

English Department 'Not Eager' to Resume TV Classes

By Nancy Whitford
The University English department is "not eager" to resume last year's experimental program of televised freshman English.

"No obvious advantages were noticed in the televised classes subsidized by the Ford Foundation, but several disadvantages are observed," said Dudley Bailey, associate professor of English and chairman of freshman English.

Bailey noted a "very slight" tendency to the extremes on final exam papers submitted by students in the televised classes as compared to those submitted by students under a regular classroom situation.

"Good students appeared to do better, and poor students, poorer, but there is no clear-cut evidence to support this generalization," Bailey commented.

The need for more classroom notetaking during TV lecture classes may have contributed to this tendency, Bailey said.

"Good students can take better notes than poor students," he explained.

Student Reaction
"Student reaction to the program was generally good," Bailey noted, "but this must be tempered with the general reaction of students to take a positive attitude toward an experimental situation."

The inability to ask immediate questions of the person lecturing was cited as the chief student complaint of the program.

Faculty reaction was reported to be decidedly negative due to the problem of "divided instruction which resulted in divided authority."

The televised lecture was presented during the first 20-30 minutes of the classroom period and the remainder of the time was devoted to discussion of the lecture under the supervision of another teacher.

No Satisfaction
"To my knowledge, no other university has come up with satisfactory results in an experiment of this sort for freshman English. It's possible the method could work for some other subjects, such as the sciences, which require close observation of the subject," Bailey said.

"The televised classes emphasized things we should have already known—such as the importance of blackboards—but other than this the project seemed to be of little value."

Approximately 150 students divided into six classes participated both first and second semester in the experiment.

Tribunal Activity Decreases

By Norm Beatty
The Student Tribunal has handled 15 less cases as of Nov. 15, 1960 than for the same date a year ago.

Dean of Student Affairs J. P. Colbert said he hoped the small number of cases this year was "indicative of something." Namely, he said, perhaps it is an indication that the campus community is a group of normal law abiding citizens, following the rules of the University and state as they should be.

Three of the nine cases this year were given conduct probation. This number compares to two students given conduct restrictions over the same approximate period last year.

Of the nine cases this semester, four received warnings. This total is far under the 22 students who were warned for their violations in the early part of first semester 1959.

Two cases have been dismissed this year. The same number of cases were dismissed last year from the beginning of the school year to Nov. 15, 1959.

Nine Included
Of the nine cases handled, nine students have been involved. Colbert pointed out, 26 students appeared before the Council up to the middle of November a year ago.

Colbert said that the Tribunal has functioned "normally for the first two months of school."

some individuals will not be happy," he added.

When asked what the biggest student violation seems to be, Colbert answered "alcoholic beverages." More specifically he explained that students drinking under the required state age of 21 years made up the most cases. He also said some of the cases came from students drinking on University property.

Next Largest Violation
The next largest violation, according to Colbert, was "dishonesty in the classroom which covers two things."

—Muskets to Missiles— No Traveler Acts, More Dancing

The Military Ball committee has ruled against traveler acts for this year's Ball, according to Dee Cuttell, program committee chairman.

"We want to allow as much time for dancing as possible," said Cuttell. "Everyone seemed to enjoy the Naval Aviation Cadet Choir last year, but there were complaints that there wasn't enough time for dancing."

Drill Teams
The Cadence Countesses, the Honorary Commandant, The honorary branch of the Pershing Rifles, and the Pershing Rifle drill team will provide entertainment while the band takes its breaks, according to Cuttell.

Cuttell has been announced as Master of Ceremonies for the Ball by the Army ROTC department.

He will introduce the band, the dignitaries in attendance, and the senior ROTC members and their ladies during the Grand March.

"The procedure for the Grand March has been changed this year," stated Cuttell. "The Honorary Commandant and service queens will be presented last, as a climax to the Grand March rather than first."

Grand March
The ROTC seniors and their dates will take part in the Grand March and then form an aisle to the stage for the Honorary Commandant. The crowning ceremonies and presentation of the queens will take place on the stage.

"According to present plans, Chancellor Hardin will crown the Honorary Commandant," said Cuttell.

The Honorary Commandant will be escorted to the stage by Cadet Brig. Gen. Donald Epp, Miss Army by Cadet Col. Gene LaRue, Miss Air Force by Cadet Col. William Wells, and Miss Navy by Midshipman John Williams.

Margaret Marshall Prah, last year's Commandant, will transfer the scepter to the new Commandant as a symbol of her regal authority.

The Honorary Commandant and the three service queens will receive engraved bracelets and bouquets of roses.

Richard Malby and his orchestra will provide the music for the Ball, the Grand March, and the coronation ceremonies. The band will be located on the stage.

The nine candidates for Honorary Commandant are Marian Brayton, Mary Ann "Skip" Harris, Judy Holmes, Donnie Keyes, Mary Knolle, Cathy Scott, Anne Sowles, Kay Swoboda, and Lynn Wright. The 1960 Commandant will be determined by an all-campus election on Nov. 29.

Hadley Rides Again Friday At Union

Hadley Barrett and the Westerners will make their third appearance on campus in the last year when they play for the Student Union dance Friday night.

Previous campus engagements were a Chi Omega house party and the Ag Union Hadley Ho-Down dance.

The dance will be held in the Union Ballroom from 8 until 12 p.m. according to Bill Connell, chairman of Union special activities committee.

Barrett is from North Platte and is noted as a leader of western type music in that area. He has made some recordings of western music. Three weeks ago he returned from a three week engagement in Las Vegas, Nev. He has also performed on stage, radio and television.

Each of the previous dances reported that Hadley Barrett attracted a capacity crowd and that his style of music was the reason for the large crowds. Barrett, along with the Westerners, will feature many numbers with electric guitars.

The band has already been contracted for a future engagement at the Ag Union in February.

Vacation Invitations Unfilled

Foreign Students Question Sincerity
A number of Thanksgiving invitations to foreign students remain unfilled.

Uncertainty as to the sincerity of the Thanksgiving vacation invitations may prevent a number of foreign students from spending the holiday with interested families in Beatrice, Henderson and Lincoln, according to Mrs. Olga Steele.

Mrs. Steele, foreign student adviser, said about 30 Thanksgiving invitations had been offered by Beatrice residents and 10 by Henderson residents in addition to 30-50 invitations by Lincoln families.

At present the quotas have not been filled. Additional students who desire to participate have been asked to contact Mrs. Steele in the Office of Student Affairs.

A meeting of both hosts and students will be held Sunday at 4 p.m. at the Faculty Club to make arrangements for those wishing to take part.

"Traditional American Thanksgiving festivities plus visits to small industries, group meetings of the foreign students and family activities should combine to make this a profitable experience for both the families and the students," Mrs. Steele said.

This is the second year Beatrice has offered to host the foreign students and the first year for Henderson which is also making tentative plans for a portion of the Christmas vacation.

"Both hosts and students appeared enthusiastic and pleased with last year's program," Mrs. Steele added.

International Association Forms Sunday

American and foreign students will meet Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Student Union to form a Nebraska International Association.

The proposed constitution, drawn up by a joint committee of American and international students, will be presented at the mass meeting Sunday.

It contains provisions for an executive council of eleven foreign and American members and will be governed by an American and foreign co-chairman.

According to the RAM Newsgram, which is published for the residents of Sellsck Quadrangle, this will be the beginning of a new association which is designed to bring all students of the University closer together.

Membership is open to all interested students and faculty who are interested in the customs of other lands and the exchange of ideas with people from all over the world.

Suggestions have been made that the Association sponsor an International Week on campus each year.

Art Contest To Begin In December

Students with artistic ability have the opportunity to make a few extra dollars by entering the All University Art Contest to be held Dec. 14 to 22.

The contest is open to both art majors and minors and non-majors and minors.

A maximum of $10 will be given for water colors, tempera, and gouche paintings. Money prizes up to $25 will be given to oil works by the Student Union arts and exhibits committee. The committee will use the purchased paintings to replenish the Picture Rental Library.

All artists who wish to sell their works are asked to estimate the value and specify at the time of entry that they wish to offer their painting for sale. However, if a student does not wish to sell, his painting will still be judged in the competition.

Rules for the contest are:
1. The entry must be the original work of regularly enrolled students of the University.
2. All entries must be mounted or suitably framed.
3. The committee reserves the right to keep entries until Feb. 1, 1961 for exhibit purposes.
4. All entries must be submitted by Dec. 20.

Ruthie Read, chairman of the committee, asks that students get to work on entries as soon as possible and suggested they work on their paintings during Thanksgiving vacation.

Ag Job Conference Set for Dec. 1

Ag students will have until Nov. 22 to return the cards stating the three career selections they wish to attend at the Job Opportunities Conference Dec. 1.

Larry Williams, Ag Exec member working on the conference committee, said the date had been extended because only about 450 students or half of the Ag College enrollment had turned in cards by Nov. 9.

Three Sessions
Twenty-five professions will be represented at the conference, Williams said, and two sessions will be held in the afternoon and one in the evening.

Dr. Franklin E. Eldridge, dean of resident instruction, has called all afternoon classes off on the Ag campus on Dec. 1 so that students can attend the conference.

"There should be almost a 100 per cent attendance of the conference to insure that classes can be dismissed for the conference

Only Four Days Left In Drive

Houses Promote AUF $5000 Goal
Only four days remain for organized houses and other campus organizations to meet the $5,000 All University Fund Goal.

The drive which began last week will close Nov. 19, according to Sue Carkoski, AUF president.

Among the promotion ideas of the organized houses have been fun projects as well as giving up meals for contributions to the fund.

Alpha Omicron Pi pledges gave a $1 a plate spaghetti dinner for the actives Sunday night.

Chi Omegas are having a contest between actives and pledges for contributions.

Gamma Phi Beta gave up their Monday night dinner and the pledges have served dinners and shined shoes at fraternities.

Kappa Delta has placed boxes beside the coke machines. Kappa Alpha Thetas sold everything from "pictures to pins" at their white elephant sale during a slumber party.

Terrace Hall also held a "white elephant sale."

Pi Beta Phi girls have raked leaves for houses and ironed shirts for fraternity men to further the cause.

Zeta Tau Alpha has collected over $75 from independent Lincoln Students and fraternity men by shining shoes at fraternity houses.

Other houses have given up Monday night meals and made individual contributions.

Selleck Quad netted over $80 from a dance last weekend and the Women's Residence Hall thermometer shows $46.

The Lincoln Drive begins Thursday night under the direction of Helen Landis.

Pat Johnson is in charge of sorority collections and Al Plummer will handle the fraternity donations.
