Professor Emeritus Organization Forms

The proposed constitution of the University professor emeritus organization will be presented Thursday at 12:30 in 232 Student Union. Dr. Neils Bengston, chairman, has announced that all retired professors are invited.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

'Angel Flight' Formation Discussed

Plans for the formation of an "Angel Flight" at the University of Nebraska were discussed at the Arnold Air Society's area conclave, attended by seven Nebraska representatives.

The Angel Flight would be a women's honorary organization, according to John Bischoff, Nebraska representative. Members would act as hostesses at campus military-social functions.

Featured at the banquet speaker was James O'Neil, test pilot employed by Minneapolis Honeywell. O'Neil's job is to test the performance of Project Mercury's systems.

Project Mercury's aim, explained O'Neil, is to put a man in space. "We expect to do this sometime in 1962," he said.

Other business transacted at the Minneapolis gathering included the moving of area headquarters from the University of Minnesota to South Dakota State College in Brookings, S.D.

Also in the bidding were Minnesota and Nebraska. Six of the fourteen area squadrons were present at the two-day convention.

Kappa Psi Initiates Ten New Members

The University chapter of Kappa Psi pharmaceutical fraternity has announced the initiation of 10 new members.

They are Louis Allison, Richard Asher, Robert Atkins, Tom Cunningham, Dave Fenner, Philip Griess, Robert Harvey, Jerome Janousek, Charles Samuelson and James Slepicka.

New Etchings On Display

Intaglio prints by Frank Cassara, faculty member of the department of art at the University of Michigan, will be put on exhibition Sunday, at the art galleries, Morrill Hall.

Intaglio prints are those carved below the surface of the object. Norman Geske, director of the art galleries, explained that Cassara has attempted to further the means of intaglio printing in this exhibition by exploring the potentials of a recently developed "etching" ground.

This ground differs from the usual ground in that it uses the simultaneous development of a full range of textural and tonal effects which would usually need an indefinite number of immersions in acid.

The exhibition will remain on view through Feb. 12.

Society to Construct Civil War Exhibition

Nebraska's role in the Civil War effort will be portrayed in a special centennial exhibition to be completed by the State Historical Society in June.

Museum director, Marvin F. Kivett, explained that many Nebraskans feel their state did little to contribute to the war effort, but that in reality, Nebraska contributed the second highest percentage of troops in the territories.

Nebraskan participation in the Battle of Shiloh at Pittsburg Landing and the Battle of White Stone Hill in North Dakota will be two of the events depicted in the exhibit, Kivett noted.

Economic, social and political aspects will also be displayed.

"We will attempt to show how Nebraskans lived and how they felt about the war during this period."

"Much of Nebraska, for instance, was settled by veterans of the Civil War and the anniversary of this homesteading will be observed in the display to be located in the second floor corridor," Kivett said.

Politics and the Civil War were apparently closely intertwined.

"It was almost impossible to obtain an elective office without participating in the war. Two Nebraska governors elected on this basis were Robert Furnas and John Thayer," Kivett said.

During the four-year centennial, which began Sunday with the ringing of Lincoln church bells to announce the anniversary of the firing of Fort Sumpter, the Historical Society will also prepare exhibits for the State Fair, Student Union and downtown Lincoln business stores.

Langemeier Heads NU Wildlife Club

Ralph Langemeier was elected president of the University Wildlife Club at recent elections.

Other officers elected include Elvis Heinrichs, vice president; Don Kavan, secretary; Lowell Oamek, treasurer; and Neal Grothen, Ag Exec representative.
