

Huskers Can Move to 2nd

Kowalke on Sidelines For Iowa State Tilt

By Hal Brown

Nebraska, a team picked to finish last in the Big Eight, can move into second place in the conference with a win over Iowa State Saturday night.

The Huskers and Cyclones will clash in an 8:05 encounter at the Coliseum as Jerry Bush's cagers go after their third league win against one loss. A 3-1 record would put the Huskers in second place regardless of the outcome of the Kansas-Kansas State game tonight.

Kansas State is currently in first place with a 2-0 mark, and Kansas is second with a 2-1 record. Nebraska is third at 1-1. The Huskers have an 8-5 record for the season.

Nebraska will be playing without the services of Jim Kowalke for the fourth straight game. The Husker senior was Nebraska's top scorer until he injured an ankle in the final game of the conference tourney.

Kowalke tested the ankle in Wednesday's practice session and it failed to hold up, Bush said.

Bunck Starts

Al Bunck, a 6-9 junior, will take Kowalke's forward spot in the starting lineup. Bunck is averaging 4.7 points per game.

Teaming with Bunck in the opening lineup will be Tom Russell (6-7) at the other forward, Bill Bowers (6-5) at center, with Rex Sweet (6-1) and Al Roots (6-2) in the backcourt.

Sweet is the team's leading scorer with an 11.3 average. He is followed closely by Jan

Wall with a 10.7 mark, Russell at 10.1, and Roots with a 9.6 average.

Russell is the team's leading rebounder with 146. Bowers is second with 90.

Nebraska has lost only one game on the home maps this season. The sole home defeat was a two-pointer to Wichita.

Iowa State has a 1-2 conference mark, and a 7-6 record for the season. The Cyclones fought back from an eight-point deficit in their last outing Wednesday against Drake to take a 71-70 win.

Coach Glen Anderson's quintet are led by Henry Whitney (6-7) at forward, and guards Gary Wheeler (5-10) and John Placek (6-4).

Whitney paced the win over Drake with 20 points. Placek contributed 18 and Wheeler pumped in 15. Starting at a forward with Whitney will be Marv Straw (6-4), Sam Barnard (6-5) will be at center.

A 6:30 preliminary contest will pit Coach Tony Sharpe's frosh against a Dental College five.

Billiards Tourney Slated for Union A campus billiards tournament is slated for Febr. 12 in the Student Union, according to Ron Gould, chairman of the games committee.

Three type of games will be played. They are pocket billiards, cushion billiards, and straight-line billiards. The tourney is divided into a men's and women's division.

NU Seeking 3rd Gym Win

Nebraska's gymnasts will be trying to keep their unblemished record intact when they meet Kansas Saturday at Lawrence.

The Huskers defeated the Jayhawks before Christmas, 83-27, and Coach Jake Geier's performers won a triangular from Colorado State and Fort Hays State in their last outing.

Nebraska has copped first places in six of the seven events in the first two meets. The Huskers failed to place first on the parallel bars against Kansas, and missed a first place on the flying rings in last Saturday's triangular.

Demris Anstine is leading the Husker gymnasts with 34 points in the two meets.

Sports Signals

By Hal Brown

The following letter was received by this corner from Athletic Director Bill Orwig, and is printed here in the hope that sports fans will follow the suggestions made in the letter.

Dear Hal:

The purpose of this letter is not to condemn our student basketball crowds, but rather to appeal to them to make a special effort to be sportsmanlike to our visitors. I do not think the Nebraska crowds are any worse than anywhere else, but it is my hope that we can be the BEST in the conference.

At our Missouri basketball game, Jan. 7, an incident occurred that caused the Nebraska spectators to become incensed at the Missouri team and coaches. As a result of this incident the conduct of our crowd the second half was deplorable.

Objects were thrown on the floor and verbal invectives were shouted at the Missouri team and coaches. I was not very proud of these actions and I am sure none of us will condone them. Rather it is my hope that all of us, as Nebraska students and sportsmen, will do all we can to keep this from happening again.

I am sure that we would want to treat the visiting team and coaches in the same manner in which we would like to have Coach Bush and his players treated when they are playing away from home. In all of our contests, in all sports, in the future I hope that each one at the game will continue to cheer our team vigorously and at the same time recognize, by applause, the fine play of the opponents.

Let's prove that we at Nebraska are the best sportsmen in the Big Eight conference by our actions at all of our future athletic contests.

Most sincerely yours, Bill Orwig, Director of Athletics

One way of showing our sportsmanship to the visiting team is by applauding the players and coach as they are introduced. It is just as easy to clap your hands as it is to boo.

Throwing objects on the floor may be one way of releasing emotions, but it can be dangerous to the players of both teams. I am sure no one wants to be responsible for injuring a player by throwing objects onto the playing floor. This can be just as dangerous to our own players as to the opponents.

Another practice that we can do without is booing when an opposing player steps to the free throw line. A much more effective way of upsetting the opposing player would be to maintain a dead silence when he is shooting a free throw.

Nebraska fans are to be praised for supporting the Husker teams, but this can be done without booing the opponents, and without throwing things on the floor. Let's start tomorrow night to practice some of these suggestions.

Danger on the Sidelines

Athletic injuries can cause problems to coaches, and can break up a promising team in any sport. It is seldom, however, that injuries decimate cheerleader ranks, but it happened at Kansas State.

Barbara Howard, a pert blonde cheerleader at the Wildcat school, fractured a kneecap. She isn't sure how, but says it just happened during a basketball game earlier this season. The injury has sidelined K-State's head cheerleader from further duty after two and one-half seasons as a cheerleader.

Nebraska failed to place a grinder on Missouri's all-opponent team, but two Huskers were named to the second team. Don Purcell was named to a second-team end spot, and Don Fricke is center on the second squad.

Former Husker Is MVP

Former Husker fullback Jerry Brown was named the Most Valuable Player on the 1960 all-army football team. Brown was given an engraved watch by the Army Times for his outstanding offensive work as a member of the unbeaten Brooke Army Medical Center Comets.

The native Nebraskan was an all-Big Eight fullback in 1957. He has also signed a professional contract with Dallas of the American Football League. Carroll Zaruba, another former Husker, is a member of the Dallas team.

Baseball may be making strides with recent expansions, but it isn't keeping up with science. Satellites are sending accurate signals from outer space to earth, but coaches still have trouble transmitting signals from third base to home plate.

Speaking of baseball, Bill Grigsby, veteran sportscaster of the Kansas City A's says General Manager Frank Lane is going to have three teams at Kansas City — one coming, one going, and one playing.

8,000 Management Opportunities!

That's right. There will be 8,000 supervisory jobs filled from within the Western Electric Company by college graduates in just the next ten years! How come? Because there's the kind of upward movement at Western Electric that spells executive opportunity. Young men in engineering and other professional work can choose between two paths of advancement—one within their own technical field and one within over-all management.

Your progress up-the-ladder to executive positions will be aided by a number of special programs. The annual company-wide personnel survey helps select management prospects. This ties in with planned rotational development, including transfers between Bell Companies and experience in a wide variety of fields. Western Electric maintains its own full-time graduate engineering training program, seven formal management courses, and a tuition refund plan for college study.

After joining Western Electric, you'll be planning production of a steady stream of communications products—electronic switching, carrier, microwave and missile guidance systems and components such as transistors, diodes, ferrites, etc. Every day, engineers at our manufacturing plants are working to bring new developments of our associates at Bell Telephone Laboratories into practical reality. In short, "the sky's your limit" at Western Electric.

Opportunities exist for electrical, mechanical, industrial, civil and chemical engineers, as well as physical scientists, liberal arts, and business majors. For more information, get your copy of Consider a Career at Western Electric from your Placement Office. Or write College Relations, Room 6106, Western Electric Company, 195 Broadway, New York 7, N. Y. Be sure to arrange for a Western Electric interview when the Bell System team visits your campus.

Principal manufacturing locations at Chicago, Ill.; Roanoke, N. J.; Baltimore, Md.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Allentown and Lauridsdale, Pa.; Winston-Salem, N. C.; Buffalo, N.
