

Book Pool Offers Students Savings of 10-12 Per Cent

By Dave Wohlfarth
The newly formed student book exchange will begin operation Jan. 30, according to Steve Tempero, president of Alpha Phi Omega. The national service fraternity is conducting the project in conjunction with the Student Council.

The exchange, a non-profit venture, will save the student 10-12 percent in both selling old books and buying new ones, Tempero said.

He said that students should take their books to the ticket booth in the Student Union, Jan. 30 or 31.

Two Cards
The student selling his books will fill out two cards. Each will include the name of the seller, his address, his asking price plus the title, author and course number. If there is a purchaser for the book it will be sold and the money will be returned to the original owner.

Books may be either sold or bought during the period of Feb. 6-10. A booth will be set up along the north wall, east of the elevator in the basement of the Union (near the new University Book store).

Students may pick up their money or books, if not sold, in the Union basement Feb. 13 or 14. If the books or the money are not picked up on these two days, they will become the property of Alpha Phi Omega, according to Tempero.

Bookstore Prices
Tempero estimated that the bookstore offer approximately 50 per cent of the original price for returned books and sell them back at about 75 per cent of the original cost.

In the new book pool, Alpha Phi Omega will take only a two to three per cent service charge, thereby allowing the student to sell books at a 60-62 per cent price and buy them at 64-66 per cent price.

"This splits the savings

both ways and it costs the seller nothing if his books are not sold," Tempero said.

A meeting of the book pool sub-committee, composed of one representative from each house in the men's and women's residence hall, each sorority, fraternity and co-op house was held Tuesday in the Student Union.

Tempero said that about 35 representatives attended and that they showed "very favorable response to the plan."

Convenient Location
He added, "I think, due to the location by the book store, it will be much more convenient for students this year and they can buy what books they want."

The booths will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. through the noon hour on the above mentioned dates, according to Tempero.

"We will accept only books used in second semester courses," he said and added that for anyone desiring further information on the project to contact either himself or Al Plummer. Plummer is chairman on the Student Council sponsored project.

Tempero also added that anyone can use the exchange to buy books even though they may not be selling them.

-NU Budget vs Legislature- Morrison to Ask Full Increase

Gov. Frank Morrison has announced he will ask the Nebraska legislature to grant the full amount of $4,096,923 spending increase requested by the University to maintain current programs and activities.

This area has been listed by the University as "top priority" in the total proposed increase of $5,605,893 in the institution's budget.

Requests Deferment
Morrison said he will request that priorities two and three in the University budget breakdown be "deferred for further discussion at a later date."

This includes the remaining $1,508,965 which University officials have earmarked for "growth and development" by the addition of a number of new teaching and research positions.

Gov. Morrison will make the recommendation during his budget message to the Unicameral Tuesday.

The favored first priority area has been termed by officials as "necessary to maintain existing standards at the University through salary adjustments to meet competition with other schools and increases in operating costs and supplies."

It contains no new positions or activities and includes $900,000 to activate the funded retirement program authorized by the 1959 legislature.

Chief Beneficiary
Agriculture is listed as the chief beneficiary in the second and third priorities.

Some $626,265 has been asked for new positions in the experiment stations, resident teaching positions, experiment station work and additional ag extension services.

Breakdown of the growth budget for the other colleges are: Arts and Sciences, $181,800; business administration, $46,900; dentistry, $49,600; Engineering and architecture, $52,000; graduate school, $8,000; medicine and University Hospital, $62,800 and teachers, $29,000.

Other items include libraries, $230,000; research council, $50,000; conservation and survey, $62,700 and comptroller, $9,900.

Low Rate to See Inauguration

Some 7,500 Young Democrats across the nation are being sent invitations offering tickets to a special Young Democratic Clubs of America dance, reception and seats for the inauguration parade.

The dance, featuring the orchestras of Meyer Davis and Woody Herman, is scheduled for Jan. 18 at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C.

President-elect John F. Kennedy, Mrs. Kennedy and Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson will be presented at the dance. The total cost for the dance, reception and the seats for the parade are $10.

Any interested Nebraska Young Democrat may get the forms to attend all three events at the special fee by contacting Don Ferguson, president of YD's.

Orchestrists Tryouts

Students interested in Orchestras, the University's modern dance club, may try out at the beginning of next semester.

These tryouts will be held Feb. 15 at 7 p.m. in Memorial Hall. They will be preceded by practice of routines and exercises on Feb. 8 at 7 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Carlson Awarded Maytag Grant

Ernest J. Carlson, senior in business administration, has been awarded a $200 scholarship, one of 10 given to engineering and commerce majors in midwest universities.

This is the seventh year that the scholarships have been awarded by the Maytag Company Foundation, Inc.

★ ★ ★ Regents Board To Expand Bill Will Suggest Doubling Number

Senator Marvin Lautenschlager of Grand Island has announced he will seek a constitutional amendment to increase the size of the Board of Regents from six to 12 members to be elected for four-year terms instead of six.

Lautenschlager said he will introduce a bill in the legislature asking that the proposed amendment be submitted to the voters.

He said he believes it "would bring the people of the state and the University a little closer together and foster better understanding."

Presently, one regent is elected from each of the six State Supreme Court judge districts for a six-year term.

Lautenschlager's plan would add one regent in each of those districts. Four-year terms would be staggered so that one regent would be elected from each district every two years.

The additional regents would make it possible for the board to divide itself into three-member subcommittees specializing in different phases of University operations, he said.

Committees Open for E-Week

Students in all engineering classes are urged to sign for committees of their choice for the 49th annual E-Week.

Those interested may sign now on the lists placed on the bulletin boards of each engineering building, according to Don Gable and Bart Brendenkamp, co-chairmen of E-Week.

Five Outstanding Nominations Added to List

Five more students and faculty members have been nominated over the past weekend for the title of Outstanding Nebraskan to be announced Friday by the Nebraskan.

Dr. David P. McGill, Dr. Alexander Edelman and Dr. Franklin E. Eldridge have been nominated for the faculty award while Rod Ellerbusch and Ingrid Leder have been submitted for the student award for this semester.

Dr. McGill
The letter nominating Dr. McGill outlined several reasons: "First, he is recognized as one of the outstanding teachers in the University. This is evidenced by the fact that he was chosen by the University as one of its two outstanding instructors last year and that he was one of twenty in the nation chosen to attend a national conference on genetics teachers last summer.

"Possibly a reason for his fine teaching ability is his unique use of creativity. Second, he has done much to improve student-faculty relationships on the campus. Presently, he is the Junior Division counselor on Ag campus. He feels that each advisee has individual problems, interests and capabilities and that each curriculum should be planned with this in mind.

"He also serves as faculty adviser for two student organizations. He is a member of the Agricultural College Scholarship Awards Committee. He is never too busy to help a student with his personal problems.

"Third, he is respected by all his former students and by anyone who has met him. A possible reason for this is that when talking to someone he strives to make the person feel he is on the same level with himself. One can learn much from just talking to him.

"He has written two publications in the field of plant

Dr. W. C. Meierhenry, professor of education, has been named to the committee on auto-instructional programs and devices.

This nine-man national committee will draw guide lines for schools, institutions or teachers interested in the buying and application of newly developed "teaching machines."

It was formed to help protect the interests of those who may not be able to evaluate the machines now on the market or in the planning stages.

Dr. Meierhenry explained that because of a sharp increase in investor interest, in the machines and the consequent possibility of a rash of hasty, uninformed buying, the committee will have the responsibility of drawing buying guide lines for educators.

He was also given the nomination for his outside work with students. He is adviser to the IFC, Young Democrats, NUCWA and Beta Theta Pi fraternity.
