

Around Our Campus

There are approximately 325 medical students working towards their M.D. degree at the University College of Medicine and the University Hospital in Omaha.

In 1869, the Nebraska Legislature could only dream of the College of Medicine. Today — less than 100 years later — the College of Medicine and the expanding medical center, which surrounds the College, are a reality worth untold millions of dollars.

The College of Medicine's first tangible evidence of its present building program came with the dedication of a five-story School of Nursing in 1957. More recent additions to the campus include the Memorial Research Laboratory, a laundry, a heating system and Unit III of the University Hospital, which is currently being constructed.

This modernization is partly the accomplishment of Nebraska taxpayers. The special one-quarter mill levy for the College of Medicine construction represents Nebraska tax dollars at work. Continuation of that levy by the legislature makes the preparation of this College for the future needs of Nebraskans possible for the first time.

The new facilities will enhance the present program of education, research and service. At present the educational program includes training for students in medical and X-ray technology, nursing and medicine.

Approximately 90 students are accepted each year in the freshman class of the University College of Medicine. Ninety semester hours of pre-professional education are required.

Since the selection of students is competitive, a scholastic average of B or better is most helpful. In recent years, the number of entering students who are the children of physicians has averaged less than 10 per cent of the total.

Some of the alumni of the University College of Medicine who are listed in "Who's Who in America" are:

Edgar van Nuys Allen, M.D. '25, physician; senior consultant in medicine at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.; professor of medicine at the University of Minnesota; and president-elect of the American Heart Association.

A. E. Bennett, M.D. '12, physician; chief of the Department of Psychiatry at Herrick Memorial Hospital, Berkeley, Calif.; and associate clinical professor of psychiatry at the University of California.

Elizabeth Mason Hohl, M.D. '15, physician and surgeon; chief of staff of Good Shepherd Convent School, Mothers' Clinic; co-founder and chief of staff of the Cancer Prevention Society and Clinic, Los Angeles, Calif.; and "Woman of the Year in Medicine" in 1956 by the "Los Angeles Times."

George S. Johnson, M.D. '24, educator and professor of neuropsychiatry at Stanford University.

Rufus A. Lyman, M.D. '03 (DECEASED October 4, 1957), educator; organized College of Pharmacy at the University of Nebraska in 1908, dean from 1908-46 and director and dean of the University of Arizona College of Pharmacy 1947-50.

Donald M. Pillsbury, M.D. '28, professor of dermatology and syphilology, University of Pennsylvania and vice dean and professor of the graduate school of medicine.

Other Alums
Herbert G. Modlin, M.D. '38; senior psychiatrist at the Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kan.; Chancellor of the Law-Science Foundation in and consultant to the Federal prison system.

Rep. Walter H. Judd, M.D. '23; Republican congressman from Minnesota; 1960 Republican Convention keynote speaker, and former medical missionary in China.

Two graduates of Nebraska presently serving at a Congo Medical Mission are Dr. and Mrs. Warren Berggren, who started their clinic in June 1959. The present Open Door Mission was founded in 1954 when they were medical students. Today the operation is carried out by Nebraska medical students under the name of the Berggren Clinic.

The College of Medicine has been under the leadership of Dr. J. Perry Tollman, M.D. Dr. Tollman has been a member of the pathology faculty since 1931 and prior to becoming dean he was professor and chairman of that department.

It has been since his elevation to the deanship that full-time faculty have come to the College of Medicine and the major medical center development has taken place.

World-Wide Function
As one of the nation's 85 accredited medical schools, the University of Nebraska College of Medicine has a world-wide function through its activities in research, education and service which contribute to the growth of the vast body of medical knowledge.

Nebraskans have reason to be proud of their College of Medicine and the part it plays in the Nation's health and medical education picture. However, it is perhaps more important to note that only through the continued faith and active support of Nebraska's citizens will the University of Nebraska College of Medicine be able to develop and progress by improving the medical college's program and facilities.

Ag Union Plans Speaking Session

A series of three sessions on after dinner speaking will be presented by the Ag Student Union public relations committee beginning Thursday at 7 p.m.

According to Jerry Lamberson, committee chairman, the instructional sessions will be directed by Don Crosier, a member of a Lincoln toastmaster club.

The session-series will be limited to 20 members and will be held on successive Thursday evenings in the Ag Union.

The sessions are designed to give students and faculty members an acquaintance with dinner speaking, according to Crosier.

Lamberson urged that all those interested sign up in the Ag Union's activities office by Wednesday because "only the first 20 will be admitted into the sessions."

Agronomy Club Holds Initiation

The University's Agronomy Club formally initiated ten new members recently.

The new members are Lloyd Mohling, Gerald Gogan, Norman Chast, Gale Alm, Roger Christensen, Roger Phipps, Alton Crook, Lanny Lund, Ed Banning and Leroy Svec.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"SINCE YOU COME TO OUR FOOTBALL GAMES — WE JUST THOUGHT WE'D RESPOND BY SHOWING A LITTLE INTEREST IN THE ART DEPARTMENT!"

Ann Hanna Competes For U.S. Miss Wool

Ann Hanna, a junior at the University, will be among twenty of the nation's college girls competing for the title of Miss Wool of America.

Miss Hanna will soon leave for San Diego, Texas, to participate in the Mill Wool Pageant to be held April 22.

Each of the twenty coeds have previously been named a regional Miss Wool to represent her area in the national contest.

The winner of the national contest will reign for a year as the national Miss Wool. She will also receive a specially designed all-American wool wardrobe, a year's scholarship at the internationally famous Traphagen School of Fashion in New York and many other valuable prizes. A year of travel, excitement, and fame awaits the winner.

At the San Angelo Pageant, Ann, along with 19 other contestants, will participate in a week-long series of activities, climaxed on April 22nd with a parade to be followed that evening by the Pageant itself.

Preceding the contest that evening, all of the regional Miss Wools will participate in the industry's big fashion show of the year, featuring advance Fall stylings in American wool fabrics.

Miss Hanna is studying history and political science at the University. She will represent the Kansas-Nebraska Sheep Council at the Pageant.

Each finalist will wear a specially designed coronation gown in the parade and at the final presentation. The gown is in Milliken's new "jewel-toned" sheer all-American wool, by Murray Hamburger, completely accessorized with matching shoes, gloves, hosiery and handbags. The entire ensemble will be presented to the girls.

Ag Essay Competition Entries Due

All career essays on "Agriculture in the Space Age" are to be submitted to Dr. F. E. Eldridge's office, 206 Ag Hall, by Saturday.

The contest, which is open to juniors irrespective of major field of study, is being sponsored by the eight land grant colleges and the Midwest Feed Manufacturers Assn.

Competition is not limited to Ag students.

State winners will be sent to Kansas City in October for a centennial nutrition conference and a chance to compete for the national awards of $300, $200 and $100 for the top three places respectively.

The essays, which are not to be less than 2,500 words, will be judged on completeness and preciseness of writing, reason given for selecting a career in agriculture and style, grammar and readability of work.

PROBLEM OF THE WEEK

Sponsored by Phi Mu Chapter, National Mathematics Honorary Fraternity

Mrs. Minnie Moscovitz left home with no money. She stopped at the bank to cash a check. Through an error which neither she nor the teller noticed, she was given as many cents as the check read dollars and as man dollars as the check read cents. Next, Mrs. Moscovitz bought some stockings. She bought as many stockings as the check read dollars, and paid as much per stockings as the check read cents. She then counted her money and found she had just four times the amount of the check. How much was the teller short at the end of the day?

BRING OR SEND ANSWERS TO 210 BURNETT

Answer to last week's problem: The rope is 15 feet long. Correct answers were submitted by Roger Becker, Charlie Brown, and Jack Nyquist.

Casual Observer Sees Preview of KK Show

Anyone who has ventured into the Student Union at night during the past month couldn't help but realize that the Kosmet Klub production of DAMN YANKEES has been in rehearsal. From behind closed doors have come intriguing sounds of wild and raucous chorus numbers, litting voices raised in melodic duet, and occasionally a woman's voice yelling over and over again, "Never feel sorry for anybody. Never feel sorry for anybody. Never feel sorry..."

Naturally, my curiosity got the best of me and I had to see just what was taking place behind the closed doors and was immediately set upon by two producer-looking types wearing Kosmet Klub pins. My evasive intent, I immediately flashed my press pass, a leftover from the football season, and created a momentary delay. Then I discovered that the real trick to getting to see a rehearsal was to display my two reserved seat tickets for the actual production of the show which will be Saturday night at the Auditorium. Once in the sacred rehearsal hall, I looked around to see what was going on.

The first thing to catch my eye was a gorgeous long-limbed coed warming up for a dance routine. She was wearing an infectious smile, long black leotards, high heels, and an over-sized sweatshirt with the fact that she had been a 1960 Spring Day winner boldly printed across the front. Although it was difficult to do, my eyes wandered away to where Kent Broadhurst, looking like a modern day Madison Avenue sultan, was actually pulling lighted cigarettes out of thin air. Moving on, I discovered choreographer Sally Hove putting the lovely and sophisticated Marian Brayton through one of the sultriest dance numbers I've ever seen in my life. It was tricky, but I managed to keep one eye on Marian and the other on the girl with the black tights and the Spring Day sweatshirt.

My delighted reverie was soon shattered by the thunderous voice of director Bill Baker calling places for the "Shoeless Joe from Hannibal, Mo." number. Nearly twenty animalistic-looking baseball players jockeyed into position behind Bev Ruck. Musical Director, Terry Boyes, raised a firm baton from his precarious perch above the heads of the full orchestra and then bounced his way into the downbeat. Drummer Lee Adams, with blank dedication written all over his face and a cigarette dangling out of the corner of his mouth, began with a few rolls on the drum and the orchestra swelled its way into the song. Miss Ruck began to belt her lyrics and, as the tempo increased, she was caught up in the frenzy of the weird, yet wonderful, dance the baseball team was doing. The number became increasingly wild and loud as Bev was tossed from baseball player to baseball player as though she were just one of the boys. Off in one corner on the sidelines, a tiny blonde chorus girl sat on a sweater. Her knitting needles clicked in rhythm to the tune. The dance built to a feverish pitch, Boyes teetered on his perch, Baker stomped out the throbbing beat with a hard foot, Sally Hove ran among the dancers stretching their arms to exaggerate their movements, the knitting needles clicked with ever increasing rapidity, and finally the frenzy mounted to such a point that the dancers sank to the floor in a state of complete exhaustion.

At this magic moment I was so exhilarated that I jumped up and down in sheer delight, applauded madly, and yelled my "bravos" to the cast. Mr. Baker immediately jumped to the inane conclusion that I was disrupting his little rehearsal, gave me the evil eye, and sent the two Kosmet Klub producer types over to throw me out.

Even though I was physically ejected from rehearsal, my enthusiasm couldn't be squelched. I can hardly wait for Saturday night to roll around so that I can see all of the latest Kosmet Klub production, DAMN YANKEES, a boisterous and tuneful tribute to America's favorite pastime, baseball.

Two approaches to the "man's deodorant" problem

If a man doesn't mind shaving under his arms, he will probably find a woman's roll-on satisfactory. Most men, however, find it simpler and surer to use Mennen Spray Deodorant. Mennen Spray was made to get through to the skin, where perspiration starts. And made to work all day. More men use Mennen Spray than any other deodorant. How about you?

"They come by the dozens... each with a diploma and a bright smile"

"More and more bright, personable, well-educated young men come to me for jobs these days. And it's often hard to make a decision. That's why, in addition to other qualities, I look for maturity and stability. Life insurance ownership is one of the things that indicates this to me."

This businessman is typical of today's employer.

He is interested in the college man who can plan ahead—especially personal future security. So, it's reassuring to remember that as a Lutheran you can turn to our Brotherhood Provider Life Insurance Plan. For just 44¢ a day (based on age 25) you can own a $10,000 Brotherhood Provider Plan. And this is permanent, dividend-paying insurance that will help you build financial security for the future.

The future belongs to the man who plans for it. See your Lutheran Brotherhood campus representative today. Or mail the coupon now.
