

Clare, Shroeder, Gage Nominated

By Mike MacLean
Students John Shroeder, Steve Gage and Pat Clare are the first nominations received for the "Outstanding Nebraskan Award."
Further nominations for either students or faculty members must be submitted to the Daily Nebraskan office in the basement of the Union by Tuesday, Jan. 16, 8 p.m. The recipients of the awards will be guests at a noon luncheon the 19th in the Union.

John Shroeder
The letter of nomination for John Shroeder read:
"John is a senior in Arts and Sciences, majoring in Economics. . . .

He has served as a former assistant business manager of the Daily Nebraskan, section editor of the Cornhusker and business manager of Kosmet Klub.

Union President
In addition to serving as president of the Student Union, John is one of three students to ever hold the presidency of the Union Board of Managers. He is vice president of Kappa Sigma.

More important than John's activities is the tireless service he has given to the University. He is the man doing the work, not for the honor, but for his genuine interest in his fellow students and his University.

John is never too busy for the little man, and for this reason, we feel his humility and constructive leadership should gain the award for him."

Pat Clare
Pat Clare's service to the University and scholarship were stressed in his letter of nomination, which read:

Scholarship
Pat has shown through his excellent scholarship and service to the University that he is deserving of this honor. His 6.3 average earned while playing football and engaging in other activities has earned him acceptance from the University of Nebraska Medical School which he will enter next fall.

Pat is president of Delta Upsilon and past secretary. He is president of the N-Club and this season was a tri-captain of the football squad. A two-year letterman, Pat was named to the Big 8 All-Scholastic Football Team last year.

These accomplishments plus membership in Innocent's Society and Delta Phi Alpha,

German honorary, indicate a truly "Outstanding Nebraskan."

Steve Gage
The letter nominating Steve Gage, the third nominee, ran: "We would like to place in nomination the name of Steve Gage for Outstanding Nebraskan."

Activities
Among Mr. Gage's activities are his present office of president of Student Council; past secretary of Big Eight Intrafraternity Council; past Public Relations Director of the IFC; past Treasurer and member of Sigma Delta Chi, member of Kosmet Klub; and Treasurer of Innocents Society.

Steve who was a finalist for Outstanding Collegiate Male in 1961, has a scholastic overall average of 7.1, the second highest in his class in the College of Engineering, is a former member of the Engineering Executive Board, and served as an editorialist for the Nebraska Blueprint.

He was Co-Editor of the Intrafraternity Council Rush Book in 1961, and with his wife holds this position for 1962.

A General Motors Scholar, Steve has a Regents Scholarship and the Duane Butler Scholarship. He is a member of Sigma Chi social fraternity, and is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, Pi Tau Sigma, Sigma Tau, and Sigma Delta Chi honorary fraternities, and is currently the student writer for the Nebraska Alumnus.

Accomplishments
His list of accomplishments is even more impressive than his list of activities. Under his leadership, in one semester the Student Council has developed and undertaken more significant projects than it has in recent years. The University of Nebraska has had few individual students who have taken the interest in and devoted the effort to its development and progress that Steve has.

Steve is known by many of his friends as being a very sincere and honest individual.

and idealist who has placed not only his personal goals and objectives high, but has a determined desire to see student activities and organizations of which he has a part reach the highest level of accomplishment they possibly can.

It is our sincere belief that no other individual in the University of Nebraska community has ever been more devoted to his university or is more deserving of the honor of Outstanding Nebraskan. We encourage your consideration of him."

Vreeland Gift Nominations Open Again

Nominations are again open for the Nebraska Vreeland Awards; awarded annually in English, art, and music. The awards, which consist of stipends of $400 in art, and $300 each in English and music, will be given to three students who have produced work of high quality at the University in the respective three fields.

Faculty members of the three departments are invited to nominate students through the department chairmen by March 15, the deadline.

The Vreeland Awards were made possible through the bequest of the late Francis W. Vreeland, an artist and native Nebraskan. That bequest also included paintings, sculpture, and other works of art by Vreeland.

Each year, when the awards are made, a memorial exhibition of a selection of these works is held in the University Art Galleries.

The recipients of last year's awards were Don Williams in art, Lee Parks in English, and Walter Ross in music.

Council Considers Change

By Tom Kotouc
In Student Council action Wednesday, a proposal to change the method of amending the Council constitution was introduced, along with the results of a preliminary investigation of the feasibility and need for a People-to-People (PTP) program at the University.

Student Council Activity Chairman Dave Scholz reported that 12 campus organizations are not in "good standing" with the Council for failure to comply with Student Council regulations requiring filing of activity reports and constitutions.

Scholz said the deadline for compliance with Council regulations is Tuesday, when those organizations not responding to the letter which has been sent informing them of their status will be put on "probationary status."

The names of the delinquent organizations were withheld from publication.

Constitutions
Jundiciary Chairman Jim Samples reported that the constitutions of 10 campus organizations have been approved and returned, as well as the amendments to the Residence Association for Men's constitution.

Samples said that his committee has been considering setting April 30 as the last date in the University academic year that an organization could submit its constitution to the Council for approval. "The workload and rush caused by a number of organizations revising their constitutions at the end of the year has prompted this consideration," said Samples.

Council member Don Burt introduced a proposal to change the method of amending the Council constitution, which will be voted on by the student body at the spring general election, if passed on by the Council.

Burt's recommended amendment to Article XII of the constitution would set up a special constitutional election on the second Monday of December to decide any proposed amendments passed on by the Council in that semester or after the spring election the preceding term.

Amendments
Amendments could also be voted upon at spring general election, Burt said, with the requirement that amendments be submitted at least 28 days prior to either election.

If over 30 per cent of the eligible students vote, the majority of those voting must approve the amendment.

Proposals for revision or amendments will be published at least three times prior to the election at intervals of at least one week in the Daily Nebraskan, the final publishing to run no sooner than two weeks before the election.

Tabled
Burt's proposed amendment was tabled until next week before final Council action.

In other business, Chip Kuklin, People-to-People (PTP) chairman, reported that a preliminary investigation of the feasibility and need for PTP at the University had revealed both a positive need and demand for the American-International student friendship exchange program.

"Plans have been tentatively made for developing the PTP program at NU early in the second semester, Kuklin said, "with the committee proceeding to complete arrangements for publicity and membership as rapidly as possible."

No change in the Christmas vacation for 1962 is possible now, said Council member Jane Fauquet, as classes will be dismissed Friday December 21, 1962 for Christmas vacation with Christmas falling on the following Tuesday.

Vacation
"The continuance of classes until the Friday before Christmas was a test," said Fauquet, "of the necessity of dismissing classes a full week before Christmas or at least part of the week before."

Big 8 Delegates Unanimously Accept Resolution Approving PTP Program

Delegates from all Big Eight schools unanimously accepted a resolution endorsing and encouraging a pilot People-to-People (PTP) program which will be developed in the coming semester at all Big Eight universities.

Meeting at the Big Eight Student Government Association conference at Lincoln's Nebraska Center over Christmas vacation, the delegates call PTP a "vital aid in increasing mutual understanding among the nations of the world."

Chip Kuklin, PTP chairman of the Student committee will soon be "ready to move" in setting up a People-to-People program on the University campus, a preliminary study on the need and feasibility of PTP at NU just completed.

"People-to-People will initiate a new concept in a sincere and spontaneous exchange between international and American students on the Big-8 campuses," said Kuklin. "The details will be released soon."

Founder
In a second meeting at the Center, some thirty representatives from all Big Eight schools met with Bill Dawson, student founder of the University People-to-People concept, to move into the second stage of a pilot program designed to set up People-to-People councils at each of the Big Eight schools.

"People to People as it was set up at Kansas University," said Dawson, an engineering student at the University of Kansas, "broke down the barriers between American and international students, promoting understanding of each others' cultures, ideals, and ways of life."

This People-to-People meeting at the Nebraska Center over Christmas vacation was called to report the results of a pilot study undertaken by all Big Eight schools following an orientation meeting on People-to-People last November at the University of Kansas.

Favorable reports from each of the Big Eight schools in student interest and need for the People-to-People program prompted Dawson to give a go-ahead to the Big Eight pilot project—the first of its type in the United States.

Responsibility
"It is our responsibility as American students," said Dawson, "to give international students a hand whenever we can with their needs and problems as our guests in the United States."

"We can do this partly by working beside them as they study and interpret our culture, traditions and ideals and partly by extending to them the hand of American friendship."

"In the exchange that follows, we will learn of their habits and aspirations in an accurate and comprehensive way for which no amount of reading can substitute."

Dawson reported that funds had been made available to set up People-to-People on a university level nationally.

Big Eight
He said further that he, Rafer Johnson, and Rick Barnes, who assisted Dawson in setting up KU program, would soon be traveling across the United States if the Big Eight People-to-People program proved successful.

Financing of the People-to-People program on a campus level would be dependent on local fund raising campaigns, said Dawson.

"Some $4,000.00 has been raised from students at the University of Kansas," said Dawson, "for People-to-People since the program was initiated last March."

In other business at the meeting the national coordination center for the University People-to-People was moved from the University of Kansas to Kansas City.

Laboratory Theater Produces 3 Plays

By Sue Houik
"Hello from Bertha" by Tennessee Williams will raise the curtain on this semester's three laboratory theater productions which will be held next week.

The three plays, including "Hello from Bertha" directed by Kent Broadhurst, "The Monkey's Paw," directed by Willard Marquardt and "Fumed Oak" directed by Ann Whitmore, will be presented both Tuesday and Wednesday evenings beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Two lab plays will also be presented on the evenings of Jan. 18 and 19 at 7:30 p.m. They are "Salome" directed by Fred Gaines and "The Fantastics" directed by Nancy Wilson.

The five plays will be staged in the Temple building in 303 and 201 Arena Theater.
Laboratory Theater is a semester project under the direction of Dr. Dallas Williams, associate professor of speech. The students are completely in charge of the plays. Each director is responsible for choosing his own play and holding tryouts. In addition he is responsible for all sets, publicity, make-up and costumes.

These plays are either one-act plays or cuttings (certain scenes taken from a longer play). The plays being produced next week have been in rehearsal for five weeks.

Broadhurst explained that not all plays can be produced in the Arena because the spectators sit all around the stage area. One handicap is that some sets can't be used in this type of a stage.

The Arena in Temple building was recently equipped with a new light set-up and sound. It is used only for student productions.

"The Arena can produce interesting effects," said Broadhurst, "there are no walls and the boundaries are set up by the placement of sets and lights." He feels that the Arena is a contemporary approach to drama.

He said that the Arena gives a more intimate feeling — almost like motion pictures. The audience is so close that a minimum of projected emotion will come across.

Builders Elect 1962 Officers

Mary Kokes will lead Builders as the president for the coming year as the result of the Wednesday Builders elections.

Miss Kokes is also secretary of the Student Council, activity chairman of Alpha Omicron Pi and a Lincoln project chairman.

Other board members chosen include Ag Vice president, Del Rae Beerman; public relations vice president, Vicky Cullen; publications vice president, Honey Lou McDonald; treasurer, Judy Edwards and secretary, Julie Westerhoff.
