

Amendment Would Cause Setback--Henzlik

"Adoption of the amendment to abolish the State Board of Education and make the commissioner of education an elective office would give the Nebraska educational program a 25-year setback."

This is the opinion of Frank E. Henzlik, professor of school administration, who said the amendment should be defeated because it would put politics in education where it "should not be."

Henzlik said the amendment would prevent the office from being "truly professional."

"The persons elected would not necessarily have any qualifications for the post as would be the case when they are appointed," Henzlik explained.

Henzlik said he believes there is "little danger" that an appointed person selected by the state board would be incompetent because this method is used on the local levels successfully for a number of years in such cities as Lincoln and Omaha.

Second Reason

"A second reason why the amendment should be defeated is that it would substitute a less representative method of election for the present system," Henzlik stated.

The "truest representation" occurs when the people have access to their own board members. The board district can then appoint someone for the state post who more nearly reflects the views of the people, he said.

Henzlik said the third reason for his opposition was that under the new plan, Lincoln and Omaha actually would elect the state commissioner because the rural areas would have a population disadvantage.

"Rural support for the amendment arises from the distorted idea that commissioners who discredit their school are doing it for personal reasons," Henzlik said.

"Rural areas that don't want to reorganize schools and want to be able to appoint any teacher they please are also supporting the measure," he commented.

Some 47 of the 50 states

now have State Boards of Education and none of them have reverted to other systems according to Henzlik.

"These 47 states are doing a good job and surely couldn't all be wrong in their ideas," Henzlik added.

Board Now Elected

Board of Education members are now elected from six districts in the state and are responsible for selecting the commissioner.

The present system has been in effect since 1952.

Prior to that time the commissioner was elected.

The amendment to be voted on Nov. 8 provides for a return to the former system which Henzlik termed a "retrogression" in both policy and program.

Proposals to abolish the State Board of Education have been made several times in the last three years, but were defeated.

This year, however, the Nebraska School Improvement Association secured the necessary number of signatures to put the question on the ballot.

Because the amendment appears on the ballot by petition it is separate from the regular, blue ballot.

A voter wishing to retain the present Board of Education system should mark his ballot "against" in square "301."

Those voting for the amendment to abolish the board should mark the ballot "for" in square "300."

Transparent Lady—Talking Goddess Adorns Morrill

A $14,000 intricate model, Ceres, the Greek goddess of agriculture, will be dedicated Friday at Morrill Hall.

The transparent talking lady, a five foot eight inch anatomical model with Plexiglass skin, gives the spectator a full view of the working mechanism of the human body.

By means of a tape recorder, Ceres explains her body functions. As she talks the various parts of her body are illuminated. Not only are the organs shown but the location of the various bones and six and a half miles of blood vessels and the nervous system as well.

Ceres, donated by Ralph Mueller, a Cleveland, O., manufacturer and Nebraska alumnus, will be dedicated at 7:30 p.m. in the West Health Gallery located in the basement of Morrill Hall.

One Of Six

The model is only one of six such displays in this country and the only one in the world with an unborn child, according to Dr. C. Bertrand Schultz, director of the University State Museum.

University parents and students are invited to a display Saturday, Parents Day, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and again from 4:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. The general public is invited to attend demonstrations Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

With the use of the tape recorder one special tape will be used for visual instruction and training of zoology and physiology classes at the University; another tape will be designed for health education of grade school children and a third for the general public.

Tribunal Membership Outlined

Membership to the Student Council-Student Tribunal committee was outlined Wednesday at the regular Council meeting by Jim Samples.

The committee is composed of five appointed members from Student Council, three appointed members from Student Tribunal (two ex-officio members from Student Council (the president and first vice president of the Council), one ex-officio member from Student Tribunal (Chairman Samples) and one advisor from the College of Law.

"The committee is organized to look into certain procedural problems presently faced by the Student Tribunal and to see if there are any workable solutions to these problems," Samples explained.

Two immediate jobs face the committee, according to Samples.

- "To contact other universities with similar judicial bodies and find out how they have solved some of the problems faced by the respective judicial bodies and,
- "To sound out student opinion on the University campus about the Tribunal, its effectiveness and shortcomings."

Avery Grant Preference To Chemists

Students in chemistry and the allied sciences will receive preference in the allocation of $108,082.52 in scholarship funds left by the widow of a former chancellor of the University.

Mrs. May B. Avery, widow of the late Chancellor Samuel Avery, made the bequest in trust agreement March 1.

After other bequests are taken care of, $108,279.52 of the funds "goes to scholarships to students of the University."

The text of the trust states that "a committee consisting of the chairman of the department of chemistry, the chairman of the department of physics and the Chancellor of the University shall award such fellowships and scholarships under rules and regulations drafted by them and approved by the Board of Regents."

Mrs. Avery, who died July 1, was a Doane College graduate.

Avery served as NU chancellor from 1909 to 1926.

Historical Society's New Round Of Displays Exhibit Old West

By Nancy Whitford

"Hoofbeats and Talking Wires" will echo again in Nebraska following the opening of a new exhibit this week at the State Historical Society.

"Finishing touches are being added to the display, which includes authentic items from the pony express and transcontinental telegraph," said Roger T. Grange Jr., assistant museum director.

1960 Ball Features Maltby

Richard Maltby and his "Band the Dancers Demand" will be featured at the 1960 Military Ball, Dec. 10.

The 48th annual ball, which traditionally opens the University and Lincoln social season, will again be held at Pershing Municipal Auditorium.

Maltby, who gained experience as conductor-arranger for NBC, CBS, Benny Goodman, Tommy Dorsey, Columbia Records, Decca Records, and others, introduced his traveling band in 1955. His "danceable brand of subtle swing" rapidly caught the attention of the college set and labeled him "Idol of the College Towns."

Maltby's "Man with the Golden Arm" was a best seller, along with "St. Louis Blues Mambo," "Six Flats Unfurnished," "Birth of the Blues," and, more recently, "Morgen," and "At the Hop."

"The ball committee had to work hard to get him," stated Dee Cuttall, program chairman. "but after his success at the 1956 Military Ball, we wanted him back."

To date the Maltby group has played at many of the major colleges, including the University. They record exclusively for Columbia Records.

Thirteen Men

The band consists of 13 men. There are four trumpets, a valve trombone, four reeds, three rhythm, and Maltby himself who plays trumpet, vibes, chimes, and conga drum.

Tickets for the event will go on sale Monday, November 14 at $3.75 and $4 per couple. The $4 ticket includes a table reservation, according to Capt. Charles Svoboda, Military Ball project officer.

The Army Reserve Officer's Training Corps is sponsoring this year's ball. Committee chairmen are Dee Cuttall, Dave Calhoun, Don Epp, Art Hughes, Dick Rueter, and Rod Ellerbusch.

"Advanced ROTC students will get first chance at the table reservations," stated Dick Rueter, chairman of the tickets and tables committee for the ball. "Tables that remain will go to the general public starting Nov. 21."

Spectator tickets will again be available for $1.

"The committees are hard at work on the ball," reported Capt. Svoboda. "They've come up with several new ideas to improve the ball, but most of the plans aren't definite yet."

Svoboda announced that the ball would not be televised again this year. "The lights required for TV and the rigid schedule of events tend to destroy the ballroom atmosphere. We want everyone to have a good time, and that's hard to do under a spotlight."

Council Adds 41 Groups To 'Good Standing' List

A total of 41 University student organizations are in good standing as of the Wednesday meeting of the Student Council.

John Hoerner, chairman of the judiciary committee of the Student Council, said the remaining organizations could still qualify for good standing if they would comply with the seven basic requirements.

Because the accuracy of the good standing list has been questioned in the past several weeks, Hoerner asked any Council member who is working in the office during the week to file everything received from organizations immediately.

Hoerner asked that his list of organizations of good standing be accepted. The vote was unanimous. The organizations in good standing (excluding those published in good standing a week ago are:

- Ag Exec Board
- All University Fund
- Alpha Lambda Delta
- Alpha Tau Alpha
- Alpha Zeta
- American Institute of Electrical Engineers
- Association for Childhood Education
- Coed Connectors
- Cover Cops
- Epsilon Chi Tau
- Eta Kappa Nu
- Gamma Lambda
- Home Ec Club
- Immocentia Society
- Kosmet Klub
- Mortar Board
- Nebraska Blue Print
- Nu-Med Society

Painting Missing From Galleries

"Monument," an oil and collage piece, was reported missing Wednesday from the University Art Galleries.

(A collage painting is a kind of surrealist art. Bits of flat objects such as newspaper, cloth and pressed flowers are pasted together in an in-harmonious relationship for a symbolic or suggestive effect.)

The painting, valued at $150, is about 15 inches square and is an abstract composition in the cubist style. Norman Geske, director of the Art Galleries, explained that the cubist style is an arrangement of colors, schemes and lines in which there is no recognizable object.

Owned by the Graham Galleries of New York City, the Nebraska Art Association Rental Sale was exhibiting the painting along with other pictures. These exhibited paintings may be rented by Nebraskans on a month-to-month basis.

Last May "The Dolphins," a bronze sculpture, was taken from the Galleries and has not yet been recovered.

Orchestrates Announces Members

Orchestrates, the University's modern dance club, has announced 14 new members.

The members were judged at tryouts on rhythm, harmony of movement, coordination, originality, feeling and creativity.

The new junior Orchestrates members include Marri Allen, Joan Anderstrom, Pat Doyle, Linda Heilig, Kathie Kearney, Linda Levenick.

Herbie Nore, Lucy Madden, Marilyn Marshall, Janette Oernie, Janie Thomason, Jeanne Through, Virginia Wheaton and Valerie Wheeler.

"We're happy to see so much interest in creative dancing this year," said Ruth Ann Read, Orchestrates publicity chairman. "We were quite pleased with all the effort and thought put into the tryouts by the girls," she added.

"If there are others still interested in Orchestrates and hope to tryout within the year, they should contact one of the officers. Our work now will be in preparation for our April show, 'Omnia Momenta,'" Miss Read said.

Sabath Wins Play Contest

Bernard Sabath of Chicago, author of "Lady of Eternal Springtime," is the winner of the Nebraska National Playwriting Contest for 1960-61.

Sabath's play, which is about what "might have happened" when Helen of Troy returned to Greece, was described by Dr. Joseph Baldwin, director of University Theater, as an "adult and delightful comedy."

Sabath, a "free-lance writer" of fiction, will come to the University Nov. 14 and stay for a week of reading and discussions of his play.

Later his final version of the play will be produced in University Theater.

Physics Institute

There will be an organizational meeting to consider the possibility of forming a student section of the American Institute of Physics to-day at 4:50 p.m., 211 Brace Lab. Purpose and organization will be discussed.

Ag YW-YMCA To Meet Tuesday

Emotional problems and sexual and moral ethics will be discussed by the Ag YW-YMCA Tuesday night.

Mrs. Winona Leonard, home economics instructor, will talk to the group and will answer questions on these subjects.

The meeting will begin at 7:15 p.m. in the Cotner School of Religion chapel south of the Ag campus.

Goodyear Grant Awarded to Fix

A University engineering student, Sidney Fix, has been chosen winner of the $1,000 Goodyear Scholarship.

This is the second year a University student has been chosen. An additional $375 gift to the University was also presented by the Lincoln Goodyear Tire and Rubber Plant.

Dr. D. P. Remigio, manager of the plant, said the additional gift was presented because of the University's record of producing well-trained employees for both the plant here and in other areas.
