EDITORIAL OPINION

Government Could Aid Student Financial Load

It has been mentioned before and it will be mentioned again. To the average college student, finances are one of the biggest problems.

Individuals, business enterprises, fraternal organizations and universities have set up scholarships, loans and grants to help out the students, but still many of the talented "leaders of tomorrow" slip by the wayside due to College is expensive, there's no doubt about it. The average costs per year for most students is nearly $2,000.

Most of us work part time during the school year or during the summer, or both to supplement our income. This money, in turn, is used during the schools months to pay the expenses of our education.

Each year the student who has an income of $2,000 must pay nearly $250 to the Federal Government in the form of income taxes.

To some this $250 may not be important, but to most students this sum represents a semester's out-state tuition or a full year's in-state tuition.

If the tax exemption of the college student could be raised from $600 to $1,500 or even $2,000, the number of students leaving universities for financial reasons would drop sharply.

Although the government may not be able to stand the initial strain from this change, we are sure that the benefits to the government and this country would be much more valuable in the form of better-trained, more thoroughly educated college graduates than in the form of tax money.

For all of those who wish to measure major changes of this type in terms of days or years, the criticism they utter will be: The plan will not help us in the next year or so. Perhaps not, but in the future, maybe five years or ten, the plan will help.

We are entering a period of over-crowded universities. School is getting tougher. This may be a solution to lightening the financial load of the student.

Whether or not the plan will work in five or ten years or less is presently impossible to foresee, but the idea seems worthy of consideration by the American people.

If we, the students of today, can bring this idea to the attention of our congressmen, we will be able to help the students of tomorrow.

The Bite's Worse

By Bark

It is now Thursday, Feb. 9. 1961, 8:05 p.m. Eagerly planning to invest an evening in the facilities of the Student Union ballroom to hear the musicalities of the infamous Brothers 4. I have just had my balloon of excitement punctured dramatically by the news that they have not yet arrived for their first performance, which was to have begun nearly an hour ago. However, I just made a hasty phone call to the ever-prepared Union activities office where a still-confident voice informed me, "Yes, they are now at the city limits and have a police escort to the Union." Needless to say, this police escort gives me great confidence that the four young men will arrive in time for the frivolities. ! have not yet heard the sirens. The voice on the wire informed me that the second performance (which I planned to attend, not being one to barge right in on a police escort) would begin around 9:30. This is in about an hour-and-a-half. I question this. How can a performance which was to begin at 7 and end around 9 begin at 8:30 and end at 9:30? I have deduced that Several people have wan-dered aimlessly into my room and despondantly mumbled something about what-on-earth-is-going-on, or how-do-they-expect-to-get-all-those-people-in-the-ball room, or what-a-bunch-of mickey-moust, etc. e t c. However, not being one for pessimism, I have unceasingly replied, "Never fear. Our ever-concientious Union board of managers will bring everything under control to the unquestionable satisfaction of the masses." Condolences, Miss Porter. And the group simply will not be able to perform all its hit tunes.

how many grey hairs have

I have just returned from a break in my eve's occupations, and to my amazed delight, find that the brothers, bless their strumming little hearts, did make it to the Union. I'm glad. I'm glad because I now have restored confidence in the abilities of the Lincoln police department to do something kind and within the graces of the average, everyday, all-around Nebraska student. They've done something to become a part of the Great American Dream. And that's nice of them.

As I understand it now, the first performance is underway and the second performance (which I planned to attend, not being one to race for the first autograph) will begin about 9:45. This will cut the first show to about 45 minutes. This will, in all probability, make the second show a little longer (that is, if the brothers can make it through two shows after that exhausting police escort). All the underclassmen will get to stay out past 10:30, and the tired, undernourished housemothers will have to answer the numerous ringings of the seniorweary doorbells.

May I wish the Brothers 4 all the luck in the world in their ballroom performance (how DO they expect to get all those people in the ballroom?), and in their future performances about the folk-song hungry colleges of the nation. May I extend to the Student Union a heaty round of ap-plause for its continuous surprises. As for me, optimistic as I may be, I have sold my ticket half-price and taken to my books. Come to think of it, I never did hear any sirens . . .

Daily Nebraskan

Member Associated Collegiate Press, International Press Representative: National Advertising Service, Incorporated Published at: Room 51, Student Union, Lincoln, Nebraska. SEVENTY-ONE YEARS OLD

Telephone HE 2-7631, ext. 4225, 4226, 4227 upiton rates are 15 per sensester or 85 for the academic d as second class matter at the post office in Lincoln, act of August 4, 1913.

February 8, 1956.
EDITORIAL STAFF
Editor Dave Calboum Managing Editor Grichen Shelliery News Editor Sorm Besity
Ag News Editor Hal Reven Long Editor Fut them Leafur McCourt Long
Junior Staff Writers Ann Moyer, Blek Stuckey, Nancy Whitford Junior Staff Writers Dave Wohlfarth, Jan Sack, Cloyd Clark
Night News Editor Louise Helbert Might News Editor BUVINESS STAFF
Santaras Manager Anthers Den Ferra on Rill Guetleta, John Se rueder Christian College Control College
BUSINESS OFFICE HOURS: 2-5 P.M. Monday through Friday

The Nebraskan

Nebraskan Letterip

The Catacombs Draws Comment To the editor:

If I may be as trite as the author of "The Cata-combs," I am sick and tired of hearing about those who are sick and tired. Your criticisms are in many cases warranted, but in relation to the label your writings bear, you might as well do your preaching in a burial vault, as you would undoubtedly receive a better reception.

You speak of an air of lethargic complacency. What complacency is not lethargic? But rather than attack your face flattened debut rhetorically, I would like to analyze it from the angle of what you may have accomplished by this diatribe.

It would not be overstating the case to say that you have done more to promote that which you have so elo-quently labeled "putrid." Now, if I may cite your column where you write, "Nothing is more invigorating than someone who doesn't even have the faintest connection with any of the problems but knows all the answers. Ah, negatism." If you reread the rest of the column, doesn't the above statement smell of hypocrisy, which you also attack earlier? (By the way, Webster never heard of "negatism.")

But you have the answer "a kiss from a Prince Charming if it must (sic) who will speak his mind and not be afraid to be heard, even if he has to be spectacular." For one who claims license as a critic of campus problems, you certainly provide a weak solution. However, I am not surprised, as judging from your initial work, I imagine your knowledge of literature quits after Snow White and

Babbitt You also let yourself off the hook as far as taking the lead in improving the "putrid mess" by appealing to the idealists to take the situation in hand and put the students on the right track.

I, too, was once a cynic and I could be twice as vitriolic as you, fellow student. But it did not take long to realize that my comments reached only deaf ears. In fact, it was obvious that such criticism was only driving the student body further toward apathy.

It is the nature of the students at this institution to be slow to react. Patience is a virtue if you intend to foster a mass awakening on our campus. Above all, you must make your fellow student think. This, and only this, will serve the end which you seek. Since you are critical of the attitude which is present on the campus (and I think it is not as bad as you would make out), I assume you would like to take a little initiative in improving the situation.

It is none of my business telling you how to write, but if I may ignore that fact momentarily, I would urge you to devote your column to social and moral questions which make the student think. If you are radical, take that point of view, if you are a reaction-ary, take that point of view, if you are a middle of the roader, fine; in that case you will probably have both sides against you. It makes no difference what you think. It does make a difference whether you think. In "Prometheus Unbound" Shelley writes: A thought by thought is piled till some great truth Is loosened, and the nations echo round, Shaken to their roots, as do the mountains now.

If you would blame anyone for the lack of courage-ous thought which exists on the campus, it would have to be those who insist on thought control. Toqueville wrote of this more than 100 years ago in his classic. "Democracy in America" He observed the effects of what he called "tyranny of the majority" on the na-tional character of the people of the United States. . . where the power of the majority is so absolute and irresistable . . . one must give up his rights as a citizen, and almost abjure his qualities as a man, if he intends to stray from the track which it prescribes." In many universities and colleges, students are straying, but those who do are fully aware of the complications discussed by Toque-ville. Perhaps this is why there appears to be little independent thought on the University of Nebraska campus. But, being some-what of an idealist myself, I feel that the oppressed will eventually break their chains, and the nations will echo round.

Shortfellow Editors Note: The error mentioned by Shortfellow was a typographical error and not one on the part of the author.

Not Guilty

By Bob Nye & Myron Papadakis

"Todays youth, tomorrows leaders." This phrase has echoed throughout the centuries, and is being sounded once again as we, today's youth, prepare to take our places in the world.

The world situation now is not our failing, but our responsibility. The shoulders of our leaders have grown weary with age and liability. The burden must be lifted and placed in the hands of the next generation, while the old retire with respect and dignity to observe their fruits and their faults. The fathers shall withdraw with a silent prayer knowing that they have instilled the confidence and ability in their heirs which will assist them throughout their darkest

The world situation today is anything but desirable, the problems are abundant, the solutions are veiled. Communism poses a threat to our freedom, and the iminent destruction of mankind looms so heavily as to cast a shadow over even the most optimistic.

However these difficulties should not be despaired. Rather, they must be taken as the challenge they are, and they must be overcome. A man's true mettle can only be measured when he rises to overcome obstacles in his path.

A country's strength will be determined by the threats to unity which it meets, and if victory is achieved, will return even stronger for the next challenge. Without difficulties (which can be set as standards of achievement, or confronted as problems), a man, or a country, grows lackadaisical and eventually lapses into apathy which unlocks the door to destruc-

To be, or not to be, is the question.

For many years have passed since the egg was first impregnated. And hope rose from the turmoil as the golden dank debauchary.

To be or not to be, is the question

daffodil, only to wither in

For many years have passed since the egg Was first impregnated. And hope rose from the turmoil with the Golden Daffodil. The flower only to wither

In dank debauchary. This then is the question, the answer, and the decision that youth make. The world that we pass on to the future generations will be determined by our answer to Because you are a Lutheran, you that very challenge.

Medical Honorary Initiates Five Men

honorary fraternity. They are Donald Metzger, Look at these big advantages:

Gayle Peterson and Roy Ni. paying life insurance.

COMING FEBRUARY

Staff Views

Barnstorming

By Jim Forrest

Barnstorming this week reports that second semester activities on Ag Cam-pus are getting off to a quick pace under the direction of Archie Clegg and his band of committee chair-men on the Ag Union Activities Board.

Taking top spot in the things to come category is the Reno Romp featuring Hadley Barret and his Westerners on a return engage-ment direct from Las Ve-

Mylon Filkins, chairmenof the dance committee, reported at the regular Tuesday night meeting of the Board that the Ag union ballroom will be converted into a "hideaway" known as the Flamingo Club.

Reports have it that the decorations will be appropriate to the theme with a gambling hall, cigarette girls, swinging doors, a "bar," wedding chapel and divorce court. Everything to meet a guest's desires.

For those slickers on city campus, Barret and his Westerners are known throughout Nebraska, Wyoming, Kansas, Colorado and South Dakota as Nebraska's own and most popular Western swing band.

The Westeners are scheduled to play from 8:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m.; tickets are $1 per person and may be obtained from either the city or Ag Union activities office or from any Ag Union committee member

"Union Be Mine" is the theme of the Spring Mass Meeting this year to encourage new members to join Ag Union committees.

The recruiting meeting will be held in the Ag Union Tuesday at 5:30 p.m.

Dr. A. W. Epp, Ag Union sponsor, and the various members of the Board will hold a discussion to explain some of the Ag Union's activities and functions to the prospective committee members.

To help see the impor-tance of the job these committees are doing, Margrethe Plum, chairman of the hospitality committee, requested that each committee chairmen present a short skit portraying the activities of their committee based on the Valentine theme of Union be Mine.

The Meeting, which is held each year, is for all Ag Union chairmen, committee workers, representatives from each of the or-ganized houses, and any interested party.

Attention, attention! A no-tice of importance to all Ag campus sports minded students. Are you looking for the thrill of combat, the challenge of competition, and the laurels of victory?

Well, the general entertainment committee has announced the opening of the Ag Union ping pong and skill pool tournaments for Feb. 20th. Interested combatants may sign up in the Ag Union lobby beginning to-day . . . don't miss your chance. The rule sheet for the tournaments provides for double elimination and trophies for the winner and runner ups. Also beginning this month for the more intellectually inclined Ag Student will be free bridge lessons starting Feb. 21. The free lessons will be given by Jim Hornby every Tuesday from 5 to 6 p.m. Sign up time is from now until Feb. 20.

Speaking of Ag Union tournaments, the Ag Inde-pendents won undisputed first place in the Union's volleyball tournament Tuesday with a two out of three game win over Kappa Del-

The Kappa Delt's ran their first and last blood quickly with a win in the initial game of the championship play-offs by a score of 6-3.

Not to be defeated again, the Independents came back in the second game to tie, and in the third game to win the tournament by scores of 11-8 and 11-6, re-

$10,000 cash; plus $100 monthly income

can own this Brotherhood Provider Plan with Family Protection Benefit and at remarkably favorable rates. That's important when you think of nitiates Five Men the family responsibilities in your future. It's reassuring to own a Five men were recently ini- Brotherhood Provider Plan now... tiated into Theta Nu, medical against the day when you know you must provide.

Timothy Rutz, Bruce Bloom, *$10,000 of permanent, dividend-

. If you die within the first 20 years, your beneficiary gets $10,000 in cash; plus $100 a month for the remainder of the 20 year period. • If you retire at 65, you can get $13,000* in cash. · Lutheran Brotherhood pays all premiums if you are totally dis-abled before 60.

All this and more for an investment of just $197.10 a year . . . about 546 a day, based on age 21. You pay more than this for lunch. Right now, think about your future

. . . the future of those who will depend on you. Call your Lutheran Brotherhood campus representative and join the thousands of Lutherans who enjoy security and peace of mind in the bond of Lutheran Brotherhood.

*Based on age $1 and current dividend rate, which is not government.

LUTHERAN BROTHERHOOD

A legal reners LIFE INSURANCE speists . 701 Second Ave. So., Minneapolis 2, Minn. Mail for free gift and information

LUTHERAN BROTHERHOOD Dept. SG-4 Please furnish me.

details about Latheran Brotherhood Life Insurance
free reproduction of Martin Luther window

William Thompson Agency Beatrice. Nebraska