

Sullivan Explains Proposed ROTC Changes

By Gary Laeger
Nebraska Staff Writer

Col. Frank Sullivan, professor of Air Science at the University, has labeled working in a wire service news item on a proposed change in the Reserve Officer Training Corp as "unfortunate phraseology," but "basically correct."

Col. Sullivan was specifically opposed to the wire service's use of the phrase "drastic cutback in the ROTC in colleges and high schools."

The article said that a proposal was coming before Congress which would, according to Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, call for an end to ROTC programs in high schools, the elimination of the present compulsory ROTC programs in all land grant colleges, and a reduction of the four-year ROTC courses in most colleges and universities to 2 years.

According to the article, a possible savings of several million dollars annually in present ROTC costs might be feasible if the proposal were accepted by Congress.

Same Number

Col. Sullivan said that there would not be any fewer college men trained under the ROTC reorganization proposal. "We still need the same number of officers in the Air Force and within the next seven to eight years we will need them in even larger quantities," he said.

According to Sullivan, the Air Force is spending a large sum of money each year to put freshmen and sophomores through the basic ROTC sequence and are getting only a few advanced cadets for commissioning.

Under the new plan, the money spent to train and clothe the freshman and sophomore cadet would be spent to give higher pay and scholarships to advanced cadets.

Sullivan said that the Air Force could get better men under the new plan, because the cadet would have to compete nationally for the scholarships which could amount to as much as $1100 per year per man.

The wire service article,

Sullivan said, reported that there could be as much as a several million dollar savings. He said that in reality the savings would probably be spent for scholarships and higher pay.

Permissive Legislation

Sullivan explained that the bill would go through Congress as "permissive legislation," which means that colleges and universities would have the option of choosing between the present ROTC program and the new non-mandatory system.

Under the new plan, college men would enter the ROTC program as juniors, and instead of training the freshmen and sophomores as they do now they would be required to attend two summer camps which would give them the same experience.

The Air Force obtains its officers from three basic sources — the Air Force academy (1000 per year), ROTC (5000-6000) and the Officers Training School (OTS) which trains the excess number needed. This number varies from year to year, Sullivan said.

Sullivan said, "Without the ROTC Program the Air Force would die in 15 years."

Sullivan favors the new proposal, but said the Board of Regents would have to consent to the new plan if it is passed in Congress.

Summer Session Budget Approved Greenberg Chosen Regents President

Dr. B. N. Greenberg of York will serve as president of the University's Board of Regents for the coming year. He succeeds Regent J. G. Elliott of Scottsbluff.

At its annual reorganizational meeting Saturday, the six-member Board also re-elected Richard Adkins of Osmond as vice president.

Joseph Sosniak, University vice chancellor and comptroller, was re-elected corporation secretary.

The Regents seated former governor Val Peterson of Hastings as a new member. He was elected to the six-year term in the November general election to represent the Fifth District. He replaces former Regent Frank Foote of Axtell, who did not seek re-election.

The Regents also approved a 1963 Summer Sessions budget of $422,824, or an increase of $44,724. Director Frank E. Sorenson said that based upon an anticipated enrollment of 4,250 students, income from tuition will approximate $215,000.

Reasons for the budget increase, he said, include: salary adjustments, an increase of $13,000; new programs in architecture, botany, civil engineering, animal husbandry, post sessions in school administration, and library science, amounting to $11,517 more; and support for additional sections of overcrowded classes, costing $15,000 more in additional instructors.

In other action, the Board: — Authorized the purchase of a tract of 1.5 acres with a 53-foot frontage on Holdrege street between 32nd and 33rd streets for the price of $20,000. Located just west of the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, the tract includes a two-story house at 3280 Holdrege street.

— Accepted the low bid of $21,696, submitted by DuTeau Chevrolet Company of Lincoln, for 13 1963 two-door sedans as replacement vehicles.

Football Coaches Get Pay Hikes

After the "winningest" football season since 1905, the University Board of Regents has added salary increases, ranging up to $2,000 a year to the annual appointments of the football staff.

Head Coach Robert Devaney, who is now entering the second year of his five-year appointment, received a $1,500 increase, placing his annual salary at $19,000.

Having their salaries increased from $10,000 to $10,900 for the present year were three assistant coaches: James Ross, Mike Corgan and Carl Selmer.

Other pay increases were: John Melton, from $9,000 to $10,100; Cletus Fischer and George Kelley, both from $8,700 to $9,800.

Ski Trip Meeting

There will be a meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in 222 Student Union of all those going on the Union Ski Trip. Specific information will be given and ski movies will be shown.

Members of the trip must bring their consent, waiver and the agreement, filled out and signed. The balance of the payment ($35) is due by Jan. 14.

If not possible to attend, skiers are to get the information from someone and hand in the waiver in the Union Program office by Jan. 11.

in the University's Auto Pool. The unit price was $1,668.93, $3.23 less than the next lowest bidder, Missie Chevrolet Company of Lincoln.

— Added the sum of $144,500 to the biennial budget for vegetable research work.

CBS Head Gives Gift For Gallery

As it nears completion, the $3 million Sheldon Art Gallery is beginning to attract national attention.

Chancellor Hardin told the Board of Regents that Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, was so impressed with the gallery that he has presented the University with a Zorach bronze.

The art work is a casting of a piece which William Zorach, one of America's leading living sculptors, did in 1932 in Laborator granite.

Entitled "Torso", the art work is from the home of Stanton, who also has consented to speak at the dedicatory program on May 16.

Stanton is a director of the Lincoln Center of Performing Arts in New York City and trustee of the Rand Corporation and Rockefeller Foundation.

Norman Geske, Gallery director, said the gift will not be exhibited until the opening of the Sheldon Gallery this spring.

Dr. Trotter Is Selected As Ag Dean

Board of Regents
Fills Two Posts

Dr. Virginia Trotter of the University of Vermont has been appointed as the first director of the School of Home Economics at the University. She also was named associate dean of the College of Agriculture by the Board of Regents at their recent meeting.

The appointment is the first step in reorganizing the department of home economics into a formal School of Home Economics in the College of Agriculture. Dr. Hazel Fox has been acting director since the reorganization was approved last July 1 by the Board of Regents.

Dr. Trotter was a University staff member from 1950 to 1955. She is currently professor and chairman of the home economics department at the University of Vermont. Her appointment at Nebraska becomes effective June 1.

A native of Manhattan, Kan., Dr. Trotter took her undergraduate work at Kansas State University. She received her master's in household economics at Kansas State in 1947 and later her Ph.D. at Ohio State University in 1950.

Dr. Trotter is a member of various home economics societies, including Omicron Nu and Phi Upsilon Omicron. She was awarded the Effie I. Raitt Fellowship award by the American Home Economics Association in 1950. She is the official representative of the American Home Economics Association on the American Council of Education.

She has served as technical advisor to the Journal of Home Economics and is the author of many Journal articles and bulletins.

Vol. 76, No. 54 The Daily Nebraskan Wednesday, January 9, 1963

J-SCHOOLERS PREPARE — Louise Casey, Dave Howe and Ruthann Chubbuck will act as editor, assistant editor and city editor, respectively, when the news editing, advanced reporting and photography journalism classes produce the news sections of Sunday's Lincoln-Journal-Star newspaper. The University students will take the pictures and write feature, local and wire service stories that appear in the news sections. Dr. Hall, director of the school of journalism, said, "It is the largest paper from which our students have had the opportunity to gain experience." He added that because of the different problems associated with a Sunday paper, there will be many new and slightly different experiences.

Play Series Will Begin Tonight In Arena, Proscenium Theaters

By SUE HOVAK
Nebraskan Staff Writer

Using stages dating back to the beginning of theatrical entertainment and the Renaissance, eight University students will direct plays in the Arena and Proscenium Theaters.

Each semester students in speech 102 and 203, taught by Dr. Dallas Williams, associate professor of speech, must direct a play for the Laboratory Theater.

Dr. Williams explained that the audience completely surrounds the stage in the Arena Theater. Still in use today, he said it probably originated when storytellers stood in the middle of a circle of spectators while entertaining them.

It is very intimate and there is much empathy in the relationship between the actor and audience which comes from the close participation of the spectators, Dr. Williams said.

Makeup, Costumes

Because of this, you have to be careful about makeup and costumes, he continued.

The Renaissance painters and architects stimulated an interest in a created picture instead of the acting-audience contact, he continued. In the Proscenium Theater, the audience sits on one side and looks through a frame.

There is more artistic detachment in this kind of theater when the audience is not as close to the performers, said Dr. Williams. "You look at it, comment on it, but don't participate in it as much," he explained.

He compared it to a person walking down a street, looking in a window and seeing people talking. When he walks in and becomes concerned with what is happening is when he would enter the Arena Theater atmosphere.

Students choose their own play, hold tryouts and are responsible for the costumes, make-up, sets and publicity.

The play may be of any type and either a cutting (certain scenes taken from a longer play) or the entire play.

The tryouts are open to all University students, said Dr. Williams.

Curtain time tonight will be 7:30 p.m. "Bedtime Story," by Sean O'Casey and directed by Helen Glenn, will begin the evening's entertainment in the Arena Theater, 303 Temple Building. "The Tiny Closet," by William Inge and directed by Mrs. Janet Novak, will follow in the Proscenium Theater, 201 Temple Building.

Start Work

In the Arena Theater, "The Respectable Prostitute," by Jean-Paul Sartre and directed by Roger Vosika will be presented. This series will be presented again tomorrow night.

On Sunday and Monday "The Zoo Story," by Edward Albee and directed by Bonnie Benda, will be presented in the Arena Theater. In the Proscenium Theater, "The Birthday Party," by Hjalmar Bergstrom and directed by Judy Birney will be presented.

"The Glass Menagerie," by Tennessee Williams and directed by Judie Kriss, will be done in the Arena Theater at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 17 and 18. In the Proscenium Theater, "The Man with the Flower in his Mouth," by Luigi Pirandello and directed by Jenise Burmood, will be presented.

"A Manoeuvre," an original play written and directed by Patrick Drake will also be shown in the Arena Theater on those dates. Dr. Williams explained that they quite often do original plays because it's a way for playwrights to have their work produced. "A play has to be produced and it's not complete until then," he said.

The Laboratory Theater productions are free.

Rag Forms Due Friday

The deadline for applications for Daily Nebraskan paid staff positions is Friday.

The forms should be turned in at either the School of Journalism office, 309 Burnett, or in the Daily Nebraskan office in the basement of the Union. They are available at either place through Friday.

Interviews for the paid staff positions will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 19, in the Union. The interview room will be posted.

The monthly salaries for the paid positions are as follows: Editor, $85; Managing Editor, $65; News Editor, $65; Sports Editor, $45; Copy Editors, $35; Senior Staff Writers, $35; Junior Staff Writers, $17.50; Photographer, $60; Circulation Manager, $50; Subscription Manager, $35; Business Manager, Salary will be adjusted; and Assistant Business Managers, $20 plus commissions.

Tryouts Are Set For Coed Follies

Tryouts for Coed Follies will be tomorrow night in the Student Union ballroom.

The time schedule is: Alpha Chi Omega, 6:30 p.m.; Alpha Omicron Pi, 6:45 p.m.; Alpha Phi, 7 p.m.; Alpha Xi Delta, 7:15 p.m.; Chi Omega, 7:30 p.m.; Delta Delta Delta, 7:45 p.m.

Delta Gamma, 8 p.m.; Kappa Alpha Theta, 8:15 p.m.; Kappa Kappa Gamma, 8:30 p.m.; Gamma Phi Beta, 8:45 p.m.; Pi Beta Phi, 9 p.m.; Sigma Kappa, 9:15 p.m.; Zeta Tau Alpha, 9:30 p.m.

The judges for the tryouts are: Dr. Donald Olson, associate professor of speech and dramatic art; Dr. John Petelle, associate professor of speech and dramatic art; Earl Jenkins, associate professor of voice; Miss Sandy Heffelfinger, Coed Follies coordinator; and Bob Peterson, Chamber of Commerce representative.

Nolon Nominated As 'Outstanding'

By JIM MOORE
Nebraskan Staff Writer

The first student nomination for "Outstanding Nebraskan," John Nolon, has been received by the Daily Nebraskan.

The letter of nomination reads:

John has accumulated many honors and achievements during his now three and one-half years of service to the University. His activity record includes: President of Innocents and the Interfraternity Council (IFC) past secretary of Phi Delta Theta, past IFC secretary.

Past Vice President of the Big Eight Student Government Association, past Vice President of the Big Eight Interfraternity Conference, former assistant business manager for the Cornhusker, former Student Council member, to name only a few.

Perhaps his greatest asset lies in his outstanding leadership, determination, and dedication shown in the projects he undertakes. To cite a few examples:

"Student Council, over the past years, has started to develop new areas of interest and activity. John pioneered the now prominent Public Issues Committee, the backbone of this new role for student government."

"Probably his most tangible contribution to the University has been through his efforts to improve and develop the fraternity system."

As secretary of IFC, he compiled and started the wheels turning for the new experimental Fraternity Management Association (FMA) — a program which can result in the saving of thousands of dollars to the Greek system, and the individual member. He was also instrumental in several other reports which have started the system towards the top.

"As president of the IFC during the past year, 'JR' has given many hours of hard work to see that the Scholarship, Pledge Training and Rush activities of the system are improved and developed."

The tightening up of all IFC operations has resulted in a more economical and efficient program of advancement which brought praise to the Nebraska fraternity situation from the National Interfraternity Conference leaders.

"Innocents Society has also taken on a new look with projects which take advantage of the leadership encompassed in that group. The recent safety campaign is one example. The program has resulted in an alertness of the hazards of driving by nearly all students."

"John, in his modesty, will be the first to agree that he has not accomplished his tasks and obligations alone. But most of those who have worked with him will be among the first to recognize that it was his leadership, intelligence, insight, respect and organization, topped with two prime essentials, dedication and desire, which led them to the accomplishments of their jobs."

"He is a person of outstanding moral character and integrity. John is an 'idealist' who has never lost sight of the goals which he has set up for himself and the organizations he has been part of. There is no other individual more qualified or deserving of this award than he."

Nominations Due Jan. 16

Nominations are now being accepted by the Daily Nebraskan for its Outstanding Nebraskan awards to be presented to a faculty member and a student who have distinguished themselves on the campus.

Any student or faculty member may nominate a candidate in the form of a letter addressed to the Nebraskan. Letters should be signed by the person making the nomination.

Nominations will be accepted until 5 p.m. Jan. 16. The winners will be announced Jan. 18. Certificate awards will be presented to the "Outstanding Nebraskans" at a luncheon in the Union the same day.

Faculty members nominated must have been on the University staff for at least two years. Student candidates may not be paid staff members of the Daily Nebraskan, but columnists are eligible.

New Music Building Rates Highest in Construction

A new music building is now number one on the University's construction list if funds are available, reported Carl Donaldson, Business Manager.

The music department has had an outstanding need for a new building for many years in order to take care of the large numbers of students taking music and also to take care of the many instruments, said Professor Emanuel Wishnow, chairman of the department.

He added that one of the problems his department now faces is that "we're spread all over campus." He said that because of lack of space many rehearsals and chorus classes have to be held in the Union, Social Science Auditorium and University High.

Many instruments such as pianos are sensitive to temperature and humidity, so moving the larger instruments to various buildings around campus is hard on them, he pointed out.

"We almost need a full-time plasterer in our present building," said Professor Wishnow. He mentioned that recently a plan to repaint the window frames in the 68-year-old building had to be dropped because the wood in the frames was too badly deteriorated to take a coat of paint.

Professor Wishnow said that in most music classes, a teacher will work with a small number of students at a time. He pointed out that in the present building, sometimes two teachers have to use a classroom at the same time. He said that two students playing or singing different songs at the same time in the same room is distracting to all concerned.

Presumably a proposal for the new building would have come in the 1963-65 biennium, reported Donaldson.

According to an earlier report, Donaldson said that if Congress should authorize a matching fund program for medical or dental facilities on American college campuses, the University might channel its tax dollars for building purposes in such a direction.

"If somebody would put up X number of dollars for a new music building, it would certainly enhance construction possibilities," Donaldson said.

The report stated that the University may desire what is now privately-owned property as a site for the music complex development.

Dr. Forrest To Leave NU

Dr. Aubrey Forrest, director of scholarships and finance, will leave the University Feb. 1 for a job as vice president for development at Kansas Wesleyan University in Salina, Kan.

Son of a former chancellor at Nebraska Wesleyan University, Forrest says his new job represents "a very considerable academic advancement."

Forrest has been at the University since 1960. He received his bachelors degree from Nebraska Wesleyan and his masters and doctorate from Northwestern University.

At Nebraska, Forrest's office has handled annual student loans of $400,000, academic scholarships of $272,000, and a student payroll of a quarter of a million dollars.

Dr. Forrest
