

KK Show Includes Cleopatra, Yo Yo's, Sins

By GARY LACEY
Nebraska Staff Writer
The curtains will go up tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. on "Reel Riots," Kosmet Klub's fall production.
The show, to be held at Pershing Auditorium, will include four fraternity skits, four travelers acts and the presentation of Nebraska Sweetheart and Prince Kosmet.
Phi Delta Theta will present "Rocking Reels," which concerns the conflicts between the independents and Greeks on the campus.

In the Kappa Sigma skit, "The Reel Cleopatra," the famed Egyptian lady continues her everlasting search for love.
Beer To Yo-Yo's "The Little Round Red Reform," to be enacted by members of Beta Theta Pi attempts to persuade college students to switch from drinking beer to "yo-yoing yo-yos" as a pastime.

The Phi Kappa Psi's in "The Sins of Selma Sunshine" demonstrate that true love can win out, even over the United States' Forest Rangers.
The four travelers acts will be presented intermittently with the skits. The Sigma Nus will present a song and dance skit entitled, "Naval Battalion Kwai."

Bill Holland, Tom Holland, Bill Baller and Dave Kreckel, all Theta Xis, will combine as a folk singing group. John Weaver, a member of Phi Delta Theta, will also present a folk singing act.
Folk Singers
Another folk singing group, The Coachmen, composed of members of Delta Upsilon and Alpha Tau Omega, are slated to appear in the show.

Nebraska Sweetheart and Prince Kosmet will be presented at the end of the production. Voting for the royalty will take place at the beginning of the show in the lobby of Pershing Auditorium. To vote, a student must have his University identification card.
Candidates for Nebraska Sweetheart are Maribelle Elliott, Rachel Heiss, Pam Hirschback, Nancy Sorenson, Willa Meyer, Linda Bukacek, Jacyln Hammer, Joanie Chenoweth, Cori Cabella, and Karen Pflasterer.

Prince Kosmet Candidates are Bill Buckley, Bill "Thunder" Thornton, Don Burt, Dave Smith, Francis Masters, Bob Seidell, Wes Grady, Dennis Claridge, Roger Quadhammer and Dan Rosenthal.
The master of ceremonies for the show is Doug Gaeth. Kosmet Klub was founded in 1911 when six upperclassmen staged the first original musical, "The Diplomat." The Klub's casts were traditionally male until 1941 when tradition was cast aside, and coeds were included in the spring musical. The fall show has always been strictly masculine.

Another highlight of the Klub's history was the introduction of the Nebraska Sweetheart in 1929, followed later by Prince Kosmet. This year is the 51st anniversary of the show.

MILITARY MISSES—Elections for Honorary Commandant will be held Monday. The three service queens will be chosen by the individual service branches following the all-campus election for Commandant.

Students To Vote Monday For Military Commandant

Campus-wide elections for the Honorary Commandant of the University Army, Navy, and Air Force ROTC will be held Monday.
Students may vote for one of the nine candidates. Polling places in the City and Ag Campus Unions will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday under the jurisdiction of the Student Council Elections Committee.

The candidates are: Nancy Foreman, Judy Pearce and Jeanette Broz representing the Navy; Judy Birney, Judy Keys and Sally Larsen representing the Air Force; and Marilyn Handschuch, Nancy Jacobson and Kaye Schurr representing the Army.

According to Grant Meiner, elections chairman for the Military Ball, the individual services will select Miss Army, Miss Navy, and Miss Air Force.

United Chambers Ask University To Purchase Surplus Military Land

By BOB RAY
Ag News Editor

Like the "Sooners" who descended on government land in Oklahoma's Cherokee Strip a hundred years ago, Nebraskans are descending on land recently declared surplus by military organizations which are moving out of the state.

A resolution passed by the South Platte United Chambers of Commerce asks the University to take steps to purchase 10,000 acres of surplus land at the Hastings Naval Ammunition Depot (NAD).

Purpose for the proposed land acquisition is the development of an agricultural experiment station. If the University is unsuccessful in acquiring the land, it will be sold to private concerns.

The depot is being disposed of by the General Services Administration, and the University has until Nov. 20 to make its request for land.

Research Planned
Pender Jennings, commanding officer of NAD, said that the U.S. Department of Agriculture had planned a livestock research station on the site, but he added that the plan fell through because they did not have the operating funds.

Dr. James Williams of the University's Agronomy Department has been doing research in castor beans at NAD for three years. This has been the only use the University has made of NAD. (In contrast, the University's Ag College has been doing research with foundation seed at Mead for fifteen years.)

Jennings said that at one time there was talk of building a graduate school in animal husbandry on the NAD grounds. Several people who worked at NAD during the war have said that the buildings there would provide an ideal campus setup. At present, several of the buildings are used as classrooms for Armed Forces Reserve units in the Hastings area.

According to Commander Jennings there are 400 civilian and military employees using 1,000 acres on the NAD depot.

Non-Support Crop
"And those are just the employees, not the dependents," Jennings said. The remaining 47,000 acres are in non-support crop and grazing land, he said.

"These 48,532 acres include 200 miles of railroad, almost that many miles of blacktop and dirt roads, and a complex of brick, concrete, and frame buildings which cost almost a million dollars a year to maintain," Jennings said.

In the past few years the Air Force has abandoned airfields from one end of the state to the other. Several cities, Scottsbluff and Hastings to name two, acquired their airports this way.

Some cities which could not support airfields lost them to cattle feeders who now use the hangars as hay barns, the concrete aprons as feeding floors, and the grass landing strips as pastures.

Ordinance Plants
Similarly, ordnance plants about the state were declared surplus and either transferred to other federal or state departments, (as was Mead's Army Ordnance Plant to the Air Force, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and the University) or broken up into plots for auction or sale by sealed bid.

Morrison-Quirk, Grain Storage Corp. which bid on 1,500 acres at Mead under the name of "Skyline Farms," now leases most of the non-military land on the depot. Some is subleased to Bob Shattuck and other stock men for grazing land; the rest has been planted to popcorn and forage sorghum.

At present Morrison-Quirk employs few people to do their farm work. Most of their work is done by contract labor that starts in the south and works north.

Two More Are Suspended; TNE's Consent To Dissolve

By GARY LACEY
Nebraska Staff Writer

Two University students have been asked "to leave school" for being involved in sub rosa activity, and Theta Nu Epsilon has again agreed to dissolve, according to Dr. G. Robert Ross, dean of Student Affairs.

The names of these two individuals will be released after authorization is given by a reliable source. The Division of Student Affairs would not release the identity.

The Nebraskan was told by Ray Stevens, president of FarmHouse, that the two students were members of his fraternity, but would not confirm their identity at this time. He said that no action had been taken by FarmHouse concerning the status of the two students.

Since the beginning of last week, Dean Ross said, every active TNE member has voluntarily confessed membership in the organization.

"To the best of my judgement, Theta Nu Epsilon has been dissolved," he said. The active TNE's are cooperating completely with the dean and they are now proceeding in discussions with TNE alumni.

Dean Ross said that students in other sub rosas (Pi Xi and Rho Delta) have been in to denounce their affiliation with these sub rosas. They, too, are being helpful, Ross said.

Last week many members of the three sub rosa organizations on campus (Theta Nu Epsilon, Pi Xi and Rho Delta) talked to Dean Ross wanting to renounce their affiliation with the groups.

Dean Ross told them that any person who was a member of a sub rosa who would come in voluntarily, would put him in a position to deal with them differently. He declined to define what he meant by "differently."

Groups Clarify Rulings

IWA, Panhellenic Explain Campaigns

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Panhellenic Council and the Independent Women's Association have recently passed resolutions concerning campaign rules. Following the action by these groups, many questions arose, calling for a clarification of their new policies.

By SUSAN SMITHBERGER
Nebraska Staff Writer

The action by Panhellenic and Independent Women's Association (IWA) brought out the question of where the jurisdiction over student election lies.

The constitution and by-laws of the Student Council gives Council power to conduct and supervise all student elections of general university interest. The Division of Student Affairs and the Council have established certain regulations that must be adhered to.

The by-laws also state that sponsoring organizations may institute additional regulation as long as it does not conflict with that established by Student Affairs and Student Council.

Any violation of the constitution continues, of campaign rules set up by the sponsoring organization, Student Council or Student Affairs will be presenter to the Council Judiciary Committee and acted upon by them.

"Any campaign rules established by Panhellenic, Independent Women's Association or other such organizations not sponsoring the election apply only to members of those organizations and in no instance will they affect the validity of the election," said Dave Scholz, chairman of the Student Council Judiciary Committee.

According to Miss Helen Snyder, dean of women, violators of Panhellenic and IWA rules will probably not be punished. She said that no punishment was discussed by the Panhellenic group because it feels that all women's houses will act in good faith. She added that IWA cannot punish independents for violation.

The Dean pointed out that these are "agreements," not rules. "In absence of rules, Panhellenic and IWA felt that some regulation was necessary and therefore they are attempting to regulate the members in their own groups, especially concerning costs," she said.

Stuewe, Zenner Are Speakers; Annual Parents' Day Tomorrow

Husker halfback Dennis Stuewe and Bob Zenner, Sports director for KOLN-TV will be the featured speakers at the season's final victory rally tonight.

The rally begins at 6 p.m. with a torchlight parade from the Carillon Tower to the steps of the Student Union. Stuewe will talk on his impressions and feelings as he enters the last two games of his college career. Nebraska's chances for bowl bids and the future will be discussed by Zenner.

The Innocents Society, who have invited University students' parents to attend Saturday's Oklahoma State-Nebraska game and other campus activities, are expecting from 600-700 people at the coffee hours on Ag and city campuses at 10 a.m.

Ray Stevens, an Innocent, said that about 500 persons who received invitations have bought tickets for the game. He expects about 600 people to attend the Builders' tours of the campus at 10 and 11 a.m. on city campus and 10:30 on Ag campus.

Stevens explained that the program was set up to acquaint the parents with the University. "It is a tremendous service to the parents and the University," he said.

He also noted that the parents are invited to attend the Kosmet Klub Show "Reel Riots."

Fathers of the football players will wear numbers corresponding to those worn by their sons and sit with them on the sidelines.

Cornhusker teams of 1920-21-22 will end a joint reunion by attending the game in a group.

Students Ask Ross' Views At Meeting

Student Council members met with G. Robert Ross, dean of Student Affairs, in the first Student Council Roundtable discussion Wednesday night.

In informal idscussion period Dean Ross clarified questions asked by Council members on Administration policies.

Dean Ross said that two additional men are leaving the University because of sub rosa affiliation.

He added that in his judgment all members of Theta Nu Epsilon (TNE) have identified themselves voluntarily, except for the two expelled.

He also said that sub rosa members who had identified themselves voluntarily will not have their membership listed on their record.

When asked about firing of the Colorado student newspaper editor and the University of Wisconsin position on Greek houses, Dean Ross said that there is no immediate threat of Administration taking these positions on this campus.

Other topics discussed included Student Tribunal, the re-organization of Administration and how it affects the Division of Student Affairs, parking facilities and enrollment and expansion.
