

NU Cagers Seek 3rd Win

19 Cage Teams Are Undefeated

Starting Nod Goes To Bowers

PROBABLE STARTERS

By Hal Brown

Nebraska will be seeking its third basketball win of the season and the second straight when Jerry Bush sends his cagers against invading Denver University tonight at the Coliseum. Game time is 8:05.

The Huskers have a 2-1 mark with wins over Iowa State Teachers, 78-68, and Utah State, 65-60. The lone loss came at the hands of still-undefeated Wichita University, 65-63.

Denver comes in with a 1-2 mark including a two-game losing streak. The Pioneers opened with a 57-56 win over Regis College, but lost the return match, 64-56. Saturday night Denver dropped an 81-68 decision to the Air Force Academy.

The lone Denver win came on the home maples with both defeats being suffered on the road.

Bush plans to juggle his lineup for the second straight game. The Husker mentor revamped his lineup for the Utah State clash and made effective use of his bench to upset the seventh-ranked Aggies in the last outing for Nebraska.

Bowers Starts
Husker plans for tonight involve the switch of a 6-7 junior college all-American Tom Russell to a forward spot and giving Bill Bowers, a 6-5 junior, the starting nod at center.

Russell will team with 6-6 junior Jan Wall at forward. Jim Kowalke, 6-3 senior who was moved from forward to guard for the Utah State contest, will start at one guard slot with Al Roots, a 6-2 senior, at the other backcourt post.

Bowers earned a starting assignment with his rebounding work against Utah State. The Lincoln High graduate helped the Huskers control the boards in the second half against the Aggies.

Nebraska has three players in double figures in scoring averages. Kowalke leads with a 17.0 average. He is followed by Wall and Russell with 13.7 and 11.7 averages respectively. Swett and Roots are close behind with 9.7 and 9.3 marks respectively.

Russell leads the Huskers rebounding with 37 followed by Kowalke with 31. Nebraska has outrebounded its three opponents, 147-135. The Huskers are averaging 68.7 points per game to 64.3 for the opposition.

Denver is depending largely on sophomores with three and possibly four in the starting

Sports Signals

Nebraska fans, who attend tomorrow night's wrestling match between Nebraska and Adams State College, could see the Huskers win their first wrestling match since Feb. 12, 1959.

Coach Mickey Sparano has done a remarkable job in the two months since practice started and there is no resemblance between Husker mat teams of the past few years and this year's squad.

Sparano started the uphill climb by attracting more than 50 prospects to the opening practice session.

"When I took the coaching post here, people told me that there was no interest in wrestling on this campus," Sparano says. "But the number of boys who showed up for practice has shown that students here are interested in wrestling."

Wrestlers from Nebraska were the main topic of conversation at the AAU Invitational Tourney in Cedar Falls, Ia., recently. The large number of wrestlers from Nebraska shocked wrestling fans in that area because in past years, Nebraska's wrestlers could travel in one car.

A distinct change, is evident when you consider that this year there is competition for positions, whereas in past years, Nebraska had to forfeit two to three matches because of a lack of wrestlers. A student trainer was even forced into action two years ago.

Nissen Beats Top Two
The Husker matmen have been impressive, generally, in early performances. Mike Nissen, a small stick of dynamite, already has defeated the champion and runner-up in the Big Eight tournament last year. Nissen pinned Iowa State's Don Webster, the runnerup, and decided Kansas State's John Dooley, the champion.

Nebraska's 16-10 defeat by Kansas State Saturday was closer than the score indicates and a single point in one of the two tie matches could have turned the tide.

The two tie matches involved Nebraska's Bert Peterson and Kansas State's Joe Seay in the 147-pound class, and Pat Fitzgerald of Nebraska against Charles Kelly of Kansas State in the 177-pound division. A single point by the Husker grappler in either match would have made the score 11-all going into the final match instead of 13-10 in favor of Kansas State.

If the score had been tied, then all Nebraska heavy-weight Jim Raschke would have needed was a win over Wildcat Don Darter. But with the Huskers trailing by three points, Raschke had to win for a tie and he needed to score a pin for a Husker victory. This put all the pressure on the Husker heavyweight and all Darter had to do was stay even with Raschke.

Sparano made the decision to go for the win rather than a tie and Raschke threw caution to the winds in an attempt to pin his opponent. Raschke was defeated, 5-2.

The decision to go for the win instead of a tie should have come as no surprise to those who are acquainted with Sparano's livewire manner of doing business. Georgia Tech football coach Bobby Dodd once said, in explaining why he had tried for a winning touchdown rather than a tying field goal, "A tie game is like kissing your sister."

A win tomorrow night would break a dual match losing streak of 16 with the last win coming against Fort Hays College Feb. 12, 1959. The Huskers tied South Dakota State eight days later and then lost the next two matches that season. Nebraska lost all 13 dual matches last season and Saturday's loss extended the string to 16 straight.

Rome wasn't built in a day and neither is a wrestling team, but the Huskers have come a long way since Sparano took the helm.

Gus I moves to the front of League 4 in intramural basketball play in the only major shakeup of the standings from last week.

The Gus I cagers downed previously undefeated Manatt, 44-27, to pick up their fourth win again; no losses.

The win assures Gus I at least a share of the League 4 title with only one game remaining to be played. The other five teams in the league have suffered at least one loss.

Nineteen teams are still undefeated as intramural play moves into its sixth week.

Sigma Chi A (4-0) remains on top of League 1, Farm House (4-0) leads League 2, Alpha Gamma Sigma (5-0) tops League 3, Canfield (2-0) is the League 5 leader, and Burnett (3-0) heads League 6. Dental College (4-0), is the only undefeated team in League 7, the Nationals (3-0) lead League 8 and Delta Tau Delta (3-0) heads League 9.

Phi Delta Theta B (3-0) and Farm House B (3-0) are tied in League 10 and Phi Delta Theta C (3-0) stays on top of League 11. Manatt B (3-0) is currently on top in League 12.

Frosh To Meet Dental College 5

Coach Tony Sharpe's freshman cagers will take on a Dental College five at 6:30 tonight as a preliminary to the Nebraska-Denver contest.

Sharpe indicated that he would probably start Chuck Sladovnik (6-4) and Charles Jones (6-3) at forwards, Bill Vincent (6-8) at center with Daryl Petsch (6-5) and Neil Nannen (6-4½) at guards.

The Dental College lineup will include Husker footballer Don Fricke along with other former college players and top intramural stars.
