

New NU Coach? Bidding Heavy For Army Star

By Bob Besom

The rush today is on Hank Foldberg, Army's popular All American of the '40's.

At least four schools, including the Cornhusker home grounds, are eyeing the Wichita U. head grid man.

Foldberg, the 37-year old native of Dallas, Tex., has confirmed a solid bid from Nebraska's new athletic director Tippy Dye.

Army and Texas A&M, two schools with which he played college ball, are both in the picture. And, of course, Wichita U. has been tempting its popular mentor, whose team won the Missouri Valley Championship and earned a spot opposite Villanova in El Paso's Sun Bowl follies.

Challengers

Wichita is trying to beat off challengers with an athletic director-coach offer.

Foldberg said that he had talked at length with Dye but added, "I don't think there is much possibility of any decision until after our appearance in the Sun Bowl on Dec. 30."

Foldberg paid his first visit to Lincoln with Dye last week. "It's a very nice city. Nebraska certainly has a fine plant. Somebody had a lot of foresight up there," he said following the trip.

Foldberg, who got his license in July, piloted the plane that brought Dye and himself along with their wives to Lincoln. "I think flying will be a great advantage in recruiting," Hank commented.

Foldberg said that he didn't know any of the Nebraska assistant coaches.

Under him at Wichita are Leonard Brown, Missouri, 1947; Craig Russell, Colgate, '56; Neil Schmidt, Purdue, '51; and Joel Wahlberg, Florida, '57.

Recommendation

The Nebraska Board of Regents has recommended that a member of outgoing Coach Bill Jennings' staff be retained by the new Husker football coach.

The idea is to maintain "continuity of program" and to keep contacts in Nebraska.

The recommendation, made to Tippy Dye, apparently is a boost toward keeping Cletus Fischer, the only Nebraska native on the staff.

Informed that Dale Hall had been dismissed at Army, Foldberg said: "This really floors me. I just didn't think it would happen."

In regard to the Army opening, Foldberg commented, "It depends on their interest in me."

Pro Offense

Foldberg, who played professional ball for the Brooklyn Dodgers and Chicago Hornets between 1946 and 1950, said the offense his Wichita team presently employs "is pretty much a pro offense."

"We use an unbalanced line with men in motion. We also use the lonesome end and set our backs in the opposite direction. We also use the wing T with flankers."

Foldberg played football both at Army and Texas A&M but got his degree from Florida.

He was an All-American end two years in the Doc Blanchard-Glen Davis era at West Point.

His first coaching post was as a Purdue assistant in 1950. He moved on to assistant jobs at Texas A&M as well as Florida before taking the Wichita assignment.

It has been reported that Dye will receive about $17,000 as Nebraska's athletic director and that Foldberg has been offered over $15,000. He receives $13,500 from Wichita. Dye's salary has not been set by the Board of Regents.

Seminar, Alumni College To Teach NU Operation

University alumni will be given the opportunity to become better acquainted with the classroom atmosphere and the University as a whole through two programs scheduled for the first week in June.

The events, to be held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, are a Land Grant Centennial Citizens Alumni College, June 4-6, and an NU Alumni College, June 7-8.

Dr. Merk Hobson, dean of the College of Architecture and Engineering, is in charge of the seminar which will be a guest affair.

He gave this explanation of the project:

"Each college will be asked to invite state and community leaders to attend. The purpose is to provide a frank and open discussion by Nebraskans concerning the University's role, what it is doing, what it should not be doing and its problems."

Dr. Hobson said that seminar participants will see the total operation of the University.

The first announcement of the Alumni College was made in the November issue of the Nebraska Alumnus magazine. According to tentative plans alumni and their wives will have the opportunity of participating in classes similar to those held daily on the campus.

Authorities from the University faculty and other outstanding speakers, will conduct a series of lectures on a variety of subjects of interest. The suggested areas of study suggested so far run from modern literature to preventive dentistry to American foreign policy to possible Nebraska tax reform.

According to the Alumnus magazine numerous other colleges and universities have had exceptional success with such programs.

The magazine continued, "This is an opportunity for continuing education in a mature atmosphere conducive to real learning. Education should not end with a diploma. The changing times require a new outlook and additional information in many spheres. The emphasis of this program is on intellectual stimulation with a broad approach to the understanding of man and his problems; to acquaint the human mind with the intellectual heritage of the times."

Judi Zadina scores a military victory—the Honorary Commandant title and a smile from Chancellor Clifford Hardin.

Judi Zadina to Reign As 1961 Commandant

Judi Zadina, escorted by Cadet Col. Lyle Burry, was crowned 1961 Honorary Commandant by Gov. Frank Morrison at the 49th annual Military Ball Friday night at Pershing auditorium.

The three service queens are Ruthanne Read, Miss Air Force; Marty Elliott, Miss Navy; and Kathie Madsen, Miss Army.

Other honors for Miss Zadina, who is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi, include 1961 Miss E-Week, second runner-up for Miss Lincoln and Nebraska Sweetheart finalist. She was a 1960 Cornhusker Beauty Queen finalist, Miss Sigma Chi Derby Day of 1959, and a member of Pi Lambda Theta.

The service queen escorts for the evening were Cadet Lt. Col. Stephen Smith for Miss Read, Cadet Capt. Harvey Hartman for Miss Elliott, and Cadet Brig. Gen. Richard McDaniel for Miss Madsen.

Approximately 1950 people danced to the music of the Glenn Miller Orchestra.

The other members of the court were Cori Cabela, Jeanne Garner, Pat Johnson, Vickie Cullen, and Sherry Foster.

Wiltbank Attends Stockmen's Meet

University agricultural scientist Dr. James N. Wiltbank, one of the several scientists selected from industry and college ranks in the U.S. and Canada, will be a guest lecturer at the internationally known Stockmen's short course at Washington State University next week.

Drop Deadline

The last day to drop classes is Saturday, Dec. 16 rather than Dec. 9 as reported earlier in the Daily Nebraskan.

Triangle Receives Okay; New National Fraternity To Colonize on Campus

By Tom Kotouc

Triangle fraternity, a national social fraternity of engineers and scientists, has received the go-ahead for colonization at the University.

Donald F. Young, director of general services of Triangle fraternity, said that he has received the permission of the Interfraternity Council, the Board of Control and the University administration to colonize immediately.

"The entrance of Triangle into the fraternity life is another step forward in expanding the fraternity system at the University and in keeping abreast of added enrollments," said Don Ferguson, president of the IFC, who has been working for fraternity expansion.

Triangle, founded in the fall of 1906 at the University of Illinois, limits the membership of its 40 chapters across the nation to students majoring in engineering, architecture, chemistry, physics, or mathematics.

Real Estate

"We are contacting members in the Lincoln-Omaha area," said Young, "and are working through Lincoln real estate agents to find housing facilities."

William Speece, chairman of the Lincoln Alumni Committee, assistant professor of architecture at the University and a member of Arter and Speece, architects in Lincoln, will be the chapter advisor.

Young said that at September's biannual National Convention in Milwaukee, delegates had voted unanimously to request permission to colonize at the University.

"Our desire to come here is based upon the outstanding scholastic reputation of the University combined with a strong fraternity system."

Ranked Sixth

In the 1960-61 school year, Triangle ranked sixth among the nearly sixty members of the National Interfraternity Conference (NIC), Young pointed out.

A senior member of the NIC, Triangle is the only member fraternity that selects its membership from engineering, architecture, chemistry, physics or mathematics majors.

Chapters are autonomous and self-governing in matters of purely local interest, said Young, while matters affecting, the national growth and strength are discussed and resolved at the national convention, where each undergraduate chapter has two votes and each alumni group has one vote.

Outstanding alumni of Triangle include Lt. General John R. Hodge, former military governor of Korea; Dean S. C. Hollister, former dean of the school of engineering and trustee, Cornell University; Frederick R. Kappel, President, American Telephone and Telegraph; David B. Steinman, famed master designer and bridge builder; Benjamin George Elliott, nationally known educator, author and mechanical engineer.

Daniel W. Mead, authority on hydraulics; John T. Retzius, president, Illinois Institute of Technology; Arthur N. Talbot, authority on concrete and railroads and Dr. Ovid Wallace Eshback, dean of Northwestern Technological Institute, Northwestern University.

Students Publish 'Review'

First Issue Devoted To 'Compensation'

The first issue of "Nebraska Law Review," published by the University College of Law, will be devoted to Workmen's Compensation.

The publication has a circulation of 4,000, one of the largest of any law school in the country, featuring articles by out of state national authorities, members of the Nebraska Bar Association, and students in the College of Law.

The leading article of the December issue is "Workmen's Compensation: Recent Judicial Developments," by Samuel B. Horovitz, a plaintiff's attorney in Boston, Mass.

The article is a compilation of speeches made by Horovitz in a recent world-wide tour.

The only article not on Workmen's Compensation is written by Dale Broeder, assistant professor of law at the College of Law.

Broeder's article concerns criminal procedure, and the use of illegally obtained evidence in state courts.

The three other issues of "Nebraska Law Review" will be published in February, April and June.

Working under Editor Sheldon Krantz on publication of the magazine is a staff of 12 students in the College of Law.

Candidates for the "Review" are honor students from the freshman class, who then must write two articles of publishable quality during their sophomore year.

Kimball Receives Law Scholarship

Charles Kimball, a senior in the College of Law, has been chosen to receive the Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Foundation Research Scholarship.

The actual presentation of the $200 scholarship will be made at the College Awards Banquet in May.

The requirement for the grant is a research paper on the oil and gas field, to be completed by Kimball before April.

The Indianapolis senior was chosen by a scholarship committee composed of Law College faculty members.

Kimball's scholastic record in the College and his record in the oil and gas course formed the bases for the committee's selection.

A Lincoln lawyer, Charles Wright, was the advisory committee member representing the Foundation.

REPORTING AS ORDERED SIR... A... MA'ME

Cadence Countesses Make First Indoor Appearance

The Cadence Countesses, the University Girls' drill team, made its first indoor appearance at the halftime show of the Nebraska Southern Methodist basketball game last week.

At the last home football game, the 32 member drill team performed with the other military groups at the halftime show.

Other events scheduled for this year include halftime performances at basketball games at Omaha Central, Dec. 15; Nebraska City, Jan. 12; University High, Feb. 9; Lincoln Southeast, Feb. 16; and University, March 7.

From March 9-11, the drill team will do an exhibition drill at an invitational drill meet at Champaign, Ill. Another drill meet is also scheduled at Madison, Wis., April 7-9.

The officers for Cadence Countesses this year are Honorary Col. Bethen Smith, president; Honorary Lt. Col. Carol Hodges, vice president; Honorary Capt. Joyce Toniges, secretary; Honorary Capt. Sharon Dietricks, treasurer; Honorary Capt. Nancy Thomas, supply officer; and Honorary Capt. Julie Westhoff, operations officer.

Capt. Charles Svoboda, advisor for the drill team, said that the team, now in its third year on the University campus, is now considered one of the best in the United States.

Union Christmas Party Tuesday

A visit by Santa will highlight the annual Student Union Christmas party Tuesday, Dec. 12, 8 p.m. in the Union.

A special invitation has been extended to all international students to participate in the festivities and caroling. Preceding the Christmas party, the annual Union decorating party will begin at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, for all Union workers and friends.

European Classes Mix Work, Fun

Classrooms Abroad make it possible for a student to combine the learning of a language and becoming acquainted with the culture of a nation with a pleasure trip to Europe.

Eleven groups, each numbering about 20-30 selected American college students, will form seminars in European cities this summer to study the language, culture countries during the nine-week stay.

The Classrooms Abroad program is designed for the serious student who does not plan to see all of Europe in a summer. It gives him a more profound experience through a summer of living in one of the following cities: Berlin, Munich or Tubingen in Germany; Vienna, Austria; Besancon, Grenoble or Pau, France; Neuchatel, Switzerland; Madrid or Svatander, Spain; and Florence, Italy.

Groups of seven to ten members will be instructed three to five hours daily by American and native professors. These classes will deal with classical and modern texts, the newspaper, contemporary problems, conversation and composition, pronunciation and grammar. Students will hear lectures on history and literature, and meet with outstanding personalities.

Social Activities

They will have full auditing privileges at the university in each of these selected towns and will participate in all academic and social activities with the native students.

Informal get-togethers with residents of the cities and visits to museums, historical and literary spots of interest, industrial companies, concerts, theaters, and movies will supplement the classroom instruction.

Students participating in this program will live with carefully selected families in the cities of their choice. These families have been instructed to speak only the native language.

Classrooms Abroad does not accept tourists, but only those who are willing to work to attain a high level of academic accomplishment.

Optional Tour

After residing in one city for seven weeks, he may take an optional two-week tour of German, French, Spanish, or Italian areas.

The fee will include transportation by plane, travel from port of arrival to place of residence, full room and board during the session, tuition and fees to Classrooms Abroad and the host universities for instruction and all extracurricular activities, tickets to theaters, concerts, movies, or cultural performances of the students' choice.

It also includes admission fees at lectures and museums, participations in open houses or other social events, all books and other study materials, transportation and full room and board during weekend trips, and transportation to point of departure from Europe, if the student leaves with the group on the two-week trip.

The cost of the two-week trip which follows the study sessions includes full transportation, hotel rooms and
