

Basketball Tourney Progresses

NROTC, last year's University champion, remains undefeated in intramural tournament competition.

Sigma Phi Epsilon, runner-up in 1962, has lost to Kappa Sigma but is still in the running.

Action is light this week, and games will be played through Thursday, followed by a weekend of rest for the intramural squads.

IM Announcement

The deadline for the Daily Nebraskan's All-University basketball nominations will be extended to Friday, March 8, at noon.

In order for any member on a squad or team to be considered for honors, one should turn in a ballot by the deadline.

Ballots should include ten all-opponent teams and a five-man All-University team. The All-Star team should be composed of men in one league and should not be divided up among the three leagues. In addition to the All-Star team, vote for the one outstanding man in your league.

From the Stick

By RICK AKIN Staff Sports Writer

This is the weekend the Husker track squad has been pointing to since last year when it missed the Big Eight Indoor Track Championship by 11/12 of a point.

And it looks like this year they are going to get the job done.

Again this year the distance men will keep the Huskers in the thick of the running, but improvement in the field events may be the deciding factor in getting the thinclads over the hump.

The high jump, never a Husker strong point, shows the most marked improvement. With the addition of Harry Krebs and Jack Cramer, who came to Nebraska to play basketball, the Huskers have some depth in this category.

Krebs gave Larry Ellert, last year's Big Eight high jump champ from Iowa State, a run for the money in last Saturday's meet.

Ellert had to clear 6-7, a record, to edge Krebs' 6-6.

An interesting dual will undoubtedly take place between Nebraska's Ray Knaub and KU's Gale Sayers. Both are competing in the 60-yard dash and the low hurdles.

Some say that Sayers, an Omaha product, went to KU for track benefits, not football. It looks like Nebraska is going to drop the Jayhawks in both categories this season.

But it is still those distance boys that are throwing the snow. Sophs Dick Strand and Larry Toothaker make it even tougher than last year.

Nonetheless, I predict the Huskers to take this one and I urge anyone who hasn't got anything going this weekend to drop down and take in a great meet.

By the way, Kansas' version of Coed Follies (called Rockchalk) is on Friday and Saturday nights. And it is quite a show.

I hate to keep dwelling on basketball, but I ran across a couple of articles in other school papers that might be of interest.

Seems that KU has been having trouble with the refs, lately. Last Saturday when the Hawks invaded Huskerland, KU Coach Dick Harp had trouble making the refs see things his way.

Two weeks before KU fans threw paper onto the floor in protest of an official's call regarding an attempt to sink a winning bucket when the Jayhawks lost to Oklahoma State, 54-53.

Speaking of Oklahoma State, I missed Monday's cliffhanger and it was the first game I've missed all season. When the Huskers win, they beat the tough ones. Great EFFORT.

Seems that Creighton fans are also mildly upset with the fortunes and misfortunes of its basketball squad. Sound familiar?

One paragraph struck me as being apropos in the student paper, The Creightonian:

"One thing is known. Creighton fans are highly critical with little more to offer other than their criticism. The student center coaches seem to have discovered all the team's problems over their countless cups of coffee. Little of the criticism has been constructive, none of it has been applied by anyone."

There are other schools that aren't winning either. But Monday night was great.

IM Volleyball Is Scheduled

The 1963 All-University volleyball championships will begin Tuesday March 19.

Entries must be in by Tuesday at 5 p.m.

All fraternities, Burr Hall and Selleck will be entered as "A" teams and the first 16 "B" teams will play for the "B" championship. The independent teams must make team entries in Room 102, Physical Education Building by Tuesday. All teams should be ready for their first match is played.

Each team has to provide two officials—one for officiating at the net and the other to serve as linesman and scorekeeper.

The tourney will be a double elimination affair with four tournaments on tap: Fraternity A; Selleck Burr A; B teams; and Independent teams. Winners of each of these tourneys will play for the All-University championship.

Trophies will be given to the team winning the All-University championship and to the winner of the B team tournament. Medals will be given to the winners of the Independent match.

Defending champions are Sigma Phi Epsilon in the A fraternities; Ag Men on Ag College; Manatt at Selleck and Kiesselbach at Burr; Beta Theta Pi is winner of the B fraternities; and the winner of the Independent tournament is the Irianians. The All-University championship was won last year by the Irianians.

Correction
Monday's paper erroneously stated that Jan Sack had taken the NU soccer picture. Instead of Miss Sack, Paul Kavanaugh took the picture.

At last it happened! Nebraska's Cornhuskers reached from the Big Eight cellar to topple heavily favored Oklahoma State 49 to 48 before a sparse but enthusiastic Coliseum crowd Monday night.

Jerry Bushes' Huskers needed the last minute heroics of Charlie Jones and Neil Nannen to preserve the thin victory margin after blowing a nine-point half time lead.

Cowboy Larry Hawk led the visitor's assault on the Husker's intermission margin. The alert guard, who is the Oklahoman's shortest starter at 6-2, managed five important second-half baskets.

A Hawk basket with 10:22 left brought the Cowboys within five points for the first time since the opening moments at 42 to 37. After three Huskers missed shots under the basket at the other end of the court, Hawk and center Gene Johnson meshed consecutive goals to pull Oklahoma State within a point. The fiery guard contributed his last fielder with less than seven minutes remaining, giving the Cowboys their first lead at 43 to 42.

Then, with each team maneuvering for the sure bucket, Bill Vincent and rival Johnson traded two baskets apiece. Johnson's last tally left Nebraska with a one point deficit and nearly three minutes left in the contest.

Following two minutes of hectic ball-handling, Jones turned a twisting baseline drive into the game-winning score. With the clock showing 39 seconds, Jones missed his free throw in an attempt to complete the three point play. Nannen sealed the win by getting the all-important rebound and the Scarlet controlled the ball during the final seconds.

Jones and Nannen led the successful first half as Nebraska capitalized on a Cowboy drought of five minutes without scoring. The Husker margin was as much as 21 to 8 when Daryl Petsch sank a pair of shots with 6:45 remaining.

Four Huskers finished in the double figures as Jones, Petsch, and Vincent tallied 12 points while Nannen contributed 11 points. Hawk led Oklahoma State with 15 points including seven field goals.

Nebraska will go for their second Big Eight triumph in their next game with Oklahoma at home this Saturday. The Huskers will attempt to avenge a recent 84 to 77 beating at the hands of the Sooners in Norman.

The Oklahoma game this Saturday will be Jerry Bush's last home game as coach before he resigns the post.
