

Hardin Presents Budget; Salary Hike Requested

Three major areas of the proposed $30.6 million University budget—salaries, retirement funds and utilities—were presented to the Unicameral budget committee for study Monday by Chancellor Clifford N. Hardin.

Hardin said the four aims of the request, which represents a $5.6 million increase over the present biennium, were to "hold our present ground, activate a $900,000 vested retirement program, sustain the advancement of the University and clear the way for modest new research in climatology, industry and atomic energy."

The salary request includes $2,450,000 for pay increases during the first year of the coming biennium and $500,000 for increases during the second year.

Hardin said the more modest increase was necessary for the second year in order that younger faculty members who were "rapidly maturing in their work" could be recognized before the next biennium.

The major $2,450,000 salary request would include $1,900,000 to 1,290 administrative and academic personnel, an increase of 10.1%; $324,000 to 763 non-academic personnel, an increase of 6.5%; $103,000 to 300-400 graduate assistants, an increase of 9.3% and $150,000 to seasonal personnel, an increase of 6.9%.

These increases, Hardin said, would leave the University in approximately the same position in the Big Eight as before, or in third place.

He said that two years ago the salary of a full professor at the University had ranked $1,917 below the regional average, and that it is now only $923 below the average due to the increased appropriations granted by the legislature in 1959.

"This can best be measured," Hardin said, "by the increase in grants from $800,000 in 1957 to $3,000,000 in 1960. The slower faculty turnover and increased confidence in our faculty were chiefly responsible."

The institutions included in the regional comparison were Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska.

Mystery Events to Bring Spice to Spring Day Games

Thursday is the last chance for all organized houses, co-ops, and dorms who wish to enter Spring Day competition. It is the deadline for all entries in Spring Day games.

The "city girl" will have a chance to show her knowledge of farm life in the cow-milking contest. Each girl, one contestant from each organized house, will be given a bucket prior to the beginning of the game. She will go to the cow of her choice and will have a three minute limit for milking. name, "P & B" is related to the nature of the event.

The Push Ball contest is another traditional event. The teams will each consist of eight members. The ball, which is approximately eight feet high and six feet in diameter cannot be intentionally lifted off of the ground. The team members must stay on their side of the ball.

One man from each team will start the contest at a distance of five yards from the ball. The other team members may charge as soon as the first two hit the ball. The team moving the ball within a time limit of four minutes and the farthest is the winner.

Deadline for entering is April 20.

Advisory Deadline

The deadline for submitting Union Advisory Cabinet applications has been extended one week.

Applications may be picked up in the Union Program Office and must be turned in by Friday, April 21. Applicants should sign for an interview time. The interviews will be held April 27.

Peace Corps Meeting

A special meeting for all University students interested in the Peace Corps will be held at 8 tonight in the Student Union.

The purpose of the meeting is to outline a plan for the future of the University as a possible Peace Corps training center.

Anyone desiring further information should contact Renny Ashleman, Jack Burns, Marvin Keller or Bob Nye.

Applications For Council Available

Filing Deadline Set for Friday

Students interested in filing for the Student Council election which will be held May 8 may pick up applications in the Student Affairs office in Administration.

Applications must be returned to that office by Friday. Persons running as representatives of their colleges are required to procure the signatures of 25 students enrolled in that college.

Activity representatives are not required to procure signatures but must file an application with the Division of Student Affairs before the organization elects its Student Council representative.

Colleges are entitled to the following number of Council members: Arts and Sciences, 4 (at least one of whom should be a man and one a woman); Teachers, 3 (at least one of whom should be a man and one a woman); Engineering, 3; Business Administration, 2; Agriculture, 2 (at least one should be a woman); Law, 1; Dentistry, 1; and Pharmacy, 1.

The Council discussed campaign rules for the election and approved changes to the Council bylaws which pertain to Student Council elections.

One by-law change asked that nothing in the Council by-laws relating to campaigns should be interpreted to disqualify a candidate from Council membership for campaigning on election day provided that no candidate campaign within 15 yards of a polling place on the day of the election.

Fifteen yards from the polling place was interpreted to mean 15 yards from the doors of the building in which the poll is located.

A motion asking that each candidate be allowed to submit, for posting at each polling place, a picture and other information the candidate felt necessary to identify him to the voters was defeated.

Council members felt that the proposal would defeat the purpose of the regulation against campaigning near the polls.

An amendment dealing with post-election activity was approved by the Council. It states that all campaign posters and material be removed from University buildings and the campus by noon the following day or the candidate might face possible disqualification.

Judge Brown Warns Of 'Thought Control' At Honors Convocation

By Eleanor Billings

Seventy-nine University seniors were honored for superior scholarship and another 524 students for high scholarship at the University's 33rd annual Honors Convocation this morning.

Federal Circuit Judge John R. Brown of Houston, Tex. was the principal speaker.

Judge Brown warned in his speech that the nation is "once again on the verge of thought control." He said this is being brought about "through the pressure of name-calling and label-tagging of those who dare to hold or express an idea somewhat out of step with the views of others."

The native Nebraskan cited as an example the conservative quarter of the American Bar Association (ABA), which also senses the presence of this danger of thought control.

Expose Communism Judge Brown said the ABA rightly urges that the most effective way to combat the real danger of communism is to expose it for what it is.

Still, he said, because of the presence of this fear, the ABA has cautioned that there are some who deem it treasonable to mention communism in the classroom.

"There will be those who fear that a well-meaning program may itself become infiltrated or perverted," he said, quoting from an ABA report.

Judge Brown added, "All agree that preservation of our nation depends on successfully withstanding communism. This means learning and understanding it. And yet we are afraid to talk of this and many other controversial matters which bear upon our current programs."

He asked, "Does it not reflect ignorance—lack of knowledge and an unwillingness to utilize what we know both books and history have so often taught?"

More Colleges

Judge Brown, who was appointed to his position by President Eisenhower in 1955, stressed the fact that we have more colleges, more universities, more schools, and more students than ever before in the history of man.

"And yet at this very moment the civilization which worldwide has developed a mass of technical and cultural knowledge is at the brink of survival."

"Ironically the challenge is ignorance—plain and simple unvarnished illiteracy with voodooism, barbarians, medicine men, witch doctors and cannibalism thrown into the pot."

He pointed out that the conflicts we now witness are the result of the civilized world's failure to prepare the vast areas and millions of people of the world to rule themselves.

"Surely western civilization has realized since the early 1930's that political independence would have to come to these areas. Yet with all our knowledge, with all of our accumulated wisdom in social and political and economic affairs, with all of the generosity of an enlightened self-interest, we were willing to follow old ways, thinking that perhaps a kindly, paternalistic, patronizing assistance would stave the inevitable hand of progress and the momentary chaos which freedom always brings," Judge Brown said.

Honored at the convocation were winners of the C. W. Boucher Memorial Awards, Don A. Kaufman, David R. McConahay and Francis P. McCamley.

Seniors in the upper three per cent of their class or who have been on the Class Honor list each year since entering the University and students who were in the upper ten per cent of the junior, sophomore and freshman classes were included on the Honor Roll.

'Top' Profs Announced

Basoco, McConnell Recieve Awards

Professors Miguel A. Basoco and Campbell R. McConnell have been named distinguished teachers for the 1960-61 school year.

Each professor was awarded a $1,000 stipend and a medalion from the University Foundation at the 33rd annual Honors Convocation today.

The presentations were made by C. W. Battey of Lincoln, vice president of the Foundation.

Dr. Basoco, a member of the University staff since 1930, is a professor of mathematics and served as chairman of the department from 1947 to 1954.

Dr. McConnell, thirty-two years of age, is the youngest teacher to receive the award among the previous fifteen recipients. He joined the University staff in 1953 and is an associate professor of economics.

Nominations submitted by the various colleges are the basis for the University's selection of staff members for the Foundation's annual awards.

One award is granted for distinguished teaching in the social sciences and humanities; the other in the natural sciences and technology.

Dr. Basoco, nominated by the College of Arts and Sciences, was cited for his "strong scholarly influence within the department of mathematics and College."

He is noted for helping students master subject matter in a field of knowledge where teaching is very difficult," continued the nomination from the college of Arts and Sciences, "demanding both an excellent knowledge of the implications of one's subject and an understanding of the difficulties which may confront the student."

Dr. McConnell's ability "is recognized and respected by both his colleagues and his students," according to the nomination. He teaches principles of economics on the undergraduate level and instructs advanced course work on the graduate level in the department of economics.

Dr. McConnell has been awarded a research grant from the Small Business Administration and a University Research Council Fellowship for the summer of 1961.

Dent College Honors 11 For Studies

Eleven University dental students received honors for scholastic achievement at the College of Dentistry's annual Honors Luncheon, Monday.

The main speaker Roger V. Dickerson, a Lincoln attorney, discussed "The Professional Man and the Community."

Members of the senior class honored were Walter R. Babcock, Keith M. Elchler, Paul M. Feldstein and James L. Peck who were elected to membership in Omicron Kappa Upsilon, national honorary dental society.

James M. Bennett, John A. Ludden, Dick J. Jeffers, Richard G. Washut and Bernard J. Turkel received C. V. Mosby awards for scholastic achievement.

The American Academy of Dental Medicine presented Feldstein with an award, and an award was presented by the American Society of Dentistry for Children to Robert E. Sullivan.

Doyle D. Beavers was presented an award by the American Academy of Oral Roentgenology.

Correction

Mary Weatherspoon was elected panel editor of the Cornhusker. Mary is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta, secretary of Alpha Lambda Delta, and a member of AUF.

Methodist Chapel Cornerstone Laid

Over one hundred people attended the Sunday morning cornerstone laying ceremony of the new Methodist Student Chapel on city campus.

The invocation was given by Dr. William B. Gould, a minister of the University Methodist Church.

Bishop Kenneth W. Copeland, Resident Bishop of Nebraska Area Methodist Churches gave the prayer of consecration and the benediction.

According to Rev. White, the structurally simple and modern building has an approximate cost of $330,000 which includes the lot. He stated that work is progressing on the building very well and completion is expected in time for the fall semester.

Donations for the building came from the Nebraska Council of Methodist Churches, individual contributions and loans.

BISHOP PREPARES STONE

Bishop Kenneth W. Copeland, resident bishop of the Nebraska Area Methodist Church is shown placing the mortar on the stone in preparation for the laying of the cornerstone Sunday of the new campus Methodist Student Chapel, which is expected to be completed by the fall semester.

Dr. Miller Will Head Zoo Staff

Manter Retires During Summer

Dr. Dwight D. Miller is the new chairman of the University department of zoology, the Board of Regents announced Monday.

Dr. Miller will succeed Dr. Harold W. Manter, whose retirement is mandatory because of the age limit. The new appointment will be effective July 1.

Dr. Miller, a native of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, joined the University staff as an instructor in 1946. Presently serving as a professor of zoology, he has published several articles on inheritance and genetics.

Dr. Manter, chairman of the department since 1953 and a member of the staff since 1926, will remain on the staff as a professor of zoology.

In other action, the Board accepted the appointment of Mrs. Edith Harper as associate professor of nursing at the College of Medicine. Mrs. Harper has held a similar position at Texas Christian University since 1946. She will instruct in nursing fundamentals.

The Regents also received the resignation of Dr. John M. F. Vickers, associate professor of mechanical engineering. Dr. Vickers has accepted a position, effective September 1, at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology. He has served on the University staff since 1955.

Leaves of absence for the next school year were approved for Dale B. Ganz, associate professor of music, and Esther Meacham, associate professor of home economics. Both will work toward doctorate degrees.

Also approved was a leave until June 1 for Dr. K. Warner Schaie, assistant professor of psychology, who will work with the psychology staff of the University of Saarland in Saarbruecken, Germany. He will assist the German staff in the use of electronic computers for research in psychology and deliver lectures on contemporary American psychology.

Latvian Woman To Address YDs

A guest speaker from Latvia will address the Young Democrats' meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union.

The speaker lived for a while in Russia and worked with an underground group attempting to keep Communists out of Latvia. After fleeing the country for safety when the Communists did take over, she lived for a time in refugee camps and finally made her way to America where she has lived for several years.

The speaker will speak on Communism in relation to the conditions of her native land under Communist control. She will also express her feelings on the American dangers from the Communists.
