Huskers Scare KSU Before Losing, 77-67

By Hal Brown

Kansas State took another step toward the Big Eight championship Monday night with a 77-67 win over a determined band of Cornhuskers at the Coliseum.

A crowd estimated at 8,000 turned out to see if Nebraska could upset the Wildcats just as they did Kansas Saturday night. But Kansas State was eyeing the Big Eight crown and needed the win to continue toward that goal.

The loss leaves Nebraska with a 4-8 mark in conference action with games remaining at Kansas State Saturday and Missouri Monday. Kansas State is 10-2 in league play and 19-4 overall. The Huskers have a season record of 10-12.

Nebraska had a chance to upset the Wildcats in the final three minutes but an inability to hit from the free throw line proved costly.

The Huskers pulled to within six points at 71-65 with 4:20 remaining in the contest on two free throws by Rex Swett, a layin and a free throw by Tom Russell.

Free Throws Missed
Ivan Grupe, who played a good defensive game blocking many of Ced Price's shots and scoring 13 points himself, missed three straight free throws. Wildcats Pat McKenzie and Price both picked up their fifth foul while guarding the Byron native.

Swett closed the gap to 71-67 on a tipin with 2:26 left, but then Nebraska had to foul in an effort to get the ball from the stalling Wildcats and Richard Ewy and Al Peithman hit six straight free throws to give Kansas State the final winning margin.

Four Huskers hit in double figures with Russell's 18 leading the point parade. Swett and Roots each connected for 15 and Grupe counted 13.

Price scored 19 to lead the winners. Larry Comley scored 12, well below his 18.5 average. Ewy, Peithman and Warren Brown each contributed 11 to the Kansas State total.

Price topped all rebounders with 13, one more than Grupe pulled down for the Huskers. Kansas State outrebounded Nebraska, 54-50.

Nebraska opened the scoring on a free throw by Roots with 22 seconds gone and Bowers added another to put the Huskers ahead, 2-0. After Comley hit a charity toss for the Wildcats, Swett scored on a layin to give Nebraska a 4-1 lead.

Wildcats Take Lead
Nebraska led until a layin by Price gave Kansas State a 7-6 lead with 16:42 left in the first stanza. The Huskers knotted the count at 11-11 on jump shots by Grupe and Swett with about five minutes gone.

But Kansas State moved to a four-point lead at 15-11 on a set shot by Ewy and a twisting jumper by Price and the Huskers never caught them.

Kansas State took a 10-point lead at 30-20 with 2:44 left in the opening half when Brown scored on a tipin. But the Huskers came battling back to close the gap to two points at 38-36 with 1:19 left.

Grupe meshed a jump shot to start the Nebraska rally, Russell hit two free throws and Swett connected on a jumper. Russell came back with a layin and the Huskers trailed by two.

Kansas State then scored twice in the final 45 seconds to take a 42-38 halftime edge.

The closest Nebraska came during the second half was at 71-67 when Swett got his tipin, but Kansas State then put down the Husker uprising to take the win.

Kansas State hit a torrid 83.3 per cent from the free throw line on 25 of 30 while Nebraska found the range on 24 of 37 for 64.9 per cent.

The Huskers outshot the Wildcats from the field with 22 of 59 for 37.3 per cent compared to 26 of 76 for 34.2 per cent by Kansas State.

3 Tankers Set Marks

Three Nebraska swimmers, Phil Swaim, Joe Stocker and Jay Groth, set records in winning their events Sunday in the Midwest AAU senior mens swimming and diving championships at the Coliseum pool.

Swaim lowered his own mark to 51.9 in the 100-yard freestyle. He set the previous record at 53.7 in 1960. Husker Joe Gacusana placed fourth in this event.

Stocker won the 100-yard breaststroke in a record time of 1:06.3. This shattered the old record of 1:07.4 set by Mike Jackson of Omaha in 1960.

Groth's record-setting performance came in the 440-yard freestyle with a 4:52.4 clocking to lower the record set by Rol Wellman of Omaha at 5:14.0 in 1960.

Branch Walton of Nebraska finished second in diving and Husker LaVern Bauers notched a second place finish in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Larry Ferrell of Nebraska was third in the 200-yard backstroke. Roger Bosveld gave the Huskers a fourth place in the 200-yard individual medley and Nebraska's Kuni Mihara, tied for fourth in the 220-yard freestyle with Ken Lundgren of the Omaha Athletic Club.

Larry McClean of Nebraska came in fifth in the 100-yard butterfly.

Demand Grows for Outdoor Recreation Facilities in State

Editor's note: The following article was written by Larry Novicki, a student in the School of Journalism.

Outdoor recreation is becoming more than a great University pastime; actually it has marked a state and even a national development.

But in Nebraska the growing craze of "outdoorsing" has been accompanied by a money need amounting to 12.2 million dollars in order to develop the state's outdoor facilities. This money would be raised through an increase in property taxes if the legislators see fit to call upon Nebraskans to accept the increase.

Meanwhile, many of the state's communities have been calling on the University's Community Services department to obtain help in planning outdoor recreation projects in their municipal limits.

Why all the attention to outdoor recreation?

There are several reasons. Some are direct and obvious; some are more subtle; and some are indirect and ambiguous.

Two obvious reasons for the need for more recreation are population changes and increased travel and mobility.

There are more people in the country who can hop into fine automobiles and travel good roads to get some place faster than ever before.

New Craze
Income changes, increased leisure and a new craze for outdoor activity create a need for more recreation.

Attraction of industry and development of tourist trade indirectly require better facilities for outdoor recreation.

In the next 25 years, 80 million new Americans will seek food, shelter and recreation in this nation. By the turn of the century, the United States will have a population of over 300 million, nearly twice what it has now.

By 1985 there is expected to be 40 million more automobiles in the country than there are now. By then, private air travel may be commonplace; the garage may house the family helicopter instead of the family car.

Statisticians predict that per-capita income will double by the year 2000. Per-capita income has increased irregularly but substantially in the last decade, and if the new administration carries out its program, income will increase even more rapidly.

Work weeks have become shorter. The 48-hour work week of not many years ago has been cut to 44 hours and then to 40. Many workers are on the job only 37½ hours, and there is talk of the 35-hour and even 30-hour weeks.

More Leisure Time
All this will give Americans more leisure time and a problem of finding something to do during it.

A new craze for outdoor recreation has hit the nation.

According to a group of manufacturers of sporting equipment, the top three participation sports in 1960 were boating, hunting and fishing, and camping.

Some communities and states develop their recreational facilities in the hopes of attracting industries and of creating a profitable tourist trade.

Otto Hoiberg, Director of Community Services at the University, says, "Any industry that is looking for a location is not only interested in electric power, transportation and labor, but in schools, churches and recreational and cultural opportunities in the community and its surrounding area."

Mel O. Steen, Director of the State Game, Forestation and Parks Commission feels that Nebraska has the potential to create a half billion dollar a year tourist industry. This industry would be second only to agriculture.

Outdoor Needs
What does Nebraska have and what does it need, if anything, in the way of outdoor facilities?

Outdoor recreation is generally classified into three major groups: 1. User-oriented; 2. Intermediate; 3. Resource-based.

User-oriented recreation occurs on intensively used areas in or near centers of population. This category is typified by the city park.

Intermediate recreation occurs on outlying areas, usu-

Frosh Top Dents In Close Game

By Norm Beatty

The Nebraska freshman basketball team continued to hold its jinx over their Dental College opponents last night in taking a 65-52 win.

Outhustled at the outset of the clash, Coach Don Smidt's starting five pulled themselves back into the ball game with a sustained scoring attack aided by good board control.

The Dents jumped to a quick 10-2 lead before the freshmen could find the range. Highlighting the early lead was newcomer Don Vyhniaek who surprised everyone by hitting six of the Dent's first 10 points. He ended up with 19 points for the evening, high for the Dents.

The Frosh's highest scorer, Daryl Petsch, evened the game with his effective long-range bombing. He also hit for 19 counters during the game.

Big Bill Vincent scored six of his nine points within three minutes to cut the Dent lead to 13-14, to tie the score 15-15 with 11:11 remaining in the first half and to put the frosh in command for keeps with one of his patented hook shots with 9:34 left in the stanza.

Petsch, Chuck Sladovnik and Charlie Jones combined their efforts after Vincent's flurry of points to give the freshmen a 32-36 half-time lead.

After the frosh managed to contain Vyhniaek, Bob Prokop spiced the Dent attack for the remainder of the first half with his variety of shots ranging from one-handed push shots to twisting lay-ups.

AN UNPAID TESTIMONIAL

Richard the Lion-Hearted says:

I would never have surrendered England ... if I'd had Jockey support

C'mon, Dick! You're rationalizing. Jockey support might never have secured you against the Emperor. But it certainly would have provided snug protection against the physical stresses and strains of your active life. Your armor never tailored a coat of mail more knowingly than Jockey tailors a brief—from 13 separate, body-conforming pieces.

1. Other "imitation" briefs (copies of the original Jockey brand) have no more Jockey support than a limp loin cloth.

2. Richard the Lion-Hearted, 1187-89, surrendered England and a huge ransom to secure his release from Henry VI.

Get the real thing. Look for the name Jockey on the waist band.

Navy Loses To Missouri In Tourney

Defending champion Missouri dropped Nebraska's NROTC cagers 84-69, in the finals of the Midwest NROTC tourney in Chicago Sunday.

The Husker sailors advanced to the final round with a 61-47 victory over Illinois in the semi-final round. Missouri defeated Northwestern, 79-42, to move into the finals.

Nebraska rallied from a 16-point halftime deficit to pull within five points with six minutes remaining against Missouri. Dean Prazak and Mike Stacey led the Husker rally.

Prazak and Stacey shared scoring honors for the Huskers in the tourney with 39 points each in the two games. Nebraska now has a 19-5 mark for the season and has advanced to the finals of the independent division in the University intramural tourney.
