Stromer Indicates Withdrawal Of Bill

A bill that would establish a single board governing the University and four teachers colleges is going to be put off for two more years, said Sen. Marvin Stromer when he announced that he intends to withdraw the bill.

The bill, LB762, co-sponsored by Sen. Richard Marvel, would have placed the question of a single higher education board before the voters in the form of a constitutional amendment in November, 1964.

An affirmative vote then would have tossed the question of constructing a unified board to the 1965 Legislature.

Stromer said an interim study resolution keyed upon a single board will be proposed in lieu of the former bill.

While the senatorial reaction to the former bill was "extremely favorable," Stromer said "There are some legal points in the constitutional amendment to be worked out."

The study will possibly come out with a "detailed recommendation" to be submitted as a constitutional amendment in the 1966 general election, Stromer said.

This would contrast with the board delegation of responsibility chartered under LB762's constitutional amendment concept.

Stromer's resolution will focus on the construction of the board itself, but will also venture into side considerations.

One of these will deal with graduate studies and their cost. At the time of the original announcement of plans concerning LB762, Stromer had called attention to possible financial waste in creation of duplicate graduate study facilities.

Stromer said the Legislature, in making the interim study, "will profit by the Glenn Study." The $25,000 look into higher education in Nebraska public and private colleges was made three years ago.

He added the proposed 1964 interim study would carry senators to other campuses around the country. It would also check into program reciprocity agreements involving the University and other Big 8 schools.

MS Gains $5,644 For Drive

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society has announced that an unofficial total of $5,644.22 was collected in its Saturday drive.

There is money still to be reported in from one of the groups participating, as well as the envelopes left at the homes by the marchers.

Susie Walburn, President of Panhellenic Council, and Bill Buckley, President of the Interfraternity Council, were presented with trophies symbolic of the participation of their groups in the charity drive. The presentation was made Saturday night at the Greek Week Ball.

Dr. Shugrue Resigns To Begin Research

Dr. Michael Shugrue, assistant to the chancellor, is resigning from the University in order to accept the associate chairmanship of a research committee of the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE).

Shugrue has spent the last week talking to various persons connected with the NCTE and with the committee of which he will become a part, in Chicago and St. Louis.

About a month ago, Shugrue was asked to accept the position. He asked that he be given time to consider, and he has decided that it is a worthwhile undertaking.

Shugrue said that in a meeting of 96 chairmen of English departments in universities, it was discovered that no one really knew what kind of research was being carried on in the English field in other universities.

"There was a great amount of money being spent on duplicating efforts," said Shugrue. The NCTE, which is the only organization encompassing English instructors in elementary and secondary schools in addition to colleges, will set up a program to co-ordinate all these varied efforts, according to Shugrue.

The reason for Shugrue's hurried departure, is that the NCTE wants a report by the committee for its fall convention. In order to accomplish this, the report must be completed by August.

The reason Shugrue was chosen for the job, he feels, is that he has been associated with one of the best English curriculum centers in the country here at Nebraska, and has done some writing and speaking on the program at Nebraska.

"Though I naturally regret leaving the University of Nebraska, I feel a responsibility to continue and to expand my work with the National Council of Teachers of English," said Shugrue.

Before coming to the University last June, Dr. Shugrue spent two years on the English faculty at the University of Illinois.

Shugrue received his baccalaureate degree from the University in 1956, his master's in 1957, and his Ph.D. from Duke University.

Student Says Castro Government Illegal

By SUE HOVIK
Nebraska Staff Writer

The Castro government is an anti-Cuban illegal form of government because it goes against the Cuban ideals, constitution and legal background said Tony Rodriguez, speaking for the Nebraska Cuban Student Directorate.

"I think the Cubans have a right to fight it because of our constitution and our principles," continued Rodriguez.

Rodriguez, a sophomore, came to the University from Havana, Cuba, a year ago last September. Some members of his family still live there.

Castro has been losing a lot of appeal during the last year in Cuba and the rest of Latin America, he said. He noted that a week ago Castro admitted potential guerrilla warfare in the mountains.

Asked about the new United States policy concerning anti-Castro raids which are being launched from U.S. soil, Rodriguez said that he couldn't say now if the Administration was doing the right thing or not . . . he would have to wait and see.

He expressed the opinion that Cubans could not be prosecuted for fighting the Castro regime and for raids on us-sian ships, but they could be prosecuted for violating U.S. neutrality.

"I can't judge what the U.S. policy should be. It is too complex," he said.

The United States doesn't want to get mixed up by helping Cubans fighting the Castro regime, but at the same time Russia is helping the regime, said Rodriguez.

In an article during the Cuban crisis, he said the reason for the Russian technicians in Cuba was given, but that it received very little publicity. He said that according to the story, Russian technicians were building anti-missile defense systems that could shoot out U.S. missiles that went over U.S. territory.

The question in this new policy is whether it is right for the United States to take this action against Cubans who are trying to overthrow Castro — an illegal regime, again, said Rodriguez.

The reactions of the headquarters of the Cuban Directorate in Miami are violent and they don't care what measures are taken against Castro until Cuba is free again, said Rodriguez.

Besides ships and planes stopping anti-Castro raids, Cuban refugee leaders have been restricted to Dade County (Miami) and some federal agencies are checking on anti-Castro action, he said.

Whoever gets out of Cuba legally now does it through Mexico, he said. Some are escaping by boats, but there is no legal means of getting to the United States from Cuba.

People from Latin America are being trained in Cuba in Communist infiltration tactics to take back to their own country, he said. These people are actually trained by international Communists and then sent to Cuba to receive

Communism in Latin America has grown, but so has anti-Communism, said Rodriguez.

The sixteen Cuban students on the University campus all left Cuba after Castro took over, he said. Rodriguez noted that the avowed purpose of the Nebraska Cuban Student Directorate is to keep people informed of what's going on in Cuba and relating it to Cuba.

The purpose of the Cuban Student Directorate in Miami is to get rid of Castro and his government with the long-range plans of exterminating
