

Biz Ad College Studies Nebraska Motel Industry

If and when money is made available by the University, a study of the motel industry in Nebraska by the College of Business Administration Bureau of Business Research can be published, according to Dr. Edgar Z. Palmer, director of the Bureau.

Under a $40,000 grant from the Small Business Administration, (SBA) four research projects have been authorized. Two of these projects have already been submitted to the SBA for approval, and two others are not yet completed.

Once the research projects are approved by the SBA, they are published and made available to anyone who wants them.

The publications are then listed in many guide indexes and trade publications such as "The Distribution Guide" of the U.S. Dept. of Commerce, and the "Index of Publications" of the Associated University Bureaus of Business and Economic Research. A study by the Bureau on methods of counting businesses, and the Drs. McConnell and Peterson study to help show ways small Nebraska manufacturers can diversify were submitted this fall to the SBA.

The McConnell and Peterson study is an investigation and analysis of research activity, product differentiation and produce diversification by small manufacturers in the state.

A study on ag economics by Charles S. Miller, dean of the College of Business Administration, and the Dr. Dick study of the operating controls of Nebraska manufacturing firms employing 25 to 200 persons are not yet ready to be submitted.

Completed under an older grant from the Small Business Administration is the Windehausen with Dr. Cole study and survey of retail store hours in Nebraska cities with populations from 10,000 to 25,000.

A study on the social and economic impact of three recreational lakes in Nebraska by Dr. Palmer is the most recently published study.

Dean Miller said the reawakening of interest in the courting of industry on the part of Nebraskans has always been in the minds of the staff members.

incomplete for a failing grade.

"Grades should be meaningful and should be reported when they are both good and bad," Pearlstein said.

Pearlstein moved that the recommendation be changed to require an automatic failing grade if the work was not made up after the two year period.

Harold Wise, associate dean of the Graduate College, said this practice would work an injustice on students who had obtained otherwise good grades, but were unable to make up the work in time.

Others noted that since the original motion stated the conditions on which an incomplete could be given, and left the matter to the discretion of the teacher, that this was a personal matter between the instructor and student rather than a subject for University policy.

The amendment was defeated, and a second amendment "to inform the student of the make-up work requirements as well as the department" was added.

Defendants Required To Appear at Hearing

this fall, defending students are required to be present before the Tribunal when their case is studied and recommended.

Defendant

"The defendant may further request that counselor or witnesses be allowed, but the student involved in this case did not."

In a brief prepared by Dean Colbert for the Student Tribunal hearing to represent the University in the case, Colbert said "The University administration considers this case to be one of the most serious ever to appear before the Student Tribunal."

"Because of its seriousness," he added, "I preferred definite charges, but did not ask that the Tribunal bring back any specific recommendation."

"Members of fraternities on other campuses have been expelled from fraternity membership for belonging to subversive organizations as Theta Nu Epsilon and Pi Xi," the brief continued.

Control

"These subversives attempt to gain control of student organizations, dictating their policies and controlling their membership."

"The University has reason to believe that there have been attempts to gain control of Student Council, Interfraternity Council, and Innocents Society in the past by these groups."

"It is due to their disruptive character that they have been banned on this campus as well as other campuses across the U.S.," the brief concluded.

"A brief was prepared for this case," said Colbert, "because the University was pressing charges instead of the campus and or city police as in an illegal possession case or instead of a faculty member as in a dishonesty case."

Morality

"All student violations are referred to the Tribunal for their recommendations except those involving sexual morality or those coming before Dean Colbert when the Tribunal is in recess," Schmeling said.

"In the four years the Tribunal has been in existence, this is the only case of involving suspension or expulsion to come before it, except for that case where students were involved in burning a homecoming display in 1959," he said.

Colbert said that he was especially pleased with the Student Tribunal, commenting on the difficulty in operating before it was founded.

"The Tribunal is particularly significant in this case because the case was studied not by one individual, but by two faculty judges and seven student judges," said Schmeling. "And each of these students has experienced the pressures to which a student is subjected in campus life, allowing him to better understand the situation of the students who were brought before the Tribunal."

Tribunal judges are Dick Schmeling, chairman; Bill Holland, vice chairman, Ann Walker, secretary; Bill Connell, Harold Dehart, Steve Tempero; Dick Tempero, and faculty judges E. O. Belsheim and John Paustian.

This was just one of the 25 to 30 cases that the Tribunal has heard this year, Schmeling said.

Dr. Saylor Addresses Educational Workshop

"States must make provision in the years immediately ahead for new programs of technical education," committed Dr. Galen Saylor, professor of secondary education at the University.

Dr. Saylor, speaking at the Sixth Workshop of Educational Organizations in Chicago, cautioned that "jobs in sufficient numbers simply will not be available for the surplus farm youth nor for the untrained city boy and girl at the unskilled level."

Dr. Saylor said, "The untrained youth of tomorrow will be a non-career drifter from one low-level job to another as seasonal employment opportunities fluctuate, or an unemployable bum."

Dr. Saylor was invited to present the paper on population analysis in reference to education by the American Association of School Administrators, Council of Chief State School Officials, National Congress of Parents and Teachers, National Education Association, National School Boards Association and the U.S. Office of Education.

New Programs

Dr. Saylor listed the new programs of Technical education as:

- Establishment of technical institutes which offer high-level programs of technical education at the post-secondary level.
- Expansion of the program of junior colleges, so that they will offer collegiate-type education and technical education.
- Development of non-degree technical programs of one, two, or three years duration at colleges and universities.

"In large metropolitan centers, the establishment of technical institutes is likely the best approach. In less populous states, the establishment of a system of state-supported junior colleges, which offer appropriate programs of technical education as well as the liberal arts and pre-professional education, seems desirable."

Defense Act Fellowships Expand to Include Spanish

Modern Foreign Language Fellowships, given under the National Defense Education Act, (NDEA) have been broadened this year to include Spanish.

Applications for Spanish fellowships for University graduate students are being accepted by the department of romance languages. They must be submitted to Prof. Robert Esquenai-Mayo by Jan. 15.

The fellowship program authorizes the U.S. Commissioner of Education to pay stipends to selected individuals undergoing advanced training in designated modern foreign languages and related studies needed for full understanding of the area where the language is commonly used.

Fellowships are awarded to graduate students who are preparing to teach Spanish, or a subject in which competency of the language is necessary, at an institution of higher education in the United States.

They are also awarded to graduate students preparing for employment in a professional or technical activity, governmental or non-governmental, which contributes to the conduct of the Nation's economic, cultural, educational, scientific, social or political relations and in which
