State-Wide Network

Five New Channels Of Educational TV?

Nebraska's lone educational TV station, the University's KUON-TV, may be joined by five additional educational channels throughout the state in the near future.

Nebraskan Story Said 'Not True'

A statement concerning discussion of "teacher college coordination" which appeared in a story in the Daily Nebraskan Monday has come under fire by Dr. Leo Thomas, Kearney State dean of instruction.

Thomas stated that "a story that college administrators have talked about a program of greater coordination than now exists is simply not true."

However, a mimeographed statement which California educator Dr. Lyman A. Glenn made available to the press before he left the state in December points out that the question of teacher college coordination was among those which educators throughout the state had asked him to study.

YWCA Constitution

All YWCA members are requested to meet in rooms 338 and 341 Student Union Thursday at 4 p.m. Constitutional changes must be approved by the membership and the voting will be done at that time.

Ag YW-YM To Fry Doughnuts Friday

Dr. John Gooding, adviser for the Ag YW-YMCA, will host the Ag "Y" at a doughnuts-fry Friday night at 7 p.m.

Transportation will be provided and all members are asked to be at the Ag Cotner School of Religion promptly at 7 p.m., according to Neal Grothen, Ag YMCA member.

The Nebraska Council for Educational Television has asked the Federal Communications Commission to reserve channels 13 at Alliance, 9 at North Platte, 4 at Kearney, 3 at Bassett and 8 at Albion for this purpose.

These channels combined would blanket 90 per cent of the state, the council says. Dr. Steven N. Watkins of Lincoln, president of the Nebraska Council, said the FCC request represents the first step in creation of a state-wide educational television network.

"The loss of these channels to commercial interests would not only restrict, but in effect prohibit the extension of educational services through television to a major portion of the state," Dr. Watkins said.

Vreeland Nominations Now Open

"Exceptional student creative ability" will be recognized this spring in the annual presentation of the Vreeland awards in art, English and music.

The $400 art award, $300 English award and $300 music award are made possible by the bequest of the late Francis William Vreeland, a Nebraska artist.

Part of the Vreeland bequest consists of paintings, sculpture, drawings and other works of art done by Vreeland or from his collection, bequeathed to the University for incorporation in its Art Galleries collections.

NU Next to Smallest of Big 8; Oklahoma Tops Enrollment

A recent report has shown that Nebraska has the next smallest school in the Big Eight conference, enrollment wise. Leading the pack is Oklahoma with 11,753 followed closely by Colorado with 11,174.

Nebraska and Kansas State. Once Ranked Sixth In 1951 Nebraska ranked sixth in size with Missouri on top and Oklahoma second in enrollment. Twenty years ago the Cornhusker school was only 94 students short of the largest school by enrollment, at that time, Oklahoma.

enrollment for the 1940-1960 period for Nebraska is lowest in the Big Eight even though none of the tax supported universities have had remarkable or unusual growth. Nebraska's per cent of change was 32.7 per cent while Colorado, a school that draws almost 50 per cent of its enrollment from other states, was highest for the 20 year period with a 172.8 per cent change. What do these figures mean? According to Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin any meaning thus far is problematic and vague.

Art Gallery Ground Breaking

The ground-breaking ceremonies for the $3 million Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery will be held Thursday at 10 a.m. at the building site, 12th and R streets, according to University business manager Carl Donaldson.

Sheldon who, with his sister, the late Frances Sheldon of Lincoln, provided the funds. Members of the University Regents and members of the Gallery advisory board, which includes representatives of the Nebraska Art Association, will also be present.

In his new post, Hornby will be in charge of all personnel in the games area, all customer contact in the establishment of leagues and contracts with the physical education departments as well as intramurals and maintenance and upkeep of facilities.

Union officials have announced that although the formal job of night manager will be abolished, Hornby will continue to supervise the work of student night managers who will assume the bulk of his former duties.

The 32 year-old veteran of World War II and Korea is a Captain in the Marine Corp Reserve and managed a retail establishment prior to working at the Union.

Singers Auditions To Fill Vacancies

Auditions for a limited number of vacancies in the University Singers will be held Saturday, 10-12 a.m. in 206 Music Building, according to Earl Jenkins, director of Singers.

Students from sophomore through graduate standing are eligible for audition.

Jenkins added that the Singers rehearse at 11 a.m. on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday in annex two.

Possible Answers

Some of the possible answers might be that Kansas, Colorado and Missouri all had population increases greater than Nebraska. Urbanization in other states, according to the report printed in the Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star, exceeds that of Nebraska. The meaning here is that the larger the community, the larger number of students who go on to higher education.

One other reason Nebraska may be lower in total numbers than others is the recruiting program and how much it is stressed.

Colorado, for instance, has recruiters and as a result have nearly as many outstate students as they do in-state students. Nebraska, on the other hand, "turns away quite a few," Chancellor Hardin noted in the report.

Hardin further explained that these figures do not alarm him. He explained that he has a "curious interest" instead.

With the data now available, such as the last census figures which have not yet been exhausted, there may be some study for analysis of the reason why Nebraska is low and if these figures mean anything, according to Hardin.

Alpha Zeta Sells College Attendance

Promotion of the University and encouragement of high school seniors to attend college is one of the new projects taken on by Alpha Zeta, agricultural honorary.

The project began over the Christmas vacation this year as Deon Stuthman, Alpha Zeta, and Marion G. McCreight, Alpha Zeta advisor, visited Wisner High School to encourage students to attend college.

According to McCreight, the purpose of these visits is to acquaint the students with the college and to help answer some of the questions, the high school seniors might have. He said the project began last year and about 15 schools were visited, but plans this year include considerable expansion in the program.

He said the program would continue through the spring semester but would be hit hardest during the spring vacation, when Alpha Zeta members could go to their hometown high schools and to neighboring high schools. The members make contacts in advance with the high schools rather than just drop in on them, he said.

Most of the students have asked the Alpha Zeta members about University life in general. Such topics as ROTC, dormitories, fraternities, private homes, costs and transferring from junior colleges are frequently brought up, he said.

Sammies Given Outstanding Cup

Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity has been named as the recipient of the national Founders Cup which is awarded each year to the most outstanding chapter.

Competing with 51 chapters, the Nebraska Sigma Omicron chapter is the first chapter to receive the award three times. They also held the cup in 1934 and 1938. First place honorable mention was received in 1936 and 1939.

The award is based on scholarship, individual and house activities, social events, civic responsibilities and athletics.

Fans Tidier, Calmer Now Than 10 Years Ago

By Hal Brown Basketball fans at Nebraska game are becoming less of a problem for the custodians, according to Earl Clark, University custodian.

"Today's fans are much neater than the fans of 10 or 20 years ago," Clark said as he began clean-up chores Tuesday morning following Monday night's basketball game.

One reason for the decrease in cleanup problems, according to Clark, is that fans don't buy as many soft drinks and other concession products.

"The fans don't get as excited now as they did several years ago," Clark commented. "A few years ago, the fans would buy a soft drink and after drinking a little of it, they would get excited and away would go the Coke."

A 17-man custodian crew goes to work each morning following a basketball game. The crew completes the job in about one and one-half hours with about 17 barrels of trash to be removed.

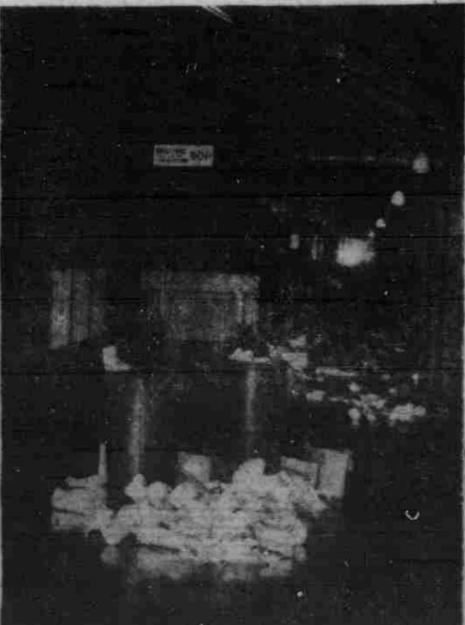

The cleaning crew is reduced to six members on Sundays and the tasks takes approximately four hours, according to Clark.

Lost Items After each game there is the usual number of lost items including purses, combs, hats, pipes, and glasses, Clark said.

"We find nearly everything except money. No one seems to lose money anymore," Clark observed. "Maybe it's because they don't have it to lose."

The veteran custodian compared the task of cleaning up to brushing one's teeth. "We have no trouble, and the complete job goes smoothly," he said. "Every man has a specific task, and he does it."

The biggest problems occur during the state high school tournament, according to Clark. "Cleaning up after a college game is simple compared to the high school tournament crowds," he concluded.

FANS ARE TIDY?

After almost an hour and a half of cleaning up in the Coliseum after Monday's basketball game, the corridors are filled with battered pop cans, popcorn megaphones and miscellaneous personal items, a reminder of some 5,000 fans of the night before. (Photo by Karen Costin)
