Selleck Quad to House Fall Fraternity Rush

Selleck Quadrangle will again be used for housing rushees during the 1960 fraternity rush week Sept. 6 through 10.

Ron Gould, vice president of the Inter-fraternity Council, stated at a meeting for rush chairmen Monday evening that each rushee will pay a fee of $13.50 for the four-day stay at the dorm. This is the second year the dorm has been used for housing during rush week.

The IFC office will keep a summer file on each man accepted for admission by the university and who expresses a desire to come through rush week. The files will include the rushee's high school transcript, activities, and honors. All fraternity rush chairmen will have access to the file during the summer.

Van Westover, Assistant to the Dean of Student Affairs, presented four points fraternities should incorporate in their rush programs.

—An experienced rush committee with a junior or senior as chairman.

—Up-to-date records on all rushees.

—An attempt to sell the rushee's parents on the fraternity system.

—Make all rushees feel at home during the rush parties even if they are not going to be given a bid slips.

Last year 511 men came through rush week. An estimated 500-600 are expected this fall according to Gould.

Spirit Gun Takes Name of Rawie

The University's spirit gun has been named the "Rawie Spirit Gun" in honor of Col. V. R. Rawie, professor of military science from 1957-61.

This was announced by the senior Army ROTC cadets in conjunction with the Innocents Society. The gun is used to signal Nebraska touchdowns at football games. The honor was bestowed upon Rawie for his contribution to the cadet brigade and to the University.

Cadet Brig. Gen. Don Epp presented Col. Rawie an engraved plate which is to be permanently mounted on the gun.

Biet Hanani, Trades Profs With NU

Teachers College has been chosen to participate in a teachers' training exchange program with a college in Biet Hanani, Jordan.

According to Dean Walter Beggs, the exchange program will be carried out with the Rural Teachers Training College in Biet Hanani.

The University was selected by the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, according to the Association's executive secretary, H. Ken Barket, who is in Lincoln today to discuss the program.

Dr. Frank Sorensen, director of Summer Sessions, will serve as coordinator of the inter-institutional Affiliation Project which will include the exchange of educational films, videotape, books and art work.

"If we can find a way to do it, this might include something like sending the Daily Nebraskan printed in Arabic to Jordan," Dr. Beggs explained.

Dean Beggs said it is hoped that eventually, personal exchanges of professors with Jordan might be possible should the program work successfully.

Inside View

tion in little personalized bits. Miss Meckel is plagued by spastic, nervous character movements, Miss Benda is ham all the way, particularly obvious in a false character voice. These three also allow themselves facial contortions that often appear grotesque. The 'except one' is Zeff Bernstien, the General, a likely successor to Emmy winning Fred Astaire.

Direction by Dr. William R. Morgan gives the show a flowing, comic quality. Several bits, such as the 'boa' dance with capulap and Isabelle's mother, the shooting stick with Romainville, the fight between Diana and Isabelle, etc., are deftly handled. One bit, the coreographed dance in juxtaposition with the speeches of Lady India and Patrice, is by itself, worth more than the price of admission.

The setting, also designed by D. Morgan, is one of the most imaginative I have seen on Howell stage. Its balanced tunnels, piped windowing and harlequin wings strengthen the movement and lightness and two-character approach of the play. It is a successful setting.

Properties are attractive. With one exception, a crate too drab for the otherwise colorful production. Lighting is generally effective except for a dim apron. Costumes are most attractive and colorful. Makeup is much too strong on the faces — not even used on the hands and arms by Miss Benda.

The technical production presents technical director Bernard Skalka a fine finale for many seasons of outstanding service to University Theatre.

The meager audience Wednesday evening, including the author, enjoyed the production. It is cheerful, colorful, attractive, just the type of show for a spring evening.

Houn's Korean Prediction Happens—Hours Later

It takes quite a bit to impress the sophisticated college student of today.

But when Prof. Franklin W. Houn, the University's expert on Far Eastern political science, predicted the uprising in South Korea three hours before it happened, his students couldn't help being overwhelmed.

In fact, the next day they commended him for his prediction.

Dr. Houn told his students at his 11 a.m. class Monday that "before the Laos conference is ended, South Korea will take the world's spotlight." He told them that he saw a political crisis brewing in South Korea.

About three hours after he made the prediction, news arrived in the U.S. that a military coup was staged in South Korea under the Army chief of staff.

Dr. Houn, who is a native of North China and earned his Ph.D. in Far Eastern affairs from Wisconsin University, said that anyone who spent the time studying the situation in Korea could have made the same prediction.

"If a person has the background first, then keeps up on the internal happenings in these countries through publications and radio monitoring, he can in many cases predict these political crisis thousands of miles away from the country," he noted.

Union Orientation

Union chairmen and assistants attending the orientation session should meet at the south door of the Student Union at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Prof. Arvin R. Riveland of the department is the chapter's faculty advisor.

The Nebraska Masquer's annual "Curtain Calls" award banquet will be held at the Lincoln Hotel on May 27.

"Dallas" will be awarded to individuals who have made outstanding contributions to the 1960-61 University Theater season.

A "Dallas" is a gold-plated statue 8 inches high placed on a wooden base with an engraved plate indicating the name of the winner, date and the area of the theater in which the achievement has been made.

The statue is named in honor of Dr. Dallas Williams who has been primarily responsible for the present status of University Theater as an educational theater of national significance.
