

All-University Caroling Is Planned for Tonight

The "halls of ivy" and mistletoe will unite tonight in the All-University Christmas carol sing.

Every student is urged to participate in the caroling which will start at 7 p.m. from the Alpha Chi Omega and Zeta Tau Alpha houses.

The originating houses will be joined by other houses and dorms as they pass by on their way to the Union. The two groups will gather on either side of the Union for further caroling. Sinfonia, music fraternity, will divide into two groups to accompany the carolers.

More caroling, led by Nancy Sorensen, will follow in the main lounge of the Union. Chancellor Clifford Hardin will attend.

Chartered buses will offer transportation for the Ag students wishing to attend. The buses will pick up students at 7 p.m. in the circle drive between Burr and Fedde Halls. They will return at 9 p.m. from the north entrance of the City Union.

Students in all living units and all Lincoln students are asked to join in the sing, which is being coordinated by a steering committee from Builders and Union. Any living units not participating must notify the Union Program office so the group won't stop and sing at houses where no one is participating.

Many houses are functioning with other houses. These groups should be reminded that all functions must be registered at Student Affairs.

The All University Fund will sell coffee and hot chocolate. Profits from the sales will go to the AUF charities.

Associated Women's Association has extended freshman women's hours to 9:30 p.m. for the event, said Jane Tenhulzen, publicity chairman for AWS.

NU Budget Discussion Set Today

Speakers Explain Requests, Needs

Dr. Joseph Soshnik, University comptroller, and George Round, chairman of public relations, will discuss the University budget today at 4 p.m. in the Pan American room of the Student Union.

They will explain the University's budget requests and make suggestions on how students may explain the needs of their school to their senators and parents.

All students interested in the Senators Program are encouraged to attend in order to learn how they can sell the University to the senators, said Tom Kotouc, chairman of the Senators Program.

Dr. Soshnik will discuss the sections of the University budget which students should be familiar with in order to answer questions from their parents and senators.

Critical Needs

He will also explain the critical needs of the University and how these needs affect the quality of education we as students are getting at Nebraska, said Kotouc.

Round will offer techniques and icebreakers which students can use in becoming acquainted with their senators.

Kotouc said that our concern in the Senators Program is still not so much to preach to the senators on Nebraska's needs, but simply to show our pride in our school and our realization that we need help in solving our several problems.

Program Representatives

All representatives of the Senators Programs from living units on campus should attend a brief orientation after the meeting on the budget by Dr. Soshnik and Round. It will deal with the procedure for inviting senators to dinner.

Noon luncheon senators program forms should be returned to the Interfraternity Council office by Friday, or brought to the Student Council meeting today.

Students who would like to sign up to have lunch with their state senators should return this form immediately or sign the sheet outside the Student Council office.

STATE of NEBRASKA
EXECUTIVE OFFICE
LINCOLN
PROCLAMATION

As we approach the end of another year and the beginning of a new one, it behooves all of us to assess our successes and failures.

Man's determination to delve more deeply into the secrets of nature has brought him the knowledge to extend human life through control of disease but has also given him the power to shorten it by the unwise use of nature's power. Man's new-found control over nature has been harnessed in machinery such as the motor vehicle which must be used with the highest degree of caution and discretion.

The death toll on our highways has reached tragic proportions resulting in an economic loss to the state which exceeds the cost of state government and creates a staggering moral and social impact upon family life.

The greatest resource of society is human life. Its preservation and development is the God-given responsibility of all of us. Young human life is especially precious. During the coming holidays, traffic will be multiplied by the thousands of college students returning to their homes. Every automobile moving on our highways is a possible killer.

Many potential leaders of society have lost their lives upon our roads and streets during the past year. Steve Cass, of Ravenna, is but one example of young leadership which this state cannot afford to lose. As a leader in the Innocents Society and in the University of Nebraska, there lay before him a limitless future which his untimely death has erased from the history of our state. As Governor of the State of Nebraska, I wish to commend the Innocents Society for inaugurating a program of safety. This approach of inviting young people to mobilize in an all-out safety education movement can be a living memorial to the memory of Steven Cass.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Frank B. Morrison, Governor of the State of Nebraska, do hereby endorse and support the Innocents Society's safety program in the name of the State of Nebraska and call for the cooperation of all of our people to end this loss of human life upon our highways.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Nebraska to be affixed.

Done at the State Capitol, Lincoln, Nebraska this seventeenth day of December in the Year of Our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Sixty-two.

NU, Governor Ask for Safety During Vacation

By TOM MCGINNIS
Nebraskan Staff Writer

Five people died on Nebraska highways last year during the Christmas — New Year's holiday season.

During the past ten years an average of 15 people have died on state highways during the ten day period from Dec. 21-31.

A program encouraging University students to THINK SAFETY is being initiated by the cooperation of the University and Gov. Frank B. Morrison in the hopes that University students won't be part of the statistics above during the holiday season.

On Thursday and Friday, traffic safety films will be shown at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the Student Union crib. A demolished car will be on display outside the Union as part of the program.

Banners outside and inside the Union reminding students of traffic safety, "Lights on for Safety" signs, and large signs on major campus exits reminding homework bound students of highway hazards are included in the program.

Literature, such as "One way ticket, don't let this be yours," will be distributed to students individually and to living units sometime this week in conjunction with the program.

The loud speakers on top of Selleck Quadrangle will remind students on Friday to be careful driving home and returning to the University.

The University Division of Student Affairs will issue traffic safety announcements to be read in classes throughout the different departments Friday.

A resolution stressing traffic safety will be brought up in the Student Council today.

The University public relations department will issue a television radio, and newspaper announcements during vacation and before students begin returning to school in cooperation with the Think Safety program.

Gov. Frank Morrison has issued a proclamation endorsing the program and stressing safe driving.

John Nolan, Innocents president, commented, "If the program causes each student to really think about traffic safety at least once it will be worthwhile."

Students Are Susceptible To Auto Fatalities—Ryan

"Nebraska will have over 400 traffic fatalities this year if the traffic death rate during the holiday season this year matches that of past years" said Thomas Ryan of the Nebraska State Accident Bureau.

Ryan said "Accidents don't happen. They are caused." He added that it could not be emphasized too much that University students are just as susceptible to accidents as other drivers are.

Students quite often get a late start and are in a hurry to get home. Ryan pointed out that if they would only think, they would realize that only very few minutes can be saved by driving at a dangerous rate of speed.

Another reason for students being prone to accidents Ryan gave was that they are often tired after the last week of school and tests and they don't have the fast reflexes they think they do. Students going any distance should take time out for plenty of coffee breaks to relax and rest, he said.

According to Ryan, students often have the attitude that "It couldn't happen to me." Confidence is fine, but drivers should not have too much, he commented.

He said students going home often have their cars so heavily loaded with clothes and other students that rear vision is either poor or lacking entirely.

Ryan said that a really safe driver is a "defensive driver." He is always on the guard against what other drivers may do and avoids jams which require fast reaction.
