at an Executive Council meeting last Wednesday in a letter from Bill Steiger, chairman of the national College Service Committee.

Nebraska was chosen from over 450 college YR clubs.

"This club has a membership of over 200 and has more than 150 in attendance at meetings. It has provided the spark for setting up the Nebraska College Organization, and in so doing, has provided a real service," Steiger explained.

Bob Gray, secretary to the President's Cabinet and a native Nebraskan will be the featured speaker at the dinner.

On October 13, the YRs in cooperation with the Union Talks and Topics Committee will show a film of Vice President Nixon on his world tours. The film is entitled "Ambassador for Freedom." Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Susie Mall was recently appointed assistant membership chairman. The Membership Campaign will begin with the Upperclassman Activities Mart on September 21.

Jan Rhoda, president of YR, said, "We will do everything in our power to bring Republicanism to the University campus. We want to encourage every student interested in the Republican Party to become active in the college YR organization, as well as in the county, state and national campaign organizations."

Founders Day

"The University YRs also helped to stage a very successful Founder's Day party with Vice President Nixon in attendance," he added.

At the Executive Council meeting, the YRs also outlined plans for their fall campaign activities.

On October 1 there will be a YR workshop here for students from college YR clubs throughout the state. Attending will be students from seven newly organized clubs at Midland, Doane, Hastings, Wesleyan, Omaha University, Creighton and Kearney.

Beginning at 9 a.m., the workshop will feature special information on campaigning, public relations, programs and membership. Some National Federation YR leaders have accepted invitations to lead the workshops.

All attending the meeting will be given the first tickets to the Thursday appearance of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson.

Ferguson said that the tickets will be given out Tuesday night and Wednesday to students and faculty members with University identification cards only.

"This is an attempt to keep the Lincoln people out of the speech which is intended for students and faculty only," Ferguson explained.

Political information on the Democratic party's platform and philosophies will be stressed throughout the year at the Young Democrat meetings. Ferguson urged all students interested in government to attend.

Soviets Will Visit Soon

FACELIFTING FOR LOT

Selleck Quadrangle parking lot was partially in use this morning for car owners. Completion is expected by Wednesday or Thursday.

By Karen Long

Exchange students from the Soviet Union will arrive in Lincoln Oct. 14 to spend a week with students and adults at the University, Wesleyan University, and Lincoln citizens.

Thirteen will be in the group, one of two visiting on U.S. campuses this year. They will be the only group visiting in this Midwestern area and will come here from Washington D. C.

The group will include three women and 10 men. The students will be older than most, and by profession they are listed as teachers, journalists, a designer, architect, executive, designer, producer and the vice-chairman of the Tourist Bureau.

They will be housed in campus residences. However, housing officials and the arrangements committee have not determined whether they will live in sorority, fraternity, co-ops or independent residence houses.

One Campus?

It has not been determined if they will be on one campus placed on all three campuses that are involved.

"However several houses have indicated strong desires to entertain and accommodate the Soviet students while they are in Lincoln," said a member of the planning committee.

A host group of 30 undergraduates and graduate students have been preparing for the visit since last spring. The seminars which will be led by University professors will begin Wednesday evening.

Wendell Groth, adult chairman of a committee of 30 University and Wesleyan students and other Lincoln townspeople, said the visit is being sponsored by the national student YWCA and YMCA in cooperation with the Soviet Union Committee on Friendly Relations in New York City.

Groth said the purpose of the visit is four fold:

1. To enable the Russians to gain an idea of what the United States is like.
2. To provide an opportunity to see how American students live and work.
3. To give the visitors and opportunity to inspect our centers of university life.
4. To present an insight into our economic system and how it operates.

Opportunity To Visit

Groth said the party visiting Lincoln will be given an opportunity to visit on the campuses, to meet with students and other personnel, and to gain an insight into industrial commercial, governmental and adventures in the Lincoln area.

He said a similar group will be visiting other university campuses and that the Lincoln group will also visit Oregon State College at Corvallis and the University of California at Berkeley after leaving Lincoln. Twenty-four American students visited in the Soviet Union under the student exchange program during the past summer.

Groth said the sponsoring groups in Lincoln will include the YWCA at the University YM and YW chapters on the ag college campus, YM-YW chapters at Wesleyan as well as the downtown Lincoln YM and YW.

The committee of 30 will remain in daily contact with the Russian visitors, serving as tour guides on their ex-

EUROPEAN TRIP

'Wonderful' Exclaim Student Tourists

By Norm Beatty

"It was wonderful!"

This is the common expression of nearly every returning Nebraska student who traveled through Europe this summer on the second annual Nebraska Union student tour.

Nebraska was represented by seven students on the extensive tour that totaled 28 college students from the U.S. and Canada. The group started on the tour June 17 and returned home August 3.

The Nebraska students making the trip were Maureen McGinley, Ogallala; Mitzi and Kiti Lee, Broken Bow; Jim Thomas, Omaha; Gail Schlacht, Billings, Mont.; Gail Gray, Omaha and Mutsuo Sasaki, foreign graduate student from Japan. Kiti Lee paid the highest tribute to the trip when she said that "the trip was worth at least a year in college."

Miss Lee added that students planning to take the tour next summer should take courses in European history and music and art appreciation to derive as much from the tour as possible.

Miss B. J. Holcomb, the Nebraska group chaperone from Lincoln, took the seven Nebraska students on a tour of Montreal prior to their departure to Europe. They visited the Mont Royal, Saint Joseph Oratory, China town and the Notre Dame of Canada.

The first European stop was made in England where most of the group witnessed ballet and opera for the first time. They also made stops at the Petticoat Lane, St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abby.

Ballet

In Utrecht, Holland the tourists attended the world famous Pilar Lopez Spanish ballet. This was in cooperation with the International Music Festival.

Also in Holland, the Nebraskans, with the other students, saw the Koller-Mueller museum outside of Arnhem which is seldom seen by tourists, according to Miss Holcomb.

In Switzerland the students and their sponsors witnessed several Swiss folk dances and saw and heard the blowing of the famous mountain horns.

While in Venice, Italy, Sasaki of the Nebraska group sprained his ankle while entering a gondola and was rescued by a motor boat ambulance. The confusion of the language barrier that followed his rescue was an "international conclave of sorts," according to Miss Holcomb.

Composer's Home

Also in Italy, the group saw the home of the famous composer, Puccini in Viareggio, Italy. The students saw the composers' original manuscripts, hunting equipment and burial place.

The tour stopped in Aix-en-provence, France to view the home of Paul Cezanne, the world famous painter of the impressionist era.

In Germany the students had the opportunity to visit the Rotenachsenand Zumsepl student inns in Heidelberg.

Thomas, of the Nebraska group, stayed to attend school at the Alliance of Francoise in Paris. Sasaki of Japan returned to his home from England from Paris.

Highlights

Miss Holcomb said that one of the highlights that made the tour even more interesting and profitable was the show the Nebraska students produced and directed aboard the R.M.S. Sylvania on the way to Europe.

In summarizing the trip, none of the students told of hostile natives in the countries they visited. Mitzi Lee said that the Europeans acknowledged them as Americans but did not go out of their way to help or hinder them.

The group witnessed anti-American speeches at Hyde Park in London and a communistic inspired riot in Venice.

Members of the tour wish to thank Miss Holcomb for her help and advise throughout the entire trip.

Miss Sharon Demars, chairman of the Union recreation committee announced that arrangements for the third annual tour should be ready by mid-October for interested students.

EUROPEAN TOUR
