

Student Affairs Deans Emphasize Standards

DEAN HALLGREN

By KAREN GUNLICKS
Nebraskan Staff Writer

Policies on standards are being emphasized by the two Associate Deans of Student Affairs.

"A big part of our education is having cultivated manners and standards of refinement," stated Miss Helen A. Snyder, dean of women.

"If students do not learn standards here, then they will have difficulty in their later business and social lives because college graduates are expected to have attained certain standards in their dress, manners and social graces," explained Frank M. Hallgren, dean of men.

Students should develop a discriminatory judgment of standards, for so many situations and acts are not necessarily wrong, but are in poor taste. They must learn when and where certain actions are done or not done, continued Miss Snyder. She explained that some students fail to realize their responsibilities in certain areas and underestimate the impact of some of the decisions they make. The standard of fun should be more at the college level. A standard of excellence should be created so that the individual should want to do what is a good thing to do.

Standard Rules

"Our rules on standards are as much educational as they are rules," concluded Hallgren.

The Deans' combined policy on drinking is illustrated in three points:

1. The University expects all students to obey the laws of the state which prohibit the possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages by all who are under twenty-one years of age and prohibits the consumption of these beverages by all persons on public highways, roads and state property.
2. The University expects all students to obey the University regulations which prohibit the possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages at all events sponsored by any University organization or group.
3. The University does not interfere with the legal possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages by students so long as legal consumption and possession is not at an event sponsored by a University organization or group and the possession or consumption does not result in conduct beyond the limits of propriety and good taste.

"These laws are enforced by the police agencies," said Hallgren. "This office takes action only on the basis of report, whether it be by the agencies, by chaperones or by citizens," he continued.

"We have no policy of snooping," related Miss Snyder. "The rules are for the protection of the students and the University."

"We entrust the officers of an organization with the responsibility of its parties, not the chaperones," she said.

"I feel very strongly that students should respect their responsibility to obey the state laws, since they cannot choose which laws to obey. As soon as the Greeks realize this, they can defend their system better," she added.

IFC Control

As a member of the IFC Board of Control, Hallgren explained that IFC is free to exercise and control all internal affairs of the fraternity system as long as they are in accordance with the rules set forth by the Faculty Senate Subcommittee on Student Organizations, of which he is chairman. The fraternities may be more restrictive, but not less restrictive than this committee.

In relation to Panhellenic and A.W.S., Miss Snyder said that she feels the elected representatives of these organizations have assumed a great responsibility and exercise good judgment. Sometimes though, she said, the members at large let their leaders down by failing to support them.

Miss Snyder received her BA degree from Lawrence College in Appleton, Wisconsin and her MA degree from Northwestern University. Hallgren received his AB and MA degrees from the University and his IA (Industrial Administrator) and MBA (Bachelor of Business Administration) from Harvard University.

High Schoolers Visit NU Over Weekend

Debators To Discuss U.S. Trade

By DIANA COPSEY
Daily Nebraskan Reporter
More than 600 high school students from 41 Nebraska high schools will take part in the University of Nebraska's annual debate and social studies institute tomorrow.

The all-day event is planned to stress the educational aspects of debate, said Dr. Donald Olson, associate professor of speech and dramatic art.

Dr. Olson believes that the increase of participation, from 200, when the institute began, to over 600 in recent years, is a testimonial to the effectiveness of this approach.

The debate subject for the institute is United States Trade Policy.

The institute will begin with a talk on the Trade Policies of the United States by Dr. Wallace Peterson, associate professor of economics in the school of business administration.

Following Dr. Peterson's talk the students will break up into groups to discuss three debate questions on the basic theme, United States Trade Policy.

Then the students will view a demonstration discussion by selected high school students. The student discussion will be led by Mr. John Geier of Northwestern College in Minneapolis.

Some of the students will participate in rounds of discussion. The remaining students will attend classes headed by regular staff members of the department of speech. The classes will be in the fields of extemporaneous speaking, cutting of readings, and case construction.

A debate between the University of Nebraska and Northwestern College will climax the debate and social studies institute.

Linda Hillyer and Kathy Madsen will represent the University in this debate.

Omaha, Bellevue Coming To NHRRF College Days

By TOM MCGINNIS
Daily Nebraskan Reporter

Students from Omaha and Bellevue high schools will get their first taste of NU college life tomorrow during College Days.

Some 293 students representing Omaha Westside, Central, North, Benson and Bellevue will attend special college classes in the fields of chemistry, engineering, history, political science, mathematics, English, journalism, and dentistry.

Each student will be given his choice of three classes to attend and University professors will hold question and answer periods after each lecture.

After registration in the morning, Vice Chancellor Adam Breckenridge will welcome the students. The students will then attend classes. After lunch the Builders tours committee will give the students a tour of the campus.

The College Day program is directed by Dr. William E. Hall, director of the Nebraska Human Resources Research Foundation (NHRRF).

Susie Evans, chairman of the NHRRF special functions committee, pointed out, "College Day is not an attempt to sell the University but an attempt to sell college. College Day is an opportunity for high school students to attend college classes for experience and guidance."

College Day has been a part of the University for many years. Originally set up to serve all high school students at once, the program has since expanded to suit the larger number of participants. College Days will be held during the school year.

BATMAN OR JOEL LUNDAK? — Above, Joel Lunda, Sigma Chi president, takes a "longcut" into the house via the fire escape. Lunda discovered that it was the only way to get away from the screaming coeds who have been stealing Sigma Chi derbies in order to add more points to their houses' running score in the Derby Day competition. Below, Mic Dragoo struggles through another eventful noon hour with the girls who have come, not to visit Mic, but to grab his derby. Derby Day, an annual event sponsored by the Sigma Chi, will begin 9 a.m. tomorrow with a parade through the campus, followed by games and the Miss Derby Day contest. The events will be held on the Mall.

—Student Health Reports— Number of Flu Cases Not Increasing at NU

Despite numerous rumors of organized houses being sick with the flu or colds, Dr. S. I. Fuenning, medical director of Student Health, reported yesterday, "We are not aware of any marked increase."

He explained that there have been the usual number of upper respiratory infections, but that there had been nothing out of the ordinary.

However, he added that they are always on the lookout for any flu cases.

In regards to the U.S. Public Health Service prediction of a wave of influenza of the Asiatic variety, Dr. Fuenning said that it will be nationwide and there is no reason why Nebraska should have any higher incidence. Nothing has been stated about Nebraska in particular, he added, although the incidence of influenza usually goes up.

Dr. Fuenning stressed that students should be encouraged to get flu shots as they have in previous years.

—Small Group Hears Priest— Redemptorist Says Amazons Are Enslaved in Communism

By KAREN GUNLICKS
Nebraskan Staff Writer
Only sixteen students and five adults turned out yesterday to hear Father Thomas P. Morrissey describe the inroads of Communism in the Amazon.

The ideas of Communism are atheistic, he began. Freedom of religion and education are prohibited; families are split up so that the children can be trained in military schools beginning at the age of three, and the mothers can work.

Over one million people have been enslaved in Communism in the past 40 years, emphasized Father Morrissey. "This is more men and women than have heard of Christ. Five children are being taught communism for every one child who is being taught Christianity."

Americans have acquired four basic ideas which have resulted in their apathetic attitude toward the war against Communism, he pointed out. They are:

1. America is exempt from defeat because she is a Christian nation. However, he said, most of the nations that have been taken over by Communism in recent years were Christian nations.
2. America is unconquerable because she has never been defeated. People must realize though, he continued, that we are at war now.
3. Americans believe that their government and way of life is best so the Communists will inevitably realize it and convert. Students and other Americans just don't realize the devotion and loyalty of the Communist party members, Father Morrissey related.
4. Americans think that all Communist takeovers have been on the other side of the world. But, he pointed out, Cuba is our next door neighbor. Communists have already broken up families and built up the military there.

Anti-American Ideas
In the Amazon, along the northern border of Brazil, students are spreading anti-American ideas to the people of this area, he explained. This has been very effective because 95% of these people are illiterate. The communists find out what the people want, then promise it to them.

The priests are the only stronghold that the free world has in the Amazon region, he said. No one else is spreading the idea of democracy and anti-communism there. The Communists' plan for 1962 is to take over all the foreign priests, then all of the Brazilian priests. They have employed 24 girls in one town alone to seduce the priests, he said.

"If the Communists win in South America, they will have taken a giant step in the Western World," commented Father Morrissey, "and if they conquer Brazil, then all Americans there (Brazil's only contact with the free world) will have to flee."

"Therefore, we must initiate an effective educational system in Brazil. Once the people learn what Communism actually is, they can defeat it."

Boat Communication

Their only form of communication in the Amazon region is by boat. However, Father Morrissey is trying to raise money for a radio station, which if why he is now in the United States. Through the radio, the priests could educate the people since there are not enough priests to cover the whole territory. So far he has raised $1,050 for the $10,000 project.

If each village had a transistor, the station could become a stronghold for democracy in the north, he said. "If the southern part of Brazil, where there is more population and less being done by the free world, fell to the Communists, the northern region, if educated in democratic ideas, could hold out. The illiterate people have not had a chance to know the importance of opposing the communists. The communists have given them the idea that there is no reason for them to become educated since the party will answer all their problems," he related.

"The radio station may be a small step in our combat, but a little is better than nothing," Father Morrissey said.

"Communism is at our doorstep," he warned. "All must sacrifice in order to promote the ideas that we are grateful for and want to keep."

Father Morrissey, a graduate of Omaha Holy Name, has served as a missionary priest in Brazil for eight years.
