NEW YORK BOUND—Clayton Yeutter, University law student, takes a final check on facts he will present during the national Moot Court competition in New York City Dec 18-20. Yeutter and two other law students, Fred Kauffman and Bill Hemmer, comprise the University team which will be in competition with 21 other teams. The teams represented are the 11 regional winners and runners-up which were selected earlier this fall. The Nebraska team placed first in the regional competition at St. Louis last month.

University 4-H Club Honors Scholarship Winners Today

The University 4-H club will recognize 55 scholarship winners enrolled in the College of Agriculture at its ninth annual honors banquet here today.

Included in the group of University student guests are some who previously have received scholarship checks, and 12 who will receive their checks following the banquet at the Student Union on the city campus. All earned scholarships through 4-H club work or as a direct result of it.

Eight students—two each in the freshman, sophomore, junior and senior classes—will be recognized as top ranking members of the club in scholastic standing.

Some 100 persons are expected to attend the banquet fete, which is slated to get underway at 6 p.m. Jerome Warner of Waverly, vice president of the Lincoln Junior Chamber of Commerce, will present the Jaycee scholarships. Representatives of some of the other donor firms also will be on hand to present checks.

ONE THING YOU HAVE TO SAY FOR DOGS IS THAT THEY'RE LOYAL.

THAT'S TRUE. NO MATTER WHAT SORT OF A BUM A DOG'S MASTER MAY BE, THE DOG WILL LOOK UP TO HIM AS IF HE WERE A KING...

WE'RE LOYAL ALL RIGHT...

9,000 People Use Center In 1st Year

In the first fiscal year of the Nebraska Center's operation, 9,000 young people spent several days apiece in conferences there, said H. O. Hoiberg, Director of the Center's Youth Wing.

Word apparently got around that this was a good place to get specialized training, Hoiberg says.

The idea of picking an expert's mind for ideas must have appealed to many of the 6,000-plus Nebraskans who graduated from high school that year but didn't go to college, Hoiberg says.

These short courses and conferences which substitute for college education are sponsored by the Midwest Institute for Young Adults. They offer concentrated instruction in agriculture, business and the humanities.

Some of these short courses are nothing new, Hoiberg commented. Minnesota and Wisconsin have been offering them in agriculture for 75 years — so did Nebraska up until demand for them dropped off a few years ago.

Hoiberg noted, Nebraska will be the pioneering university in the field of short business courses for post high school students.

One of the most recent suggestions for student conferences is a series of night classes taught by such people as Mel Steen, Game Commission Director, and others from nearby dog and hunt clubs, game farms and Izack Walton Leagues.

Hoiberg believes that the possibilities for continuing education of young adults is limited only by their imagination, interest and curiosity.

Voc Ed Seniors Teach Outstate

Thirteen University Seniors, majoring in Vocational Education, have had a taste of off-campus teaching for the past eight weeks. They were assigned to outstate high schools to gain teaching experience.

According to Dr. Howard Deems, chairman of the Department of Vocational Education, "Theories of learning and teaching in classroom and shop, and demonstrating farming practices are tested by our students under the guidance of seasoned teachers."

The student-teachers share the responsibilities of school activities with regular high school faculty members, according to Dr. Deems. University faculty members visited each training center three times to note progress during the eight weeks, Deems said.
