The plan for the merger of AWS and Coed Counselors is as follows:

College Trade Allows Study in Specified Areas With No Tuition Raise

By Tom Kotouc A University student may soon be able to study in specified fields at any of nine state universities in the Midwest without paying out-of-state tuition, reported Dr. John C. Weaver, dean of Graduate College.

As chairman of the 10-university organization that will program this exchange, Dr. Weaver points to tomorrow when the undergraduate may study nuclear, aeronautical, or mining engineer or wildlife management. The graduate student may complete his work in journalism, speech, and engineering at any of the other nine member universities.

Included in this Mid-America State Universities Association are Nebraska, Colorado State, Colorado, Iowa State, Missouri, Oklahoma State and Oklahoma.

The Association will promote improvement of specialized facilities and programs at various universities to prevent duplication, promote the cooperative use of unusual research facilities among the universities, and present a unified voice in bringing major research and advanced educational facilities and programs to the region which one university could not attract alone.

Organization of such an association was stimulated by increased costs of higher education and research programs, the competition with business for competent faculty and the explosion in student enrollments.

Similar organizations as the Western Interstate Compact of Rocky Mountain and Pacific Schools, the Southern Association, the New England Compact and the Big Ten Council have proved very successful, noted Dr. Weaver.

"The feasibility of the program is shown by the present University arrangement with Iowa State, Kansas State and Colorado State which allows an undergraduate to receive his degree in Doctor of Veterinary Medicine at any of these institution after completing his work here. In this case, however, the state pays out-of-state tuition."

An inventory of unique educational and research facilities which each of the member schools possess is planned at the coming June meeting of the Association's Executive Council in Kansas City as a prerequisite to the signing of exchange agreements, Dr. Weaver said.

N.U. Progress Prompts Ivy Day Festivities Move

The traditional location of the Ivy Day ceremonies will be changed next Saturday to make way for progress at the University.

The Ivy Day ceremonies have been held at the location north of the Old Administration building at 12th and R streets since the 1930's. This year they will be held a block west at 11th and R streets because of the construction of the new $3 million Sheldon Art Galleries in the old area.

The site of this year's celebrations will be more historic, according to co-chairmen Pat Porter and Archie Clegg. The site is located in the center of four older buildings on campus: Architectural Hall, built in 1894; Brace Laboratory, 1904; Grant Memorial Hall, 1887; and Old Administration Hall, 1905.

The site is also surrounded by a number of traditional gifts to the University: the first ivy planted in 1901 near the present Ferguson Hall; the stone sun dial, presented in 1909; the drinking fountain, called the "Fountain of Youth," presented in 1909; and the clock on Architectural Hall, given to the University in 1912.

63 Years 1961 marks the 63rd birthday of the traditional Ivy Day ceremonies. The first Ivy Day, held in 1898, was called a "senior play day."

Three years later the name was changed to Ivy Day. The new name reflected much of the tradition of the event. The traditional ivy was planted by the presidents of the junior and senior classes during the ceremony.

The Innocents Society was founded in 1903. The thirteen mystics originally were just a campus group to promote spirit.

Sixteen senior women were chosen to participate in the May Pole dance, but this was replaced in 1905 and the Order of the Black Masque of Mortar Boards was founded.

The May Queen's throne this year will be directly beneath the Schiller Linden Tree, a gift presented at the 1905 Ivy Day in honor of the German poet, Schiller.

In 1910 the Ivy-Daisy chain became a part of the Ivy Day tradition and two years later the May Queen and her court first appeared in the ceremony.

The first May Queen was presented in 1912 in a red and white rickasha donated by William Jennings Bryan.

In 1918 the Ivy Day ceremonies reflected the influence of World War I. A flag with 1413 stars commemorating the student and alumni soldiers was presented to the University on Ivy Day.

A "Lord" for the Queen was made a part of the festivities in 1919, but proved unsatisfactory.

Mortar Board first functioned as a member of national Pi Sigma Alpha-Mortar Board in 1921.

The Kosmet-Klub started the Ivy Day Sing two years later, and the AWS Sorority sing became a part of tradition in 1927.

In 1938 the festivities expanded to include Farmer's Fair, E-Week and the opening of a new student union. The Student Union birthday celebration has now become a part of the Ivy Day week-end. The most recent change was the addition was Spring Day in 1956.

Tickets for the dessert are on sale in all independent houses or may be purchased from an IWA representative.
