

Budget Roundup—

State Funds Insufficient To Permit University Adjustment To Advances

In the last half of his budget breakdown to the Omaha World Herald, Chancellor Clifford Hardin explained that for six years the University has received virtually no state funds for adjusting its problems to advances in the educational field.

More than a third of the state-supported budget increase is required to meet the needs which Nebraska has neglected in growth and development, he said.

Some of the areas which need additional work are: more teachers to serve increased enrollments in mathematics, physics, political science, history, languages, the biological sciences, business administration, engineering, pharmacy and Graduate School of Social Work; improvement in the University libraries; improvement in the College of Dentistry and more work on soil and water studies and mapping in the Division of Conservation and Survey.

The College of Agriculture is an area that demands specific improvements of its own.

More than one fifth of the proposed total state-support budget increase is for the College of Medicine, the School of Nursing and the University Hospital in Omaha.

One half of the total dollar increase is needed to sustain the present programs, the balance is for growth and development.

The item with the largest single increase in this "continuation" section of the medical budget is required to accomplish a final step in the establishment and accreditation of the University's professional four-year degree program in nursing.

The professional degree program was inaugurated several years ago mainly to produce nurses eligible to teach in nursing schools and eligible to pursue graduate work leading to qualification as specialists.

Nurses graduated from the so-called three-year hospital schools receive their R. N. certificate but are not eligible to teach or to enter graduate work.

National accreditation is the final step in the development of the four-year degree program. To receive it, a four-year program must permit its students and nursing instructors to devote full time to the instructional program.

This means that the University Hospital must employ an additional number of professional and practical nurses and other people to perform the routine hospital services previously provided by the student nurses and their instructors.

It is this transition which accounts for much of the increase in the continuation budget. The balance is mainly for salary adjustments.

The growth and development portion of the medical budget would go for improvements in the hospital, including the strengthening of the department of physical therapy and hiring of four additional people to work in the School of Nursing.

The major part of the growth and development budget is for a proposed further advance in the scope and quality of the teaching program in the College of Medicine.

An increase in the full-time instructional staff will permit shifting more of the responsibility for teaching both the clinical science areas from part-time volunteers to the full-time teaching staff.

However, the association of part-time volunteers will still be important. Many of the volunteers are practicing physicians in Omaha.

During 1962, Nebraskans paid over $30 million for beer; about $40 million for cigarettes and bet over $41 million at the race tracks. Chancellor Hardin said that these figures make it clear that Nebraska has the financial potential to support its University most adequately.

Some of the benefits that Nebraskans receive from the money spent on the University are:

First they fulfill their obligation to provide in the state a place for their children to have the opportunity to obtain a first-rate college education and pursue professional or graduate study if they choose.

Second, all Nebraska benefits directly or indirectly from the economic development which the University stimulates in three ways:

—Through the increased earning power which University graduates give to Nebraska communities.

—Through the University importation of "outside" money into the state—more than $4 million a year comes into Nebraska to support research and training programs alone and additional millions come in for University construction.

—Through increases in Nebraska agricultural and industrial output which result from the contributions the University makes by way of research on new and improved crops and consulting services involving agricultural and industrial resources and methods.

Third, the access which Nebraskans have to professional services is improved by virtue of the University because it is through the University that the state gets a significant proportion of its professional people.

Fourth, the opportunity that Nebraskans have for self-improvement is increased through the availability of the University's programs in extension and continuing education.

And, fifth, the University helps to make Nebraska a better and more interesting place in which to live.

Nebraskans are now paying an average "per family cost" of about $13 a year in state support for University operations. This assumes that the family pays taxes on a home appraised at $10,000 and pays its full share of state taxes on personal property, intangibles, cigarettes and liquor. Farm-owning families pay somewhat more than the $13 average.

The proposed University operating budget would increase this estimated "per family cost" to about $17.35 a year.

ISU Religion Authority Will Talk Sunday

The University Council on Religion is sponsoring a speech by Dr. George Forell, professor of religion, at the State University of Iowa, Sunday, in the Student Union Pan-American Room.

Dr. Forell will begin his speech, "Contemporary Theology and the Search for Meaning," at 7 p.m.

On Monday he will speak at a noon faculty luncheon and hold an informal discussion at 3 p.m. at the Lutheran Student House.

There will be a display of Dr. Forell's books at the Lutheran Student House.

He was educated at the University of Vienna, Princeton Theological Seminary and Union Theological Seminary.

Dr. Forell has served in the ministry and during 1960 was visiting professor of theology at the All-African Theological Seminar in Tanganyika.

Union To Sponsor Report On Africa

The Union Talks and Topics committee will sponsor a documentary film "Report from Africa: Part 1," Thursday at 3 and 4:30 p.m., in the Union Small Auditorium.

The film is about the resurgent African nations and their bid for independence, according to Tom Schwenke. It is narrated by Edward R. Murrow.

Ag Honorary Salutes Outstanding Students

Don West has been cited as the top sophomore for the 1961-62 school year in the University College of Agriculture by Gamma Sigma Delta, honor society of Agriculture.

Nine other students, all juniors, and 10 sophomores, were honored for outstanding scholarship at the annual Gamma Sigma Delta Scholarship Recognition Dinner, Tuesday night.

Dr. Howard Ottosen, chairman of the Department of Agricultural Economics, characterized West as a superior student whose grade average speaks for itself — 7.826 — 9.0 is perfect.

"West has maintained this consistently high grade average while taking courses in the technical agricultural economics curriculum," Dr. Ottosen said. "He was one of the first freshmen selected to take part in the College of Agricultural honors program when it was initiated in 1960.

"Through the honors program, West is carrying out a special research study on the economics of scale in livestock feeding," he said.

Guest speaker at the event was State Senator Ross Rasmussen of Hooper who spoke on "Our Future Through Education."

The list of the top students in the College of Agriculture who were honored Tuesday night by Gamma Sigma Delta includes:

SOPHOMORES — Donavon Benson, Quentin Bliss, Leroy Cech, Larry Coleman, Gary Fick, Doyle Kauk, Daniel Knievel, William Luebbe, Robert Reynolds and Dennis Swanstrom.

IS THIS YOUR SHIRT?

If so, Miss Afflerbach will send you your [Eagle Label] label

THIS is a two-color striped button-down shirt designed and tailored by Eagle Shirtmakers and sold everywhere by fine men's stores. Many of them admire our shirts so much they sell them under their own names. High praise indeed, and we should like to reciprocate by advertising their (our) shirts. But it's hard to know just where to start. Obviously we can't say things like "None Genuine Without This Label" when they are all quite genuine, you know. And it would be silly to say "Try An Eagle Shirt Today!" when it is likely you already have a drawerful; even though you didn't know it until just this minute. So all we can suggest is that you send in for your Eagle label. Write Eagle Shirtmakers, Quakertown, Pennsylvania; Attention Miss Afflerbach.

Manitoba Invites Voc Ag Students

Students enrolled in the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture are invited to the University of Manitoba, Canada, for the International Agricultural Students Conference, September 23-27.

The theme of the conference is to be "The Philosophy of Agricultural Education." The general program: A review and comparison of the nature and aims of the courses offered at the various Universities; A study comparing education in Canada, the United States, and other parts of the world; Agricultural education at the university, vocational, and high school levels; Philosophy of research and extension; A tour of the research projects at the University of Manitoba; A visit to the Grain Exchange; And a look at Manitoba Agriculture.

The conference is being sponsored by the University of Manitoba Agricultural Students Organization.

There are no definite plans for Nebraska students to attend the conference, but the Ag Exec Board is now considering the plan.

R. D. Schnieder Named Secretary

Extension farm safety specialist at the University, Rollin D. Schnieder, was re-elected Tuesday as secretary of the Nebraska Farm Safety Council at the group's annual meeting on the College of Agriculture campus.

In a short business session the council discussed various measures introduced in the legislature relating to traffic safety.

Other officers elected include: Glenn Kreuscher, farm editor of the Lincoln Journal and Lincoln Star, chairman; Ted Dappen, State Health Department, vice-chairman.
