State Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings says he has concluded that the tax institutes which the University proposes to conduct throughout the state next year "will be conducted as any other well-organized adult education program."

He made the comment after a conference with Dr. Everett Peterson, professor of agricultural economics who is in charge of the project.

The University will conduct approximately 15 two-day workshops throughout the state, Jan. 17-March 2, on the subject: "Let's talk about Nebraska taxes."

The announcement of plans for the workshops had prompted questions as to whether the activity was included in the University's budget and whether the activity was a proper one for an agency of state government.

Sen. Marvel, chairman of the Legislature's budget committee, asked for the meeting with Dr. Peterson.

Sen. Marvel said Dr. Peterson related that a land grant university has a three way role—research, on-campus teaching and off-campus education through the extension division. The institutes are part of the extension service's program on agricultural policy and public affairs.

Sen. Marvel said the explanation establishes that this is not a new activity, but one conducted through the framework of the University's regular educational approach.

Marvel said: "Any discussion of tax matters by any agency of state government may be a controversial subject, but the selection of specific topics following the policy established by appropriate officials of the University is rightfully an administrative decision."

Dr. Peterson said the objectives of the workshops are to provide the citizens of Nebraska with basic information on the state and local tax situation and the advantages and disadvantages of various methods of public finance as well as to increase citizens' awareness of their responsibilities in being informed on this and other important public issues.

Council Endorses NU Institutes

The Student Council has unanimously approved a resolution endorsing the right of the University to present basic factual information on public affairs issues to the people of the state.

Specifically, this includes approval of a University sponsored Tax Institute which will consist of approximately 15 two-day workshops conducted throughout the state Jan. 17-March 2.

The resolution was to be mailed to all state senators and newspapers throughout the state.

John Nolon, chairman of the public issues committee, said the University is committed to the challenge of being responsive to the needs of the society it serves. Thus, the Student Council endorses the right of the University to fulfill this need.

Nolon said the demand continues for a great variety of adult educational institutes and conferences, for post graduate professional refresher courses and in short for all general services of continuing education.

Selleck Sponsors AUF Fund Dance

Selleck Quadrangle is sponsoring a dance Friday night from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. in its dining hall.

The admission price is 25c a person and all proceeds will be turned over to the AUF Fund. All University students are invited to attend and support the AUF Drive.

A combo, the "Mark Four," has been hired by Selleck Quadrangle. This combo played at last year's Spring Fling and is composed of University students.

Refreshments will be sold for a nominal fee, and this money will also be given to the AUF Fund. All University students are invited to attend and support the AUF Drive.

Elgart Moves to Bar Evidence; Contends Police Violated Rights

Les Elgart, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of possessing narcotic drugs, has filed a motion in Lancaster County Court "to suppress evidence."

Elgart's attorney, Dale Wahrbruch, stated that police officers violated state and federal constitutions in entering and searching his hotel room in search of evidence without a search warrant or prior lawful arrest.

According to the motion, the evidence should be returned to Elgart because it was "unreasonably, illegally and unconstitutionally seized."

The motion states that the police officers violated Elgart's rights under one or more of four amendments to the United States Constitution.

It proposes that any evidence obtained from him or his hotel room while he was "unreasonably, unlawfully and unconstitutionally detained," at the Lincoln Police station, Nov. 4 and Nov. 5, should not be allowed as evidence in any judicial action.

Elgart and six of his band members were arrested after playing at the University Homecoming dance. They were charged with illegal possession of marijuana and heroin. The six band members pleaded guilty, while Elgart pleaded innocent.

The United States Supreme Court made a ruling June 19 that states, "all evidence obtained by search and seizure in violation of the constitution is, by that same authority, inadmissible in a state court."

Prior to this ruling, federal provisions on search and seizure had been held not to apply to state courts. The Fourth amendment to the U.S. Constitution provides that: "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated." Evidence that is obtained in violation of this provision is inadmissible in federal court. Nebraska courts, have admitted evidence that was obtained in violation of the provision prior to the Supreme Courts ruling.

Nine Finalists Compete For Commandant Crown

By Sue Hovik
Opening the 1961 social season on the University campus will be the 49th annual Military Ball on Dec. 8 at Pershing auditorium.

The highlight of the ball will be the crowning of the 1961 Honorary Commandant who will reign over the Army, Navy, Air Force ROTC departments. She will be elected at an all-student election on Monday. Polling places will be open on both city and ag campuses from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Army, Navy and Air Force queens, elected prior to the ball by ROTC cadets, will also be announced at the coronation ceremonies.

The Honorary Commandant and the three service queens will take part in formal ROTC parades, inspections and the presentation of awards and citations to the ROTC cadets during the coming year.

The nine Nebraska co-eds who have been selected as candidates for these honors are as follows:

Cori Cabela, junior in Teachers college and a member of Alpha Phi sorority.

Vicky Cullen, junior in Arts and Sciences, and a member of Gamma Phi Beta.

Kathy Madsen, junior in Teachers, and a member of Delta Gamma.

Marty Elliott, junior in Teachers College and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.

Judi Zadina, junior in Teachers College, and member of Alpha Omicron Pi.

These girls will be presented to the student body and football fans at the Nebraska-Colorado football game tomorrow.

The coeds decided to wear floor-length gowns in order to make the event more social and formal than ever before.

These girls just finished a series of TV performances on the Wayne West show. These appearances were courtesy of KOLN-TV and provided a greater public awareness and interest in the Military Ball.

The Air Force ROTC cadets are sponsoring the ball.

IFC Won't Assess For Ball

The Inter-fraternity Council (IFC) will not assess houses or their members for the IFC Ball, to be held April 7 as the climax of Greek Week, according to IFC president Don Ferguson, after Wednesday night's meeting.

Last year each fraternity man was charged $2.35 in order to pay for the ball.

This year's dance, which will be held at Pershing Auditorium, will be financed solely by ticket sales. Tickets will be $2.50 per couple and any deficit will be paid for out of the IFC treasury.

The council voted to limit the amount spent for a band to $2,500 leaving the selection up to the affairs committee and the executive council.

The Treasurer's report gave the October income as $2,806.30 with expenses at $557.74. The income and expenditures plus the balance of $3,555.90 gives a balance brought forward for Nov. 1 as $5,804.46.

Dr. Robert Nelson of the Geology department was named as the new IFC advisor. Dr. Nelson is starting his second year at the University. He received his Ph. D. from the University of Washington and did his undergraduate work at Oregon State University.

TURKEY TALK

John Skinner, Secretary of the Nebraska Turkey Federation, presents a 40 pound turkey to Mrs. Frank Morrison for Thanksgiving. The turkey which has enough meat to feed 120 people was raised by Howard Mercer of Gibbon. Skinner is an extension poultry specialist at the College of Agriculture.

Student UN Meet Delegates Propose NU College Chapter

Jim Samples, University delegate to the Collegiate Council for the United Nations in New York, Nov. 10-11, proposed the establishment of a University chapter of the Collegiate Council on the United Nations in his report to the Student Council Wednesday.

"Such a chapter," Samples said, "would provide a medium of exchange of ideas and a stimulus to our greater understanding of the crisis and problems in the UN and international politics."

Bill Buckley, state chairman of the Collegiate Council on the United Nations (CCUN) and Council member, asked that student-faculty interested in working in such a group should contact him or John Nolon, chairman of the Public Issues committee.

In other follow-up action on the CCUN by the Council, Buckley reported that the University delegation to the Midwest Model United Nations in St. Louis March 29-31 has applied to represent Nationalist China at the conference.

"If accepted as Nationalist China," Buckley said, "our delegation will act at St. Louis as the Nationalist Chinese delegation would act at the United Nations in New York City, as we try to further the goals and use the stratagems of Nationalist China at the Model UN."

"As they did when we sent delegates to the CCUN in New York City, the American Association on the United Nations of Lincoln has offered to help in financing the delegate's cost to the Model UN," said Buckley.

In the report of University delegates on the CCUN, history graduate student Art Hughes said that "it was apparent that if we (the delegates) were to bring anything back from the CCUN, our first obligation would be to better inform ourselves and our fellow students on the real force of the UN in the world for peace."

"This is necessary if we are to dispel the 'nonsense' about the UN and world politics which exists today on campus," Hughes added.

Senior representative Barbara Tanner said that she was most impressed with the CCUN for the personal contact it allowed with world leaders and personalities.

"The extreme poise and affluence of international ambassadors and delegates in our language more than drives home the point of Nehru that we cannot judge the international student or representative by our standards, but by their standards," Samples added.

Council Will Select Five To Attend Model UN Meet

"The University will send one delegation of five student members to the Midwest Model United Nations, Mar. 29-31, at Washington University in St. Louis," announced Bill Buckley, Student Council member, Wednesday.

Part of the cost of the conference fees will be paid by the Lincoln chapter of the American Association on the United Nations.

Letters of application will be accepted in the Student Council office until Monday, Dec. 4, from all students interested in and qualified to represent the University.

Applications should include your name, accumulative grade point average, major, experience in UN and international politics field, and the reason you desire to represent the University, and the reason you feel qualified to do so.

The costs for the conference will be $60 registration for each delegation plus $12 for each delegate. Travel, meal, hotel and will be additional.

"The charge to be made each University delegate has not as yet been determined," Buckley said, "but will be somewhat less than this amount as donations are received," he said.

"If sufficient money is collected," Buckley added, "the University may send two delegations to the Model UN, but will concentrate on one at present."

One hundred and two delegations from colleges and universities over the U.S. will represent member countries of the UN at the conference. Through participation student will expand their knowledge of the U.N. and its functions, and strengths and weaknesses as well as the crisis in of international politics today, said Buckley.

Directories Sell On

The sale of Builders Student-Faculty Telephone Directories has been extended until Tuesday, according to Jeanne Morrison, sales chairman. The directories will be on sale at the front booth in the Student Union, 8-4:30; the cost is $1.

Students in Card Section To Assume Cost of Loss

No action will be taken against the houses throwing up cards in the Nebraska-Kansas game if a donation is made by each affected student to cover their cost stated Jay Graf, Corn Cob chairman of the card section.

Three hundred sets of cards were lost or destroyed at the game. These sets cost $4 a set which brought the total cost to $1,200, said Graf.

J. P. Colbert, Dean of Student Affairs, was chairman of the meeting attended by house representatives, president of Panhellenic, members of the athletic department and president of IFC. The group met following the showing of the movies of the card section on Wednesday evening.

The members of the athletic department, who originally paid for the cards, will contribute $200 towards the cost of replacing them. The $1,000 will come from the fraternities and sororities which sat in the section and threw cards.

It was proposed at the meeting that a donation of $.75 is collected from every person sitting in the section. This proposal will be voted on at a meeting to be held after Thanksgiving vacation. The Corn Cobs and Tassels would collect from the Kernals.

The cost of the cards will not be taken out of the $50 deposit given by the organized houses at the beginning of the football season. This deposit is only encroached upon if the house does not fill the section or holds up the wrong card.

The Independent's representative said that they would take responsibility for the Kernals section, if it were to be entirely filled with Independents.

Flake, Flake, More Flake

A flash snow storm has ended the weeks of Indian summer on campus in less than 12 hours. Lincoln was blanketed with five inches of snow and more than two inches of moisture between 6 p.m. Wednesday and 6 a.m. Thursday.

Most of the campus population awoke to a glistening white world Thursday morning as contrasted to the barren trees and shrubs seen only a few hours before.

The grand entrance of winter brought more than a welcomed change of scenery, however. The wet and heavy snow played a direct part in the crash of an Air Force B-47 jet aircraft and the subsequent death of four Air Force officers, several automobile accidents and a multitude of collapsing power and telephone lines.

A large section of the campus went without electricity after 2 a.m. Thursday morning. Traffic on most streets was slow but passable. Both city snow plows and power line repairmen worked throughout the night.

The Lincoln U.S. Weather Bureau has forecast some blowing and drifting snow for Friday. However, most of the snow continues to melt and flood the streets with slush and running water despite near-freezing temperatures.

Although forecasts for this weekend have not been confirmed, the weatherman said the temperatures might climb to the high thirties. Loyal Husker football fans can expect a long, cold afternoon under cloudy to partially cloudy skies Saturday afternoon when Nebraska plays host to Colorado. The game two years ago was played in 14 degree weather with gusting winds up to 25 m.p.h.

Despite all the damage done by the snow, there is one good result noted on campus. At least one fraternity pledge class welcomed the falling flakes. They piled their frosh beanies in the snow and burned the stack to the ground, proving the old adage: "It's an ill wind that doesn't blow someone some good."

JUDGES ARE COWED

Member of the team not pictured is Melvin Riley. This Chicago trip will be the last intercollegiate competition for Nebraska's judging team. The team placed third and fifth in other national contests, the National Barrow Show and the American Royal livestock show respectively.
